Up In the Air Over Zeppelin IV; Down In Cells With Militants

Photos by American Press Association.

THESE interesting pictures tell their own story of two important news events abroad. The airship is the Zeppelin IV, the German army dirigible which stirred up a fuss by getting out of order and out of bounds. It came down at Lunerville, France, near the German border, on the French military grounds, and war talk immediately broke out. This incident must have pleased the war manipulators in Germany if recent allegations are correct. The other illustration shows the suffragette arsenal captured by the London police. These are the implements of war which the "votes for women" agitators used in burning letters in the street mail boxes, cutting telegraph and telephone wires and in setting fires.

An Arrest

By JAMES B. BARSTOW

Mrs. Burrage (Mlle. de Fou and Signorina Tarantola, with a number of other aliases, was the most accomplished swindler I ever had anything to do with in all my term of service on the police force. She must have belonged to a well to do family or had a talent for languages, for she could pose as a native of any civilized land. One day my chief told me that he had reliable information of this accomplished confidence lady; that she was living in apartments and he wished me to go and arrest her. "Go in plain clothes," he said, "and keep your wits about you. She is very slippery and will elude you if you give her the slightest opportunity." I started out with the intention of being thoroughly on my guard. I knew that flat houses are apt to be convenient for those who wish to light out suddenly and took with me sufficient force to watch from every direction. Having stationed a man in front, in rear and on the roof of the adjoining building, I rang the bell at Mrs. Burrage's door. The summons was answered by a maid dressed in uniform—a black dress, apron and cap. She held a silver salver in her hand for a card. But I was not there for a call, nor did it suit my purpose to send in my name. I brushed past the maid and passed through the living room to a bedroom, where I found a lady in disarray. "What are you doing here?" she asked, betraying a foreign accent. "I have come, madam, to ask you to make a call upon the inspector." "The inspector! What does this mean?" "That you are under arrest." She pretended for awhile to be bewildered at the idea of being arrested, but when she found I would listen to her no longer she agreed to accompany me without urging if I would permit her to put on a costume suitable to the street. After examining the outlets and seeing no possible way of her making an escape I consented. The room was at the end of the suit, on the fourth floor, and no fire escape within reach. There was no possibility of her getting out except through the living room. So I retreated to that apartment, but insisted that the door between the two rooms should be sufficiently ajar for me to hear, though not to see. There was but one door opening from the suit to the hall, and at this door I had stationed a man with orders to let no one pass. On one side of the flat passageway was the living room, on the other the dining room and kitchen. But what interested me was the bedroom in which I had the prisoner cornered. I could not for my life see how she could escape me. Mrs. Burrage, or whatever her name was, took her time about dressing. I listened for every move, and she made enough of them for me to know by the sound that she was still there. This was gratifying, for, though I saw no way for her to escape me, I would have felt uneasy at any lengthy passage. When a quarter of an hour had passed and she did not appear I asked her if she was not ready. She replied that she had no one to hook the back of her dress. I told her that I had often performed that service for my wife and if she would come into the living room I would accommodate her. She said she would prefer that I come in to her. Resolved not to grant anything she proposed, I told her to come out to me, which she did with evident reluctance. I hooked her dress for her, and when she went back to her bedroom to put on her coat and hat I flung the door wide open, so that she could complete her toilet under my observation. She was so slow about it that I finally told her that I would give her five minutes by my watch to finish. She got into her wraps within the time and said that she was ready to accompany me. But she must ask me to go through the rooms with her—if I would not permit her to go alone—to see that they were in order for locking up. I consented, and we passed through the other bedrooms and finally entered the dining room. My prisoner passed through it to a pantry between it and the kitchen and opening a door, looked down a lift used for sending up supplies. Thinking she would attempt to escape through it, I caught her skirt. She turned toward me and smiled. "You may take me to the inspector if you choose," she said, "but I am not the person you are after. I am the maid. My mistress, you passed at the door. She got word of a visit by the police and immediately changed clothes with me. When you came to me she made up for a man, went down on this lift to one of the apartments below and has doubtless passed out through the main entrance. I have been delaying you in order to give her the needed time. Here," pointing to the servant's room, "are her maid's clothes." I did not take her to the inspector. I went back to him myself and got laughed at. Some years later I went to arrest the same woman and succeeded. I asked her how she got wind of her intended arrest, and she told me that she happened at the time to be looking out of a window down on the street and saw me posting my men, she having had time to change costumes with the maid.

