W. A. SHEWMAN'S DEATH PEACEFUL

WELL KNOWN PUBLISHER DIES LATE MONDAY AFTER NOON IN PORTLAND

HEALTH FAILING FOR PAST YEAR

Wife is at Bedside When End Comes to Patient During Sleep— Was Prominent Mason and Elk

Peacefully, as the coming on of a gentle sleep, death called William A. Shewman, editor of the Western Stock Journal, Monday afternoon at the Good Samaritan hospital, Portland. Mrs. Shewman was with him when the end came to end an illness that has caused him no little suffering for the past several months. Death followed an unsuccessful operation, which Mr. Shewman underwent in Portland after having first sought relief in the milder climate of California.

Mr. Shewman has been in poor health for the past years, and for the past several months has been unable to attend to his duties in connection with his paper. Under the advice of physicians he went to California in February, but the change did him but little good, and he returned to his home at Concord some weeks ago. There a consultation of doctors was called, and it was deemed advisable to operate. At this time his health was not sufficiently robust to stand the ordeal, but after hospital care in Portland it was decided to attempt this last drastic move for his recovery. Mr. Shewman stood the operation well, but the tissues with which he was suffering had progressed too far for surgical skill to remedy, and the surgeons gave up hope of his ultimate recovery. It was believed, however, that he would regain sufficient strength to make it possible to remove him to his home the latter part of this week.

Mr. Shewman was born in Randolph, New York, 41 years ago. After completing his education in Eastern schools he moved to Pennsylvania, where he entered the lumber business. His marriage has been successful for several years associated with his father-in-law, J. P. Watson, in the same line of work in the Keystone state.

In 1908 he came to Oregon City, and assumed management of The Courier, which he ran successfully for four years, finally selling out to Frost and Brown, the present proprietors. Following this he undertook the publication of the Western Stock Journal, and with this publication attained an envied success, building the paper up until it was one of the leading trade journals in its special field in the northwest.

Mr. Shewman was a Mason and an Elk, and was highly respected in the community. He was a member of the Episcopal church, and was prominent in church work. The funeral will probably be held from the Episcopal church here, and in all likelihood the Rev. W. C. Robinson will officiate. Aside from his widow he is survived by a son, Alton Shewman, 12 years of age.

For sometime previous to his death, Mr. Shewman was in conversation with his wife at the hospital, and said that he was feeling much stronger. Shortly after four in the afternoon he complained of feeling sleepy, and rolling over in his bed, sank into a slumber from which he never roused. Death came to him at 4:39 p. m.

HOMES ADDITION FOR MILL'S FOLK

WILLAMETTE PULP & PAPER MILLS TAKES BIG STEP FOR EMPLOYEES

ARTISTIC COTTAGES TO BE BUILT

Fifty-seven Acres of Land Overlooking River to be Turned into Model Suburb for Benefit of Workers

Fifty-seven acres of prettily situated land, overlooking the river and sloping so that the best of drainage may be obtained, has been platted as "Willamette Heights" by the Willamette Pulp & Paper Mills, and will be sold exclusively to employees of the plant, so that they may have the best of home surroundings and conditions. This plat was dedicated on Monday, and elaborate plans for the disposal and improvement of the land have been made by the paper mill management.

The acreage has been divided into 201 tracts of residence site size. Most of the smaller tracts are a little larger than the average city lot, though some of them of irregular shape, and will form excellent locations for the very nicest of homes. In addition to disposing of these lots in Willamette Heights, the mill company is also prepared to have erected for such of its employees as buy these houses of neat and attractive appearance and modern design.

Sixteen different sets of plans, each set providing for a home that is distinctive and up-to-date, have been prepared by an architect for the company, and employees will be given a choice of these plans. The houses thus designed range from neat little bungalows to more pretentious homes that will cost $3,000 to build. The choice of plans thus provided by the company will not only enable every employee to suit his or her earning capacity, but will also provide an artistic variety of houses and architecture in the addition.

The land itself will be sold to employees at cost, and the houses will be erected and only enough charged for them to cover actual construction costs. No interest will be charged, and while employees are paying for the property there will be no taxes assessed against it. It is the plan of the company to permit employees to buy lots and houses on the installment plan, and the rates will be exceptionally low and reasonable. In taking this step the management of the big concern feels that it will be helping in bettering the health and home surroundings of its employees, and believes that as a result a better class of men and women will be attracted to the mills in the future, while those at present employed will develop a greater spirit of fealty and cooperation.

The tract thus to be thrown open to the fortunate employees adjoins the property of the West Oregon City school, so that there will be ample and accessible school facilities.

