Nobody could ever exactly fix the date when the dispute between Joab Warner and Moses Stansell originated, but it was generally concluded that it lasted twenty-nine years before Providence put an end to it. One fall evening, when Delhi consisted of only seven houses and a huckleberry patch, Joab and Moses met at the postoffice, and after a little talk Joab said:

"Moses, I'm told that you've got a tolerable appetite for cider." "Yes, tolerable," admitted Moses.

"You allus lay in a bar'l for winter?" "I surely do." "And what do you put into it to keep it from gettin' bard and twangy?" I allus use a little peppermint." "I've heard you did, and I'm goin' to tell you of a better thing. Put in sassafras instead of peppermint, and you'll have a bar'l of cider equal to champagne. You know how folks cry

It's the sassafras what does it." "Sassafras couldn't beat peppermint," Dr. Mount will deliver a lecture in says Moses as he shakes his head. "But it does beat it all holler," says Joab. "You use it once and you'll be > grateful to me all the rest of your life." "I don't doubt you mean well, Joab, but I shall stick to peppermint."

"I'm givin you sassafras, Moses." "And I'm givin' you peppermint, Jonb. "Waal, I wouldn't give peppermint to a grubby calf!" "And I wouldn't give sassafras to an allin' hog!'

That was the beginning of the dispute. They didn't lay hands on each other, but they felt edgeways, and they selves at first, but after a bit other folks were dragged into it, and a good G. I. Hubbell, of Springfield, Mass., share of the county was divided into

"peppermints" and "sassafrasers." Both disputants were church memers and belonged to the same church, Miss Effie Watts, who is ill at the and the pastor finally called them be-

"'Cause Joab is an idiot," replied "That is not Christian talk."

"Let bim give up, then, and say he's wrong.' "He's the one that's got to give up." "But you will divide the church if you keep this up," warned the pastor. "I'd bate to see it," replied Moses,

"And I will never divide a church if I kin help it." added Joab, "but nobody but a idiot would use peppermint. Sassafras is the thing, parson-sassa-

Then they would go to Moses and but he would shake his head and reply: "It's no use talkin' till Joab lets go because he's pigheaded and wants to of them was saying to the widow: come out on top.'

The thing had been going on for nearly forty years, and Joab and Moses had got to be grandfathers and old men, when they met at the postoffice for the feeble, and as they caught sight of each other Joab called out: "It's that blamed peppermint workin' in your system, and I don't care how soon it takes you off!"

"It's that sassafras in your blood," replied Moses, "and your folks needn't and pitchforks expect me to come to your funeral!" The next day both of them were in bed, and after looking them over the doctor said their time had come to go. They lasted two weeks and died on the same day, but before dying Joah sent word to Moses: "I ain't got no pity for such a critter. If you'd used sassafras you might have lived to be 100 years old."

When Moses received the message he braced up and sent back word: "Nobody wants any pity from you.

Aunt Hannah and lack

By M. QUAD Copyright, 1913, by Associated Lit-erary Press.

You may have read a dozen stories about misers and other folks who mistrusted banks and kent their money in the house to lose it at the hands of robbers, but you have never read of Aunt Hannah Day, though she was just that sort of person. She was a widow and had passed the middle age and had a little farm pear a village where she lived and hired a man to Aunt Hannah wasn't a miser, though she was known to be stingy and to be suspicious of every one that came along. Her first thought toward a stranger was to ask berself if he was after the money, for she kept money in the house. While her husband was still alive a bank had failed on them. and they had lost $1,000. From that date on the woman had looked upon every banker as a robber.

In one way and another Aunt Hannah had got together $3,000 in gold. She had buried it down in the cellar in a fruit far, but she didn't believe she would ever receive a visit from robbers. When people warned her that she was running a great risk she replied

"Oh, la, la! If robbers ever should come I'll make 'em a cup of ginger tea possible, has been given permission and ask them to please go along and not bother an old woman. Robbers have mothers as well as other folks. and when they see my gray hair and wrinkled face they'll think of their own mothers and not harm me."

One day there came toiling up the long hill on whose crest stood Aunt Hannah's rather gloomy house a boy about fourteen years old. He was ragged and hungry. He was a city wait who had left the city behind and was was recently operated upon at the never met without bringing up the tramping. He saw Aunt Hannah in her cucumber patch and opened the Jack came in after the affair was over, and Aunt Hannah tried to embrace him and tell him what nice things she was going to do for him, but his reply was:

"It's me for the road again. I can't stand colic and robbers on the same night, and that blister on your foot is goin' to keep you yellin' at somebody
