April 17 in American History. 1801—William Gilmore Simms, author of southern historical fiction, born; died 1870. 1863—Beginning of the celebrated Mississippi raid of General B. H. Grierson's Federal cavalry. 1912—Statue to John Paul Jones, naval hero of the Revolutionary war, unveiled in Washington.

asm has awakened, the small boy may be found after school practicing eye-defying curves and other tricks of the national game, and the grown-ups are beginning to find that business often calls to Portland on afternoons when the big leaguers are playing there. On arriving in the metropolis, they find that the parties they want to see are at the game, and so they, perforce follow—though they had no intention of so wasting half a day when they started out; of course not. Surely Spring is at hand, even if the blue bird report had not afforded the last proof. Young things of the gentler sex feel the ineffable presence of the season of blossom and glory, dresses are becoming gayer, the diaphanous shirtwaist is reappearing in business offices, bridge parties are being neglected while plans for picnics are being made, and there is a general rush of inquiry to the ticket offices for literature of the beaches and the mountains. The older folk are thinking of house cleaning and then of the restful afternoons when there will be no preparations for the evening meal, which shall be eaten cold from the sideboard as the family sit upon the porch in the evening and battle with mosquitos and moths. Of a verity, Spring is with us, and it is good to know that the annual report of the first blue bird has come to hand. But suppose the blue bird were a jay?

SIGNS OF SPRING An honest citizen ALL REMIND US zen of Clackamas says he has seen the first blue bird. Surely, if that is so, Spring has come, with all her alluring gentleness. Other reports have made it appear for some time that the vernal season was at hand, but the blue bird report clinches the argument. For the past several days snakes have been sunning themselves by the roadside and frightening the girls, children have been afield seeking the shy but beautiful violet, birds have been twittering busily and building nests, the pheasant has been echoing its weird calls through the woodland, and mere man has been putting about the garden—both because he knows it is time, and because the energy also serves to discover worms that can be used for bait to coax the precious fish from his watery depths. MORE RAILROADS RUMORED NEARBY Railroad rumors are as thick in the Willamette and Clackamas valleys as flies in summer time. The latest excitement in this line is reported from communities between Milwaukie and Clackamas station, where it is said that agents representing two rival lines are busy seeking rights-of-way privileges over farm land. One outfit seems to be searching for a route that will bend gradually eastward from Milwaukie and so skirt the northern side of the Clackamas valley, running in the general and indefinite direction of Mount Hood; while the other party of promoters are making vague statements about a line from Portland, through Milwaukie, and thence almost due south to Oregon City. Ranchers and farmers have been interviewed by representatives of both roads, but are not tumbling over themselves to grant rights-of-way, as the agents do not seem to be overburdened with convincing credentials. There is also a revival of the old report that the Southern Pacific may soon change the route of its main line so as to avoid the curve to the eastward from Willburg through East Milwaukie, Clackamas and Gladstone, and will operate this line as an electric feeder to the new main line that will follow almost a direct tangent south from Sellwood. This report has been sprung so often, however, that little credence is now placed in it.

MILWAUKIE RESORT OUT OF BUSINESS The doom of the Milwaukie Tavern, otherwise known as "Bobbie Burns' place," which was sounded when Governor West and the militia threatened last fall to raze the place, was completed Tuesday night, when the Milwaukie council revoked its license. Numerous complaints have been made about the place for the past year, and the council, tiring of the revels that were formerly the rule at the resort, decided to take drastic steps and close it. The tavern was reconstructed from a former club house, and soon became S. taaher's oelement the mecca for "joy-riders" and the element that follows in their trail. During Governor West's spectacular "clean-up" campaign the tavern was made an objective point of the executive's attacks, and eventually was the scene of an opera bouffe siege on the part of a small party of state militiamen. Following this the fence surrounding the grounds was torn down, and after this the habitues of the place were considerably less strenuous in their revels. At the same meeting of the Milwaukie council, Felix R. Mitchell was elected chairman of the body.

W HEN a woman rejoices in the possession of several millions she has a perfect right to "blow it" $203,400 on an opera outfit if she sees fit. At least that's what Mrs. Clara Baldwin Stocker thinks. She's "Lucky" Baldwin's daughter, the late "Lucky" Baldwin of California, whose many escapes from death and whose worldly good fortune made him one of the most picturesque figures of the west. Mrs. Stocker is here pictured in her $203,400 rig—diamonds, gold gown, diamond studded stockings and all. They say she rather made Los Angeles sit up and take notice when she bloomed forth at the opera thus gorgeously equipped. What do you think of her and her method of spending money?

Women Gaining Greater Freedom By INEZ MILHOLLAND, Society Girl and Suffragist

GENERATION ago woman married, in the absence of romantic love, because there was NOTHING ELSE TO DO. And in cases where marital conditions were degrading and intolerable she stayed married because there was nothing else to do. THE GRADUAL INCREASE OF ECONOMIC OPPORTUNITY IS ENABLING HER TO CHOOSE HER MATE WITH GREATER FREEDOM AND INTELLIGENCE; IT IS ALSO ENABLING HER TO DIVORCE HIM IN THE EVENT OF A MARRIAGE TURNING OUT DISTINCTLY UNSUCCESSFUL. THERE IS NOW AN ALTERNATIVE. MAN CAN NO LONGER STARVE HER INTO SUBMISSION. The time honored belief that it was woman's duty to bestow her person in exchange for food, shelter and clothing is giving way to a newer, higher ideal that makes recognition of the equal rights of the sexes; THE FEMINIST IDEAL, one may call it, that is based on a fine, healthy, continuous companionship and an equal sharing of burdens within and without the home. And these new conditions, of course, carry with them a new social attitude toward divorce. It is further recognized that unsuccessful marriages CANNOT BE MADE REAL AND FINE by any imaginable pressure of the law or of public opinion. It is as easy to make a dead rosebush blossom by a court order as to breathe life into a sex relationship that is not a real marriage in the hearts of the persons concerned. It is only through a sober, patient study of things as they are, A FEARLESS, UNFLINCHING ONSLAUGHT AGAINST THE WRONGS OF TRADITION and a brave and open minded acceptance of new conditions that will lead to the adjustment these changes in the economic status of women have brought into our social relationships.

LITTLE LETTUCE FOUND IN MARKET There continues an extreme shortage of head lettuce in the local market, and household interest are finding a much better sale for their offerings in consequence. While in some quarters there was an effort to force the price of head stock higher, dealers in general were not willing to take advantage of retailers by showing up values, and most sales are being made at $2.50 per crate, although $2.75 could just as easily have been secured for all offerings available. Some produce handlers were without any supplies during the last few days, and their efforts to "borrow" from other dealers proved unavailing because the latter had not enough for their own requirements.

COUNCIL MEETING OFF; NO QUORUM IS PRESENT A special meeting of the city council, set for Tuesday night, to consider the application of certain liquor dealers for a permit to sell their stock at wholesale, following the closing of their saloons by order of the council for violations of the ordinances, failed to materialize on the date arranged, owing to the absence of a sufficient number of members to make a quorum. The matter set for consideration will now go over to the special meeting called for next Wednesday evening. Attorneys, who have looked into the matter of the application for a special permit in the case of the liquor dealers say that they do not believe such permission can legally be granted, and that in all probability the council will be forced to deny the applications.