In addition to this large tract at the southwestern corner of the acreage will be reserved for park purposes, and will be landscaped and otherwise beautified and improved, so that the residents of the addition will have a breathing place where rest hours may be enjoyed. Located as it is near the crest of the hill, and overlooking the river, the site will be one of the most attractive in this district. In thus planning a thoroughly modern addition to the city, the mill company has made every endeavor to keep away from stereotyped design, and to give to its employees the best that is possible.

DERTHICK CLUB CONCERT PLEASURES LOCAL MUSICAL ENTHUSIASTS

A delightful concert was given Monday evening in the First Congregational church by the Dertthick club of this city. The soloists of the evening were Mrs. Lulu Dahl Miller, contralto, Stuart McGuire, baritone and Carmel Sullivan on the harp, all of Portland. Miss Sadie Evelyn Ford of his city accompanied at the piano.

Mrs. Miller greatly pleased her audience with her beautiful mellow tones and perfect control over her voice at all times. The charm of her manner only added to her artistic bearing. The "Irish Love Song" by Lank, was especially pleasing and won hearty applause to which Mrs. Miller responded. "The Worldly Hope Men Set Their Hearts Upon" by Liza Lehmann, showed the wide range and power of the singer's voice. Mrs. Miller's duet with Mr. McGuire, "Stay Sweet Swallow," by Jours, was one of the most pleasing numbers on the program.

Stuart McGuire, who has sung in this city several times before, was suffering from a slight cold. His numbers nevertheless were pleasing and much appreciated by the audience. "Registration" was well rendered and evoked much applause and an encore. Mr. McGuire has a rich and powerful baritone voice.

Miss Carmel Sullivan completely won her audience with her delicate touch and complete mastery of the harp. Her dainty manner adroitly much to her charm. "La Reveil Des Elfes" by Charles Oberthor, was beautiful, and won an encore to which Miss Sullivan responded with the "Barcarola." Miss Ford's accompaniment on the piano was attractive and finished as it is well known to the people of this city.

The concert was a success and was largely attended by the musical and society people of the city. Great credit is due the Dertthick club for the manner in which they conducted the concert.

JURYMEN LISTEN TO TRESPASS CASE

Sitting in circuit court Monday, Judge Campbell spent the entire day in hearing a jury trial in the case of Lydia Wright against John Etzel, a case for trespass and damages. The litigation concerned the value of 147 cascara bark trees, which it was charged that Etzel or his agents had caused to be stripped. Damages approximating $147 and costs were asked by the plaintiff. The chief defense was that the stripping had been done by boys, and that the defendant should not be held responsible. Earnest argument was advanced by counsel, and many witnesses were called, the case being concluded just before five o'clock.

The jury at the option of Judge Campbell, decided that they would rather not consider their verdict Monday night, and court was therefore, adjourned until Tuesday morning, when his honor will charge the jurors, and they will retire. The jury trying the case is composed of John S. Kusicker, William Dale, J. A. Miley, A. W. Cooke, W. W. Tucker, Henry Swales, Leslie O. Eaton, Paul Streib, Jr., J. U. Meannuity, Gao, Koehner, T. R. Worthington and Ed. Gross.

$100 A MINUTE RAISED BY ROAD

One hundred dollars a minute, was the rate at which money was subscribed at a meeting of the stockholders of the Clackamas Southern railway in the parlors of the Commercial club Monday evening. A suggestion was made that a vote be taken to see how much money could be raised. In nearly 20 minutes $2,000 had been subscribed and taken out in stock. This is considered a remarkable accomplishment when it is considered that no campaign had been waged to raise the money, and it was all subscribed without previous solicitation.

The fact shows what kind of people are being highly pleased with the great amount of confidence they have in it. The raising of two thousand dollars at last night's meeting should be sufficient to convince any dubious person that the line is going to be completed its entire length.

At the meeting reports by the officers of the company were given which showed that more than three miles of track have been laid and that the company expects the line to Beaver Creek within thirty days. The meeting was an enthusiastic one and everybody expressed themselves as being highly pleased with the condition of the line. There was not a single "knocker" in the crowd and everybody went away boosting for the Clackamas Southern.

The line will commence producing revenue as soon as it reaches Beaver Creek. From this line large amounts of logs, cordwood and ties will be hauled. But a small amount of work remains to be done between Oregon City and Beaver Creek.

WOMAN ASKS AID; THEN DISAPPEARS

Edith Augustine appeared before Judge R. B. Beatty Monday afternoon and told the court that she was in such destitute circumstances, because of the failure of her husband to provide a home for her, that she could no longer care for her three-year-old child, Kathryn. Her own parents, she said, were unable to assist her, and she asked the court to make some provision for her little girl.

