WHEN JOE JACKSON GOT EVEN WITH A FAN.

This story is passing the rounds concerning Joe Jackson, the Cleveland star outfielder, and his action and remarks in a kidding tussle with a fan. Joe was at the bat with two men on bases in a game against the New York Yankees at New York last summer and one of the "wise guys," who chanced to know some of Jackson's weak points, started "kidding."
"Spell 'em," Joe, yelled the "wise guy." Joe looked up and marked the spot—took a vicious swing at the next ball and knocked it out to right field for a triple.
As Joe came puffing around to third base he spotted the "wise guy" and yelled, "Spell 'em." Joe boned him; spell 'em! Joe had his revenge.

EVERS BANKING ON CHENEY.

Cubs' Manager Says Larry is Just as Dependable as Any Great Pitcher. Manager Evers of the Chicago Cubs is very sweet on Larry Cheney. Said Johnny recently: "Larry Cheney is the best man on our club. It is unusual for a leader to discriminate that way, but the players and the fans, as well as myself, know he is a wonder. He helped our club wonderfully last season and did not get much credit for it, but if my plans are successful he is going to get all that is due him this season. He ought to be in the line-light as much as Walsh, Johnson, Wood, Mathewson or Brown. He possesses every requisite, is easy to handle, a steady worker and dependable. I am going to make him as great a pitcher as Walsh or any one in the game. That may sound absurd, but you watch him this summer. I am going to do this by giving him a lot of work. Would Walsh, Brown, Mathewson, Johnson and Wood be so famous if it were not for the fact that they are working three and four times a week? They have been taking their regular turn, besides assisting other men, and have won nearly all the time. Their frequent appearance on the slab is what makes them stand out above the others. I think Cheney is as brilliant a pitcher as any one I mentioned, and I believe by the end of the season he will prove it. He will surely have the opportunity to gain renown, as I expect to pitch him in his regular turn as well as to call on him when one of the other men is forced to leave the box. Larry showed how strong he is when he beat Pittsburgh on a Sunday recently and came back two days later in the closing innings and held the same team hitless. That is no simple task against a squad of heavy hitters like the Pirates. Cheney has a spitting ball as a bird, and he should be more effective with it this year because he has more experience and knows the batters better."

ARMOR BOXING LATEST SPORT

Schoolboys Can Engage In Bout Without Fear of Injury.

WAS TRIED OUT RECENTLY.

High School Youngsters in New York Give Exhibition Which Pleases Parents—Masks Protect Boys, and Girls, Too, From Injury.
The latest thing in the boxing line is armor protection. This novel appliance is the invention of Guy Otis Brewster, physical director of the Dover (N. J.) high school, and is intended to protect boys and girls from injury or disfigurement when engaged in a boxing contest.
In New York recently a number of schoolboys from the Dover and Wharton high schools gave a demonstration of armor boxing at the monthly entertainment of the physical education department at Thompson's gymnasium. Teachers' college of Columbia university, which was witnessed by a number of men and women connected with the department.
Parents of children have been strong in their opposition to boxing. Many young men have received serious and several fatal injuries when engaged in the sport. It was to remove this objection and demonstrate that under his method of conducting boxing contests Mr. Brewster could entirely eliminate all possibility of accidents and restore the confidence of parents in the exercise.
In order to afford a practical illustration of the efficiency of his protector six schoolboys were introduced to the spectators fully equipped for the competition which was arranged on the round robin plan, each boy boxing one minute with the other boys.
The youthful boxers presented an amusing appearance equipped with the protector, but as the entertainment progressed the utility of the apparatus was evident and the strange effect disappeared. The protector is in two parts, hinged just below the chin. It is of woven steel wire about like the mesh of a catcher's mask. The upper part covers the face, sides of the head and neck, while the lower portion protects the heart, liver and stomach, ending at the waist line. Felt pads are used where the protector comes in contact with the head or body in order to absorb the shock of the blow. The protector is fastened with a strap and specially made clasps in order to prevent any part of it being torn away or loosened from blows. It is set close to the body in order to afford perfect freedom of action for the shoulders and arms. Straps of webbing cross the top of the head, and in order to give greater security a wide band of webbing is brought under the chin, which helps to keep the headpiece firm and not interfere with the head movements. The straps of webbing hold the lower section of the protector close to the body.

The mask removes the sense of fighting and brutality and teaches the youngsters the co-ordination of striking hard blows and fearless defense. The rules governing boxing with the new protector follows:
A regulation twenty-four foot ring shall be erected and eight ounce gloves used.
There shall be five men on a team, and each man shall box twice with every other man on the opposing team. Each round shall consist of one minute, and each man's rest period shall consist of the time between rounds, averaging about four minutes.
There shall be no cessation of the game from the opening bell to the closing one. As one couple leaves the ring another pair enters, and the boxing is continuous. The contestants shall be scored on the six cardinal points of boxing—viz. (1) footwork; (2) correct leads; (3) correct parrying and blocking; (4) correct ducking; (5) correct sequence of leads; (6) self control and strategical work.
There shall be a referee to judge the points and a scorer to record them. The contestant winning the most points in each round scores one point for his team (a draw may be given), and the team scoring the most points in the two halves wins the game.
A five minute intermission is given between halves.

GOOD MUSICAL PLANNED
Much interest is being expressed in the musical to be given in the Methodist Episcopal church Wednesday evening, May 14, under the auspices of the Bethias and the direction of Sadye Evelyn Ford, pianist. Mrs. Delphine Marx will be the soloist at the concert, and many of her former admirers will doubtless be on hand to hear her. Others who will appear are Gustav Fletcher, violinist and Oscar Lawrence Woodfin, vocalist. Miss Ford will be assisted by Mr. Woodfin in several numbers.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Lyman Rolland, who is leaving school, has resigned his place upon "The Patriot" staff. William Lett-meyer and Walter Dunn will be among those who will try to qualify for the position in his place.
Efforts are being made to arrange a game between the high school baseball team and the nine recently formed by the Commercial club. It is hoped to frame a match with the C. C. players for the coming Saturday afternoon.
The monthly teachers' meeting will be held Wednesday night, at which plans will be made for the annual display of pupils' work, to be held May 30 and 31. It is expected that the exhibition this year will be one of the best ever held, and that a representative display of the progress made at the school will be shown. One of the downtown halls will be utilized for the showing.

EGGS AND RHUBARB AT LOWEST PRICES

Portland buyers are paying 17 1/2 cents for eggs these days, which is such a low price that but few offerings are being made. Local poultrymen are selling their eggs wherever they can get 20 cents for them, and are managing to get rid of a reasonable number at local stores, and to consumers in Portland and neighboring towns. But few local eggs are being offered Front street middlemen.
Butter market is holding well, though prices are not high. Supply is just about even with demand, and conditions seem to be settled for sometime to come.

Outside strawberries have dropped to $1.50 and $1.75 a box, with the quality remaining but medium. Local berry growers report that plants are in good shape, and the warm weather of the last day or so is expected to hasten the yield, which gives indications of being heavy.
Demand for celery and asparagus is good, and prices are very fair. There is no market for rhubarb at all, and growers are unloading for as low as a cent and a half a pound.
