VALIANT THREE Less than a week SHOW DIVISION after the filing of their report on the matter of charges filed against the county court, Messrs. M. J. Brown, R. Schuebel and S. L. Casto seem to have lost that tie of brotherhood that bound them so closely together in the common cause of "frame-up" and disgruntled spleen. Particularly is Mr. Brown getting tired of the voluminous rampage against county officials, and already is he showing signs of "craw-fishing."

The other day in conversation with H. L. Hull, commander of Meade Post, G. A. R.—a conversation in which Sheriff E. T. Mass also took a part—this same Brown expressed his real opinions of the agitation so carefully fostered against Judge Beattie and the county commissioners. "I wish I hadn't gone into the blame thing," said Brown. "But now that I am in it, I suppose I've got to stick."

And with these sentiments Brown is sticking. It must be pleasant to be a pseudo-reformer, and be forced to half-heartedly plug along at the bidding of some gulling hand. The cat that was forced to drag chestnuts out of the fire for the monkey doubtless wished it "hadn't gone into the blame thing," too; but a stronger force kept it busy at its unpleasant task.

Thus squirming unpleasantly in the grip of some stronger power, Brown is doing his level best to exhibit an enthusiasm in the "frame-up," and is making a mighty poor job of it. His heart isn't in it, and he is beginning

GETTING UP STEAM

Do you know what we need in booming this town? WE NEED STEAM.

We should organize all the men into a GREAT ENGINE OF PROGRESS and then get enough steam in our boilers to make the thing go.

The locomotive has transformed the world, has plowed the wilderness, built great cities, carried civilization to the ends of the earth, made truth boom all around the planet.

It has done these things because it has POWER, because it MOVES. It is an iron and steel harness placed on the force of steam. It is organized to go in definite directions and perform definite tasks.

We need to HARNESS HUMAN STEAM, to give it the same definite directions and tasks to perform.

To build a human engine that will pull this town up the road of progress we must all work together. We must organize so that each man will have his allotted part of the load; then we must get up the steam of energy, pull open the throttle and move things.

Too-oot! All aboard the boosting train! Now, all together! Pull for new people, new business!

American Novelists Afraid They Don't Know Enough

By SAMUEL HOPKINS ADAMS, Novelist

OUR writers have learned how to use their tools. They are HANDY, as the Yankees say. They are craftsmen. They know their trade, and when they begin to apply their technical knowledge to big things we will have American novels that will be as good as our short stories are now. If the men now living don't do it then the MEN WHO COME AFTER THEM WILL DO IT.

I BELIEVE WE ARE AFRAID—AFRAID THAT WE DON'T KNOW ENOUGH. THE FIELD IS SO VAST AND THE MATERIAL SO SCATTERED THAT THE BRAVEST GOOD MEN HESITATE TO PLUNGE INTO THE MASS OF STUFF.

You see, we are living closer to our materials than did the novelists of the past days. We are nearer the remote social factors than the great English novelists were. They wrote of what they heard, and we have such facilities that to keep our consciences right WE MUST WRITE ONLY OF WHAT WE SEE.

And that's a good thing to do. One of the worst things that can happen is the formation of a "literary class"—the class of writers who think they are writing about things when they are really only WRITING ABOUT THE SHADOW OF THINGS. The writer of today has probably a wider circle of acquaintances than any writer in history (unless we except the ancient Greeks), and it takes a pretty brash person to sit down and write a novel about a thing that he does not know thoroughly.
