CLACKAMAS Clackamas county has LEADING AGAIN a habit of taking the initiative in things, and once again Clackamas is to the fore on a statewide question. Reference is made to the suit filed by the city of Gladstone against the county to recover the unexpended portion of a road tax collected in the neighboring municipality for the past two years.

While the amount involved in the suit is not so very great, the principle at issue is one that has an intimate bearing on every city throughout the state of Oregon, and the result of the friendly test action now instituted will be watched with interest by every municipality within the borders of the commonwealth. Gladstone wants to spend its own money on its own highways. The funds were collected from citizens residing within the corporate limits of the city, and under its charter Gladstone feels that it has a claim to the total amount gathered. From Gladstone's point of view the issue seems simple enough, especially as under the amendment adopted by the legislature in 1906, municipalities are empowered to direct the expenditure of funds collected from local property. There is, however, another side to the question, and the courts will be called upon to render a decision that will clear up the matter.

In opposition to Gladstone's claim it may be stated the money at issue was collected as a county road tax. Such money was designed for road-way improvement throughout the entire county to be distributed among the different road districts as most needed. While it is undoubtedly true that Gladstone needs this money for its own roads, it is also true that whatever road money is spent in the Gladstone district, but outside of Gladstone's corporate limits, is also a benefit to Gladstone, by making its means of communication with other communities more fitted for travel. If part of Gladstone's money is thus used in contiguous territory, the burden of improvement on outlying districts is shared by the city; if all the money assessed in the city is used within the city, then the burden on the rural communities for the upkeep of roads leading to the city must be all the greater.

The courts will decide which way the burden is to be borne. The decision, once made, will establish a precedent for other communities, and will thus become an important part of the Oregon code.

one of the liveliest Booster Days of the city's history is expected. Aside from the usual parade, and the exhibition of pedigreed stock in the display barns, there will be many novel features for the entertainment of visitors. The Commercial club is planning to present, absolutely free of charge on the streets, a number of entertainment features of the highest grade. Arrangements have been made with one of the carnival show companies to bring their best acts to the city, and these will be staged for the benefit of the visiting public.

Among the great free features will be a "Ferris wheel," a high diving act, a number of trained animal displays, and in all probability a gymnastic exhibition given by boys and young men from one of Portland's largest athletic bodies. The Commercial club has also offered a prize of $10 for the farmer or rancher who brings in from the country the largest load of people in one wagon. The occupants of this wagon must make the entire journey to the city in their vehicle, and must be bona fide residents of the suburban or rural districts. It is hoped that parties coming in by such conveyance, and planning to compete for this prize will wear "genuine country clothes," and will decorate their wagon with grains, grasses, apple or other fruit blossoms, or some distinctive scheme that will make their vehicle a feature in the parade. All such wagons coming in will be asked to enter the parade, and the prize award will be made from the judge's stand.

INTERSTATE DAIRY INSPECTION COMES

Ranchers near Oregon City who have been furnishing milk to some of the larger dairies may be surprised one of these days by the appearance at their barns of Washington milk inspectors. An agreement has just been reached between Dairy Commissioner Mickle, of Oregon, and Dairy Commissioner Davis, of Washington, whereby inspectors of one state may go into the other state and look over sources of milk supply. The agreement is the result of complaint by Oregon inspectors of milk furnished to Portland from portions of Clarke county, Washington. The Oregon inspectors declared that conditions on some of the Clarke county farms were not up to Oregon standards. However, as some of the big Portland dairies that obtain milk from farmers in the lower Willamette and Clackamas valleys ship cream into Washington, it is possible that Washington inspectors will want to come to Oregon and see how local barns are kept up.

A Great Pain Killer. Meritol White Liniment reduces inflammation and soreness wherever found in about one-third the time required by the usual treatment. It has no equal as a general household remedy. Jones Drug Company. ***

BUTTER CHEAPER; NEW TUBERS LOW

There is a weaker tone all through the butter trade of the country. Portland prices are the highest along the Pacific coast but the trade is weak. An immediate decline of at least 2c a pound is likely within the next 24 hours as a result of the lower figures quoted elsewhere.

San Francisco is quoting 26c a pound for extras but the selling price is from 1 to 2c a pound for extras, and the market is weaker there, too.

Both of those markets have a direct bearing upon the price of Oregon butter, and there is not the slightest doubt that values will be revised immediately, and downward. The output of butter both here and at country points is showing a very liberal increase and a surplus showing in some quarters. Supply is better than demand and only lower prices will again bring them together.

A fractional decline in showing in the local market for new potatoes. While most interests are still asking 7c a pound for supplies, some are offering down to 6 1/2c. Receipts from the south are more liberal.

Useless Ornaments In Homes Being Discarded

By Miss VIRGINIA ROBIE, Author

THE keynote of the present day movement—revolution, one might say—is the steady elimination of NONESSENTIALS.

The overcrowded, museum-like millionaire home of twenty years ago is rapidly passing. They are being supplanted by the SIMPLICITY of French and English architecture, interior decoration and furnishing.

NOT TO BE OUTDONE BY THE MILLIONAIRE, THE MIDDLE CLASS AND THE LEASING WAGE EARNER ARE RAPIDLY DISCARDING USELESS ORNAMENTS, KNICKKNACKS THAT ONCE CLUTTERED THE HOME TO PHYSICAL DISCOMFORT AND THE VITIATION OF GOOD TASTE.
