WRONG AS TO Speaking before the CLACKASAS conference on the conservation of human life, at the Reed Institute, Professor E. P. Cubberly, of department of education at Leland Stanford university, expressed the opinion that school districts ought to be eliminated, and the county made the unit of control of rural schools.

Prof. Cubberly also suggested that the small school house should be abolished, and educational work concentrated in larger units. This may be so in California, but it is not so in Oregon, and least of all is it so in Clackamas county. The state law here provides that whenever there is sufficient demand, school districts can unite and establish a union high school, and thus fulfill the need for higher education near to and accessible to the rural communities. Clackamas county has several examples of such rural high schools, all of which are doing a great work. As to the small schools they have proved a blessing to the children of this county, enabling many to get an education who otherwise would be barred from early training utterly, or else be forced to leave their homes and go away to school at the very age when home life is most necessary for them.

ONE MAN'S Thomas G. Farrell, camp opinions ner of salmon—that is to say a man who is heavily interested in a canning establishment—writes a letter to The Oregonian in which he declares that commercial fishing on the Willamette is "one of the greatest crimes against conservation." There are many residents of this city who believe the same thing, and who say it in private conversation. But these men do not come out, as does Mr. Farrell, and say it publicly. Most of the local people who are opposed to commercial fishing, and who want the river "closed," are members of the Clackamas County Rod & Gun club, and if they really feel this way about it, it seems to The Enterprise that it should be the action of the club to declare itself officially against commercial fishing.

In speaking of the evils of commercial fishing, Mr. Farrell has the following to say:

"In the Willamette river very early in the spring the Chinook salmon gather in their efforts to surmount the falls and gain their spawning grounds on the upper reaches of the river and its tributaries. These fish are the very cream of the cream of salmon. They are the earliest run of this royal fish. If eggs are desired from which the hatcheries may propagate salmon it is from these fish they should be taken. The first salmon that come in from the ocean are always the best.

"Two days after I visited the falls the market fishermen with their nets were turned loose on this horde of fish—the fish of all fish wanted for propagation. Prior thereto on the rocks and even on the walls of the pulp mills were the location numbers for the set nets which on May 1 would be spread. Through the pools and reaches below the falls would sweep the gill nets. I think I can say without fear of contradiction that in one night the nets would take more fish than would all the anglers combined during an entire season. In four or five days the large or part of this army of salmon are taken and fishing with angling devices or nets is practically at an end. May 2, the gasoline tender from the canning establishment in which I am owner, gathered at Oregon City over 20,000 pounds of these grand fish—but a portion of the night catch. Yes, on my own boat. The fish are being caught and will be sold and I may as well have them, but the taking of any salmon other than with a hook and line, between the falls and the Clackamas Rapids is, to my mind, a crying shame and something that we will all rue some day."

A Woman's "No." "What's the matter?" "She has rejected me again. She says this is final." "Did she say how final?" inquired the older and more experienced man. —Washington Herald.

Bridwell About All In. Al Bridwell is experiencing trouble in getting into condition, and Manager Evers has practically abandoned hope of the veteran being able to fill Tinker's old place at short. Corriden seems to be the boy.

Borton Showing Up Well. Babe Borton's batting has improved so much this year that Jimmy Callahan says the powerful fielding has a death grapple on the Chicago White Sox first base job.

DON'T BE A KICKER

Did you ever realize that the greatest kicker in the world is a jackass? Did it ever dawn on you that this is just as true of THE TWO LEGGED KICKER as of the four legged one? For example, who could be a more perfect jackass than the man who kicks about his own town? The ass kicks because he is built that way, and the man kicks because he is built the same way. The ass usually has something to kick at, but the man often kicks about nothing at all.

Get out of the kicking habit and be a booster. It pays—pays the individual and pays the community. Wouldn't you rather live in a GOOD town than a POOR one? All right, then; help to make your town a good one. Talk it up, arouse the town spirit, GET EVERYBODY TO BOOSTING.

Anybody can kick, but it takes a good man to boost. Be a good citizen! Get the habit!

Extravagance In Household Raises Living Cost

By IDA M. TARBELL, Author

It is disastrous to try to meet extravagance in the home by sending the mother to work. Her wage can never make up what is lost by CAREFUL HOUSEKEEPING.

There are three points in household management which seem to me to be weak in all classes. The first of these is the matter of selection and substitution. Largely because of ignorance of food values certain articles of diet are CONSIDERED INDISPENSABLE whatever their price.

There are few if any articles of food for which SUBSTITUTES cannot be found.

DON'T BUY THE THING WHICH IS LIFTING THE COST OF YOUR LIVING BEYOND YOUR LIMIT—SELECT SOMETHING ELSE. THIS IS MEETING THE COST OF LIVING WITH BRAINS.

The cost of living is kept up, to a degree at least, by IGNORANCE AND CARELESS PURCHASING—the ease with which the seller can put off on the buyer underweight and adulterations.
