MAYBE YES, AND

Councilman Tooze THEN MAYBE NO chairman of the pure water committee of the city council, in reporting before that body this week, said that it was the intention of the investigating board to make a report upon the several water sources found to be available, and then place the matter in the hands of the people for final decision. The people have to drink the water, and they have to pay for its procurement, argued Mr. Tooze, so they should have the final say as to whether they would drink river water, artesian well water from the Ladd tract, or water piped in from Canby.

At first glance this seems reasonable enough. But as it also seems likely that there is to be a choice of three sources, it might be unwise to submit the matter to popular vote for decision. It might be better to employ experts to analyze the three sources, and then to have the council select the source that seemed the best under scientific investigation. If the people do not approve this decision, there will be ample opportunity for protest.

Were the matter submitted to popular vote, it is not at all impossible that the majority might vote for a continued use of river water. Once an epidemic of sickness has passed, people are quick to forget the dangers that lurk in such a supply, and the estimated cost of the other sources might force the majority to favor a foolish economy. On the other hand, with the matter submitted to popular vote, personal inclination and preference might enter so largely into the choice between the artesian water and the Canby water that the scientifically purer might not be selected.

Drinking water is something that ought not to be mixed up with politics, personal preference or any other uncertain factor. Oregon City needs the best water that it can get—and it does every other community—and in selecting its supply it will be safer to abide by the verdict of scientists and experts than it will to accept the will of the majority. All people will, of course, want the best water—but what may seem best to them may not be actually the best from a chemical or sanitary point of view. The council is to be trusted in this water matter, and should select the source of supply, making its selection solely upon the grounds of purity. There is no economy in using water that may be tainted, or the supply of which may give out.

ANOTHER BRIGHT A correspondent writes us that the establishment of a "ladies improvement club" in the neighborhood has had several unexpected and beneficial effects. "Some of the members' husbands acknowledge a decided improvement in their wives' dispositions," says the correspondent. This is really not so strange as it might at first seem. Presumably this "ladies improvement club" is concerning itself with community problems, and is thus affording the women a chance to investigate faults and problems of their home town. This gives them an insight into matters which heretofore have been dark mysteries, and with understanding has probably come both a determination to better things and a forgiveness for the men for allowing bygone conditions to exist. Hence it has been observed that their dispositions have improved.

Where heretofore hubby has come home half an hour late for dinner, and has tracked mud all over the kitchen floor, later to be taken to task for his carelessness; in the future on such occasions he may expect to be greeted with smiles and: "I know it isn't your fault, dear. The condition of the streets is shocking, but that is because you men haven't known how to better them. We women of the improvement club are going to start a movement to till the roads, and after that is done the surface water will drain off, and you can get home early every night."

Here's hoping that the "ladies improvement club" keeps up the good work, and that it betters both local conditions and local dispositions. If the women make the town a model one, and if they improve their own dispositions by removing causes of worry and discord, there will be no excuse for the men to fail to improve—and pretty soon the place will be a veritable Heaven on earth. And as its fame spreads new settlers will rush in, and so the future of the community be assured.

"Bunkered!"

When a golf player is "BUNKERED" he is "UP AGAINST IT" and "IN BAD," to use the slang of the day.

Local merchants are "BUNKERED" when you fail to patronize them and send your money out of town to mail order houses.

The town itself is "BUNKERED" when it does not hustle for new industries and support a live Board of Trade.

ELEVATOR—OREGON CITY, ORE. Notice is hereby given, that sealed proposals will be received by the undersigned Elevator Committee of the council of Oregon City, Oregon, up to 4 o'clock p. m., Wednesday, June 4th, 1913, at the office of the City Recorder of Oregon City, for the labor and materials for one hydraulic elevator, lower, bridge and waiting room to be built at Seventh street as per location plans on file in the office of the Elevator Committee.

The bidders will each submit with his proposal detailed plans and specifications, which, however, must be in accordance with the general requirements as covered by this advertisement.

The elevator must be of the hydraulic type—with a platform 6 feet by 7 feet and must be guaranteed to carry a load of 3900 pounds at a speed of 400 feet per minute. A 5-inch water main will be brought to the base of the tower by the City of Oregon City and a six-inch sewer connection will also be brought to the base of the tower by the city. From this point the contractor must supply everything required to install complete ready for use, the elevator in every particular.

The tower must be of steel suitable in every way to support the elevator, must be designed against wind stresses and must be painted two coats of best graphite paint. The bridge must be of steel and entirely enclosed on sides and top with suitable protected openings for ventilation.

A waiting room at the base must be provided and the openings into the shaft at the top and at the bottom must be protected with metal doors. The cab of the elevator must be entirely weatherproof and provided with another door. The sheaves and supports must be protected against the weather. Protection must be afforded the elevator cylinder against freezing.

Provision must be made for lighting waiting room, car and bridge, also for heating waiting room.

Also bids for a subway under railroad track and tower up the bluff at same location which must also be accompanied with detailed plans and specifications.

All bids must be accompanied by a certified check of $1000, payable to Oregon City, Oregon, which sum shall be forfeited in case the bidder to whom the award is made shall

Our Educational System Must Include Vocational Training

By President SIDNEY E. MEZES of the University of Texas

THE industrial revolution, the rise of machine industries, big business in its various manifestations, have GREATLY DISTURBED OUR OLD EDUCATIONAL IDEALS.

Now we are brought face to face with the growing belief that educational institutions, particularly those that derive their opportunity from a tax on all the people, must FIT MEN AND WOMEN FOR SPECIFIC VOCATIONS and must also render back to the people direct and immediate service.

WHETHER WILLING OR UNWILLING THE UNIVERSITIES OF THIS COUNTRY MUST ASSUME THEIR SHARE OF RESPONSIBILITY FOR VOCATIONAL EFFICIENCY BY EXTENDING OUR EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM SO THAT IT WILL INCLUDE TRAINING FOR ALL THE IMPORTANT VOCATIONS.