His honor ordered the baby committed for the time being, to the Boys & Girls' Aid Society, and requested Mrs. Augustine to take a seat in the court room while he made out the commitment papers and sent for the society's agent. Twenty minutes or so later the judge looked up, and noted that the woman and little girl had disappeared from the room. He sent his bailiff into the hall to look for them, but diligent search through the courthouse failed to reveal their presence anywhere.

It is supposed that the mother changed her mind, and decided to keep the child with her. The order for commitment had been signed, however, and the judge deems it best to place the youngster in the care of the society. A search for the mother and child will be instituted.

OREGON CITY LOSES WOODBURN CONTEST

The Oregon City nine was defeated by the Woodburn team Sunday afternoon in Woodburn by a score of 13 to 7. The battery for Oregon City was Hugh Burden and J. Mulkey, that for Woodburn being Maemyer and White. The pitching of Burden strengthened the Oregon City team. Members of the team state it was not the good playing of Woodburn that won the game for them, but rather the poor playing of Oregon City.

The next game will be played in Canemah park, with the Oreo club team of Portland. Ed. Lavier is managing the team at present. It is likely that a complete new organization will be effected during the week.

FLAMING ARC FLASHES

Charles Schram, manager and proprietor of the Grand theatre, has purchased a fine large flaming arc lamp, which he has placed in front of his theatre. The lamp is about fifteen feet above the ground and throws a light that is much similar to day light. The light given by the lamp is steady and will light the street for some distance on either side.

This is the first time such a lamp has been used in this city and is quite a feature and will add much to the appearance of the town at night. There are a number of these lights in use in Portland, notably in front of the Majestic and the People's theatres.

COUNCIL REFUSES SPECIAL LICENSE

SALOONS ONCE CLOSED MUST REMAIN SHUT, IS OPINION OF CITY FATHERS

TOOZE RATHER GIVEN TO ARGUMENT

Militant Councilman Declares "Official" Saw Proprietor Make No Protest When Minors Were Served Liquor

The city council Monday afternoon at a special meeting lasting nearly two hours refused to issue special liquor licenses to D. M. Klemson and Peter Kern, to whom the council refused to issue new licenses the first of the present month, because they had violated the liquor laws. Mr. Klemson and O. D. Eby, who represented Peter Kern asked that the council give them special permits, extending 60 days, or until July 1, so that they might sell the liquor which they have in stock. Frank Underman, another saloonman, who was closed out by the council, has already disposed of his stock and had nothing to say on the subject.

Mr. Eby, speaking for Mr. Kern, stated that it was a difficult matter for him to dispose of the liquor which he had on hand, as under existing conditions, the Portland wholesale houses were the only people who would be willing to buy. These houses, he said, offered a price so low that Mr. Kern would lose money. He said that he did not believe this was right, and he thought that they should be allowed to sell the stock in quantities small enough so that he would not lose money. He stated that the government licenses were good until July 1, and believed the saloons should be allowed to run until that time. C. Schubel stated the government licenses had nothing to do with the city licenses.

Mr. Klemson said the city was forcing him into great loss, and he thought it nothing more than confiscation of his property. He said that if the council did not give him a license, he was either going to become a preacher or a professor, as he believed these occupations a little more secure, at least in Oregon City.

SENATE MILITANT IN ITS ATTITUDE

TAIL OF BRITISH LION TWISTED BY OREGON SENATOR, WHO WOULD BREAK TREATY

Woman Suffrage Also Receives Boost While News From Japan Arent Elevation of Togo Yields Smile

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 21.—(Special)—This was the days of the west and the spirit of the west in congress, and more particularly in the senate. Senator Chamberlain, of Oregon, figured largely in the limelight, both by hurling defiance at the British lion, and by joining with Senators Lane, of his own state, and Poindexter, of Washington, in an appeal for granting suffrage to women by constitutional amendment. Senator French, of Idaho, also joined in with the suffragists.

The "big noise" of the day, however, came when Senator Chamberlain, with the backing of Senator O'Dorman, of New York, introduced a joint resolution to abrogate the Hay-Pauncefote and Clayton-Bulwer treaties. Senator Chamberlain's action came as a protest against the agitation to yield to Great Britain's request that the free-tolls provision be removed from American shipping through the Panama canal.

In introducing his resolution the senator grided those whom he called "anglomaniacs who plead the cause of Great Britain," and said he wanted to give them "something to think about." Senator Chamberlain's remarks caused a slight flurry at the British embassy, where they were much discussed. He said in part: "It is very easy for us of the Pacific coast to see the influences at the bottom of this whole British protest. There never would have been anything heard of such a protest had it not been for certain trans-continental railroads in their behalf. It is high time for an illuminating discussion of this whole question. The pro-British side has been too long before the people unchallenged."

News that the Japanese government had requested Admiral Togo, hero of the Russo-Japanese war, to resume command of the Japanese navy, did not greatly stir official Washington, except to smirch.
