AURORA TELEPHONE WORK IS STARTED

Stockholders of the Aurora Mutual Telephone company met Thursday and adopted by-laws for their organization. Officers were also elected to serve until the next annual meeting. The following directors were chosen: E. B. Yerga, L. P. Swan, G. A. Ehlen, A. J. Mishler, Charles Becke Jr., George X. Gooding and J. P. Feller. The board immediately organized and elected the following officers: President, G. A. Ehlen; vice-president, G. X. Gooding; secretary, A. J. Mishler; treasurer, Charles Becke Jr. Both stockholders and directors were a unit in favor of immediate action in starting the work of construction. The company is capitalized at $5000 in shares of $25 each. It will probably have free switching privileges with the connecting mutual and other lines, and long distance connections to Portland and other cities over the northwest.

BASEBALL GAMES HELD UP--RAIN

Rain Friday afternoon put a quietus on baseball playing in the Northwest to a considerable extent. There was no Coast League game in Portland, but to make up for that the Portland Colts won a game from Spokane in the Inland Empire city. The score in this game was 4 to 3, in favor of Portland, but the deciding run was not made until the 12th inning. Coast League games in the south resulted as follows: At Venice, Sacramento 0, Venice 7; at San Francisco, Oakland 6, San Francisco 5. The result of today's games does not alter the standing of the clubs as far as relative positions goes.

The "first aid to be perplexed" in the administration of the household should be the advertising columns of THE ENTERPRISE.

You were looking at the tablecloth today and that brought up the question of table linens.

This ought to be a good time to buy tablecloths and napkins. Watch the announcements of the reliable stores that advertise in THE ENTERPRISE.

And, speaking about table linens, weren't you thinking of a new rug for the dining room, new curtains, another couch cover?

Perhaps something was paid about replenishing the cut glass supply or a new china cabinet or a buffet.

And what about a new refrigerator this season? A fine up-to-date sanitary refrigerator is not in the luxury class any more; it is a necessity.

Take your housekeeping problems to the advertising columns of THE ENTERPRISE. It is the business of the stores represented there to help you.

FAIR WORK FOR CHILDREN

Last year, as nearly as can be estimated, about 60,000 children engaged in making or raising something to exhibit and for competition in the prizes offered by the various garden, industrial, school, county and state fairs. It is hoped and believed that this year the number of children who will interest themselves in preparing for the fairs to be held in the fall, will reach at least 125,000.

One of the main objects of these contests, is to get the boys and girls interested in something, and it is easier to interest them in something practical, something in which their work will show than it is to keep them interested by merely furnishing amusements for them. "The busy man is the happy man" is no less true of the child, and the benefit in character building will be untold.

The wide reaching influence of this work among the children has already been felt in one community, where six families as a direct result of the work of the children in these families getting up agricultural exhibits for the school fairs, have moved to country places. That wonder worker, nature, has from the little that can be raised on city lots, manifested herself to these city dwellers, in all her charm, and has lured these families back to the soil.

The children have learned a lesson in industry, and the rewards for meritorious exhibits were sufficiently valuable to make their effort worth while.

The rules for entering these contests are few and simple, but the most important from every standpoint, is that the children must do the work themselves. The ground may be plowed and harrowed for the children but after that preliminary work the children must do it all themselves. Planting, cultivating, harvesting must all be done by the children. In raising poultry the child does not have to own the parent flock, but must set the eggs and feed and care for the chickens they exhibit. Fine eggs from blooded stock have been distributed among the children, and at the fairs this year some fine poultry will be exhibited by the children.

The children should do all the work themselves, for they will have a pride in their exhibits if they are honestly made, that they could not know if the parents did the work, and allowed the children to exhibit the products as their own. To instill into a child's mind the lesson of honesty and fair dealing is as necessary as to teach him industry. "To thy self be true, and it follows as the day follows night that to no other man canst thou be false." Character building is the most important part of a child's life, and much good to his whole career may result from these industrial contests, for the habits of industry, economy, system, honesty and self-reliance which all go to the making of a good citizen, may be learned through work in these lines.

