CITY OFFICIAL NEWSPAPER

May 27 In American History.

1813—General Henry Dearborn, with a force of 4,000 Americans, stormed and captured Fort George, Canada. The British garrison lost nearly 1,000 in killed, wounded and prisoners.

1819—Julia Ward Howe, poet, lecturer and philanthropist, born; died 1910. 1863—Federal assault on the fortified lines of the Confederate army at Port Hudson failed. The assaults lost 2,000 men.

1890—Southern Illinois and eastern Missouri devastated by a tornado.

ASTRONOMICAL EVENTS.

Evening star: Saturn. Morning stars: Venus, Jupiter, Mercury, Mars. The seven bright stars overhead forming the Big Dipper or constellation Ursa Major.

WORDS OF Mayor Cross, of Gladstone, has the interests of his city at heart. This is a mere statement of fact. He does not believe in running his community into debt, if it can be avoided.

"I am strongly inclined to believe that the best protection against fire is a modest insurance policy," said Gladstone's mayor.

Coming at this time, the words of Gladstone's executive are more than usually apropos. The muck-raking magazines, and some others, as well as the newspapers, have recently deluged the public with accounts of frauds perpetrated in the East.

Heart to Heart Talks

By JAMES A. EDGERTON

IN HIS NAME. Is it possible to live the Christ life in everyday affairs?

Is it possible to follow the spirit of Christ's teachings in business and politics, in the home and in the club?

Are they impractical, or are we yet too crude, ignorant and savage to apply them?

Perhaps the hardest of his commands for men to obey is that concerning nonresistance. Yet have we not progressed far enough toward its realization to conceive that in some happier and more civilized age to come it will be followed literally?

His name is stamped all over our civilization. Why, then, do we not conform our lives to his pattern? Why do we not have the peace he prophesied? Why do we not practice the healing he practiced and commanded us to practice?

We have made great progress toward the realization of his ideals and are still making progress. Yet we have had nineteen hundred years in which to do it. Why is our advance so slow? "Ye cannot serve God and Mammon."

What have we to say to that? What has Wall Street to say to it? What has big business to say? "Love thy neighbor as thyself."

Do we love our neighbors as ourselves? Do we realize that all men with whom we come in contact are at that moment our neighbors? "Greater things than these shall ye do."

Are we doing greater things? Are we even remotely approximating toward doing things as great?

In a material way perhaps we are, but he did not talk about material things, but rather about moral and spiritual things.

We go forward in his name, but if we fail to do his commandments are we not guilty of hypocrisy?

Must religion forever be a thing of form and not of fact, of seeming and not of substance?

This is not an arraignment of anybody. It is an attempt at a little heart searching. The implied criticism is as much of myself as of any one else.

Is Christendom true to him whose name it wears? If not, is it not time for us seriously to ask ourselves why? And—

Is it not true that we individually and in the mass sought to conform more nearly to his standards.

Dreaming. The cause of failure with most men is dreaming what they might have been.—Judge.

The Superiority of Electric Toast to the charred, or brittle, or soggy kind made in the tedious old-fashioned way, is relatively the same as the superiority of griddled steak to fried steak.

For one-tenth of a cent a slice the General Electric Radiant Toaster makes Perfect Toast faster than you can eat it. It is Perfect Toast because the radiant heat forces the necessary chemical change in the bread. This insures delicious golden Toast that fairly melts in your mouth.

You can operate the General Electric Radiant Toaster on the finest damask table cloth. Its neat porcelain base and cheerful glowing coils add grace and charm to any table.

This little toaster is on display at our store in the Beaver Building on Main Street.