His Opposite. Jenkins—I am told that the happiest marriages are between people who are exactly opposite in every respect to each other, so I am looking for a young lady of that sort, don't you know. Miss Pert—Then you have come to the right place. Come to the other side of the room and I'll introduce you to a bright, intelligent, well educated girl.—Exchange. Intelligent Traveling. "What town are we in now?" "I'll tell you in a minute. What day is it, Tuesday or Wednesday?" "Wednesday." "Then it must be Florence."—Fleigende Blatter.

SCARCITY OF EGGS THREATENS MARTS

Local poultrymen seem to have learned the lesson of the poor commercial market, and with prices being quoted at 18 cents and therabouts, are keeping their product almost entirely away from Front street. What sales of eggs that are made are shipped directly to consumers, and as a result there is an indication that Front street prices will soon improve. Storage interests are reported to be viewing the new tactics with alarm, and see in an increasing market loss of their profits. Cabbage is still among the high-priced staples. Berries are poor in grade and are not bringing much. Indications throughout the Clackamas and Willamette valleys are that local berries will be good and plentiful, and will probably command a higher price than the imported fruit. Local lettuce is breaking into the market, and is being forced to compete with California stock, with buying light. California is also sending in cherries, which are selling at from $1.75 to $2.25 per box, depending on grade. Salmon are still holding well, and local fishermen are getting good prices.

REVIEW OF STATE PLANNED BY O. A. C.

EUGENE, Ore., May 7.—To take stock of the last year's progress of the state of Oregon, to point out where the state is achieving success and where its efforts need strengthening, are among the purposes of the annual "commonwealth day," which will be held at the University of Oregon, May 16 and 17. "We don't know where we are going, but we're on the way," is the spirit which the "Commonwealth Conferences" were designed to change into a spirit of self-confident progress, sure of what it wants the state of Oregon to become, and sure of the means of working toward it. On these days leaders in all lines of Oregon life will gather in Eugene. Questions of economic progress, cooperative production and distribution, and legislative, administrative and educational efficiency will be discussed by experts in the different subjects. Office holders, labor leaders, social workers, Grange masters, scientists, students, editors and businessmen will each contribute their quota to the study of the problem of making Oregon a richer and better state. The more strictly economic and sociological conferences will occupy all day Friday, and Saturday morning. Saturday afternoon will see one of the most significant meetings of Oregon women ever held, addressed by leading women from all over the state. At the same time there will be a cheap rate excursion which is expected to bring 500 engineers and others from Portland, and a meeting of the editors of Oregon newspapers, who will discuss the place of the press in the community. After this will be an out-of-doors presentation of scenes from "Peer Gynt" and "Midsummer Night's Dream" and folk dances by students and the Junior League of Portland.

Modern Living Causes Sickness

The stomach is the most important organ of the body. The entire system depends upon its action. The stomach of a man or woman living a shut-in life from day to day, riding to and from business and taking little or no exercise in the fresh air, cannot digest the amount of food that is forced upon it. The stomach gradually grows weaker under these conditions and nervousness, kidney and liver troubles, rheumatism and other ailments are the result.

COOPER'S NEW DISCOVERY tones up the stomach, cleanses the system, regulates the digestive organs and gives nature a chance—that is the secret of health.

Cooper's New Discovery drives away that tired, lazy half-sick feeling, and makes you more cheerful, lively and buoyant. It is a pure, vegetable product, compounded after a thoroughly tested and successful formula.

Many thousands of persons testify to the merit of COOPER'S NEW DISCOVERY in the treatment of stomach trouble, indigestion, loss of appetite, lack of strength, rheumatism, catarrh and kidney and liver troubles.
