THE OTHER SIDE

The Enterprise OF THE MATTER in this issue prints the report of the Live Wires committee that investigated the charges preferred against the county court. This report is published, as was the report of the committee of three that took things in its own hands at the mass meeting last week, as a matter of news in which all citizens of the county should be interested.

Called into the matter by the first committee to see that fair play should be the ruling spirit of the investigation, the gentlemen from the Live Wires had no personal bias in the complaints at hand, and took up each charge with an open mind. The findings of their probe are given in a dignified form, and show a much greater thoroughness than did the superficial and indefinite mounthings of the disgruntled trio who, as this paper has before charged, deliberately organized a protest upon county matters as the initial step in a "frame-up," the object of which was to add strength to their abortive recall movement.

Readers of The Enterprise are urged to read both reports, and then to read them a second time. Each reader is asked to pass judgment in the matter on the evidence submitted in the two sets of findings, and in forming such judgment is asked to take into consideration the form and wording of the two reports. If this is done, The Enterprise believes that most of its readers will agree that this paper has been justified in all that it has said about the committee of three, its methods and its means of attaining its ends; and will conclude that the county officials have in the main fulfilled their oath to the citizens who elected them to office.

BETTER THAN

Young women of "SOCIAL WORK" Gladstone have organized a baseball team. Daily they may be observed at practice on the school grounds, and a healthier and happier set of girls would be hard to find. In their exercise they are re-futing the time-worn charge that "a girl can't throw straight," and are also proving that in baseball, as in other matters, "curves" are primarily a matter in which femininity excels. These Gladstone girls are doing something more than just playing baseball, too; they are learning self reliance, forbearance and rapidity of decision. They are getting general exercise, they are slapping Mrs. Grundy in the face each time they swing a bat, and they are developing true character; for nothing so quickly does away with pettishness as participation in competitive sport.

Some folk do not think the girls ought to play baseball. They fear it will harden them. Probably it will, but only in a beneficial way. Other fault-finders declare that it will cause the young ladies to become "unwomanly." If being "womanly" consists in timidity, lack of power to make quick decision, laxity of muscle and bodily development, and false modesty, probably baseball is making these girls "unwomanly." Probably they don't care to sit around the sewing circle and tear their neighbor's reputations to shreds, probably they take no interest in scandal, probably these young women ball players prefer stories of constructive merit to the writings of "The Duchess." Probably they would rather go out and split wood for a sick woman than lounge by the fire and embroider a pink bib for the ailing woman's baby. And probably as a result they will grow up to be better women, truer to their duties in this world, and better able to become good wives and home-builders.

SMOKE UP!

Wake Up! Get Up Early In the Morning! This town has the natural advantages and can secure new industries if it will only GET A MOVE ON! This town will be a better town if the people spend their money with the Home Merchant. This town will be more prosperous if it Advertises Itself and draws new enterprises here.

Let them see our smoke!

There is a lot more hope in this world for a girl who has the nerve to try and dash home from third, when there are two out and a weak sister at bat, than there is for the girl who stands scoffing off at one side and notes that because the players don't wear half-hats their locks are coming down as a result of the exertions of the game. The baseball girls of Gladstone will amount to something, one of these days, and when they do they will be glad they played baseball in their youth instead of going to pink teas and eating pickles, cake, tea and coffee.

This strenuous lovemaking somehow appealed to Matilda. Perhaps it was what she would have liked to do to Brittrich, the gentleman she could not get, who was only the English and not bassard at her father's court and not at all a proper person to be snubbing a princess. So Matilda sent word to her father that, "sick in health and dolorous in body," she had firmly resolved to marry no man but Duke William.

Too Much Curiosity.

A dangerous operation was being performed upon a woman. Old Dr. A., a quaint German, full of kindly wit and professional enthusiasm, had several younger doctors with him. One of them was administering the ether. He became so interested in the old doctor's work that he withdrew the cone from the patient's nostrils, and she half roused and rose to a sitting posture, looking with wild eyed amazement over the surroundings. It was a critical period, and Dr. A. did not want to be interrupted. "Lay down, dere, woman," he commanded gruffly. "You haf more curiosity as a medical student!"

American Schools Can Compare With Best In the World

By Dr. KIRSCHENSTEINER, Superintendent of Schools in Munich, Bavaria

WE Germans may boast of having given the public school to the world. We, too, may boast of having given it Pestalozzi and Froebel. We may also boast that no people even at this day has so systematized the public schools as we have, but we can NO LONGER STRUT AROUND IN THE TOGA OF TEACHER OF THE WORLD. The American public school system is but fifty years old, whereas the German system looks back upon one hundred and fifty years of existence.

THERE ARE SOME STATES AND SOME CITIES IN THIS YOUNG NATION IN WHICH THERE ARE SCHOOL ORGANIZATIONS AND EDUCATIONAL ACQUIREMENTS THAT CAN COMPARE WITH THE BEST IN THE WORLD AND FROM WHICH WE GERMANS CAN LEARN AS MUCH NOW AS THE AMERICANS ONCE LEARNED FROM US.

The American child has an elementary school course of eight years, as is the case in Germany. It has annually about nine hundred hours of instruction, in its full course about seven thousand two hundred hours. In Bavaria the rural child has about six thousand five hundred hours; the city child (Munich) about eight thousand hours. In the United States the hours of instruction are devoted exclusively to secular instruction, whereas in Germany from one-fifth to one-seventh of the total time is devoted to religious instruction.

STRENUOUS LOVEMAKING.

Duke William Tamed Matilda, and She Got Square on Brittrich. A modern lover who resorted to brute force to win his lady would soon find himself in the street, if not in the police station. But fashions in proposals have changed in a thousand years, and when William the Conqueror set out to make Matilda, daughter of the Count of Flanders, the happiest of maidens he adopted measures that were forcible, to say the least. The New York Sun tells the story of his tempestuous wooing: The suitor Matilda had she did not want, and the man she wished to woo her she could not get. The man she did not want happened to be William, duke of Normandy, and he decided to go to Bruges and conquer Matilda.

There were no national roads through France in those days, and William doubtless had a hard trip. Perhaps Matilda noticed the mud on his clothes when she came out of church and found him waiting for her. At any rate, William descended from his horse, and taking Matilda firmly by the back of the neck, rolled her over and over in the mire of Bruges, planting well directed blows upon her royal face and body with his other hand. Life was elemental a thousand years ago.