There will be many valuable prizes for the children at the State Fair again this year, and the school contests will be of high educational value to the exhibitors. Parents should encourage the children to begin early to get ready for these fairs, it will keep the children busy and happy.

OPPORTUNITIES.

Oregon, by the United States census of 1910, had a population of 672,765, this has been augmented in the two years by at least an incoming settlement of 100,000 people. Of this number Portland in 1910, by census figures, claimed 207,214 souls, increased to 257,499 in 1912 by a conservative directory estimate. Don't you want to come to Clackamas County, next door neighbor to the city of Portland, and help feed this big city. Figures show how disproportionate has been the influx to the city. Does it mean anything to you? More than 1-4 of the population of one of the biggest states in the Union settled in one city of the state.

The people of Portland want your poultry, your dairy products, your small fruits, your vegetables and fruits, and there is no place where they can be grown more cheaply than in Clackamas County. No place where transportation can be affected more cheaply and efficiently than from Clackamas County, for you can supply your market direct.

Don't you see your opportunity? Produce the best, and get the best returns, and there is no place in the country where you can do this any better than right here in Clackamas County.

Boost your city by boosting your daily paper. The Enterprise should be in every home.

UNLIKE OREGON. The Eastern states have been swept by floods and winds for many years, but it has remained for 1913 to bring to the East a calamity which has broken all previous records for severity.

The horrors of floods have been intensified by blizzards, and snow and ice have added untold suffering to untold suffering. Tornadoes of unusual violence have ravaged the Southern and Middle West states, and lives have been sacrificed, and property has been devastated to an extent which has horrified the whole world.

The wholesale destruction of lives and of property during Easter week is unprecedented, and the rise of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers to record breaking stages will probably add to the loss of life, will undoubtedly add to loss of property.

Torrential rains of 12 inch an hour which lasted for a week are held to account for the destroying floods which wrought disaster to two whole states, leaving hardly one city unscathed, and making havoc in parts of many other states. The annual rainfall of the Willamette Valley of 41 inches was exceeded in less than a week, and the rivers swollen with the usual winter rains could not carry off the excess of water, and sad history has been made.

During the same week in one day an unprecedented heavy rain occurred in this county, when in 24 hours 9 of an inch fell.

The jesting saying that Oregon rains are not wet rains has its origin in the fact that the rains never come in heavy and drenching down pours. One can be out for hours in Valley rain and not get wet. Hence "Oregon rains are not wet rains."

Extreme high winds do not prevail in the Valley. The clouds never assume the frightful black and heavy blue of the wind and storm clouds which strike such terror to the heart, and the frightful disasters of our sister states are not feared here. The sense of security from these terrible visitors, and from lightning, which is enjoyed here, can only be appreciated by those who have known the horrid fear which possesses one who has lived through even a moderate Eastern storm.

We extend a deep sympathy to those who have suffered in the storms and floods and to those also who live in fear that they may be the next to receive a visitation. We also extend an invitation to come to Clackamas County where torrential rains are never known, where the dread tornado and cyclone have never blown their terrible breath, and where lightnings do not make summer a time to be dreaded.

Our winter rains come gently and the average rainfall is sufficient to obviate the necessity of irrigation. Our winters are not extremely cold, nor our summers intensely hot. In fact the elements are moderate in all ways, and in this valley--years ago called the garden spot of the world--one may find succor from the buffetings of storms, and feel safe to go about one's business without the hideous fear of wind and rain and lightning and tempest.

Clackamas County offers a place of refuge, a place where life may be begun again with a certain knowledge that nature has a kinder manner than she shows to other sections.

ROME--The condition of Pope Pius X. seems to be steadily improving, and early Saturday morning his physicians were quite sanguine of his ultimate recovery. His fever has gone, and unless pneumonia sets in he is said to be out of danger.

"The faith of the West in its own future derives its inspiration from that which has been achieved and is now being accomplished."
