MODERN NAVY THUNDERS TRIBUTE

New York is Scene of Unveiling of National Memorial to Crew of
First Battleship of White
Squadron

NEW YORK, May 30.—With a grand naval and military parade, with teeming crowds, and in the presence of a distinguished company, the National Maine monument, erected by popular subscription in honor of the United States sailors who met death in the explosion of the battleship Maine in Havana harbor just prior to the Spanish-American war, was unveiled this afternoon in Columbus Circle, at the southwest entrance to Central park. It was a gala in the city. The Stars and Stripes floated from thousands of business houses and private residences. Fifth avenue was lined with spectators, who cheered enthusiastically the 5,000 blue-jackets from the Florida, North Dakota, South Carolina, New Hampshire, Virginia, New Jersey and half a dozen other of the great dreadnoughts detailed by the navy department to attend the unveiling.

The unveiling ceremonies were of an impressive character, beginning with an invocation by Father Chadwick, who was chaplain of the ill-fated battleship. Other leading participants in the programme were Secretary of the Navy Daniels, Rear Admiral Badger, commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet, Governor Haines of Maine, Governor Sulzer of New York, and Mayor Gaynor of New York City. The actual unveiling was performed by Frederick D. Owen of the department of public buildings and grounds in Washington. At the conclusion of the ceremonies Father Chadwick deposited a handsome wreath at the base of the memorial in behalf of the United States government. Similar floral offerings were presented by Governor Haines for the state of Maine and Governor Sulzer for the state of New York.

The principal part of the monument proper consists of a pylon 18 1/2 x 21 feet, and 40 feet high, with panels on its four faces. It is flanked by two colossal figures, representing the Atlantic and the Pacific oceans, suggestive of the national scope of the memorial. The Atlantic is typified by a young man in the fullness of his strength, the Pacific by an old man half slumbering. The figures standing would be over fourteen feet high.

At the foot of the shaft and facing the circle is a group of sculpture antebellum in idea—Courage awaiting the flight of Peace, while Fortitude supports the feeble. These are figures nearly twice actual life-size. About the group is the following inscription: "To the valiant seamen who perished in the Maine—by fate unwarmed, in death unafraid." The corresponding group on the side facing the park is post-bellum in motif—Justice, having intrusted her sword to the Genius of War, receives it again at his hands, while History records its deeds. The inscription over this group reads as follows: "To the freemen who died in the war with Spain that others might be free."

The pylon is crowned by a group representing Columbia triumphant, drawn in a sea car by three plugging horses. This group is a bronze, cast from guns recovered from the sunken Maine, and is heavily gilded. The group is seventeen feet high, making the monument fifty-seven feet in height. All the other sculptures are of Knoxville marble. In panels on the lateral faces of the shaft are inscribed the names of those to whom the monument is dedicated.

"Oh!" Exclaims Mrs. Marshall.
"Beauty!" Says Miss Harriman

Photos copyright, 1913, by American Press Association.

MRS. THOMAS E. MARSHALL, wife of the vice president of the United States, was an interested spectator at the recent annual horse show in Washington. This snapshot proves it. Mrs. Marshall was caught just as she started to exclaim at some particularly interesting bit of horsemanship. She is an ardent horsewoman herself when she finds time to ride. She's up on many of the fine points of horsemanship and can tell at a quick glance whether the judges are going to have a hard time rendering a decision or not. Mrs. Marshall was sitting in the box with a friend when this was taken. Another interested spectator was Miss Harriman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Borden Harriman of New York. This young society bud is shown here petting one of the horses in the stalls.

LONG WAR OVER, TREATY IS SIGNED

LONDON, May 30.—The eight months' war between Turkey and the allied Balkan states is ended. The "peace of London" was signed today in the picture gallery of St. James palace.

The only dramatic feature of the historic occasion was M. Popovitch's expression of keen disappointment that Montenegro had "been despoiled of her just share of the spoils of a triumphant war," and the hope that "England, which took the lead in the spoliation," would take every step to compensate Montenegro for her sacrifice.

ROOM FOR MORE MADE UPON BOATS

Reservations for the special commercial club excursion to Portland on Monday, June 7, the opening day of the Rose Festival, have been entirely taken up. So many additional requests have been received from members who wanted to go, however, that Friday the Live Wires committee that chartered the two steamers took the matter up with the United States steamboat inspectors at Portland, and after learning the exact nature of the trip, the inspectors gave their sanction for an increase of the carrying capacity of the steamers. Eighty more passengers may now be accommodated, making a total of 280 passengers that will be carried by the two boats. The extra 80 reservations, it is believed, will be eagerly taken up, and all desirous of obtaining tickets out of this additional number should make prompt application to E. E. Brodie, secretary of the reservations committee. The two steamers will leave Oregon City at 8 a. m. June 7, will take part in the water parade at Portland in honor of the arrival of Rex Oregonus, and will return early in the afternoon. Coffee and sandwiches will be served on the trip.

NEW FIGHT UPON VICE IS STARTED

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 30.—The Wallace-Fosseen law, enacted by the Minnesota legislature with a view to suppressing disorderly and gambling resorts by preventing the use of property for improper purposes, came into effect today. The law has several unique features. Under the provisions any citizen may bring a civil action to abate a nuisance, the resorts being classed as nuisances. Any attorney may prosecute the action, which will be brought in the name of the state.

If the court finds that the charges are true an order will be issued closing the property for one year, confiscating the household goods in the

TAXATION GAIN IS STAKE IN RACE

By Filing Election Notices Saturday
River Town Gains Two-day
Lead on Those Who Would Consolidate

There is a race for territory between Willamette, which is already incorporated, and the soon-to-be consolidated and incorporated communities on the west side of the river, including West Oregon City, Bolton, Sunset and Willamette Heights. Lying between the two communities is a strip of school district, which includes certain mill property; and because this mill property is valuable for taxation, and also because the Oregon law provides that no incorporated city can extend into two school districts.

Late Friday night Willamette stole a march upon its competitors, and decided to annex about two-fifths of this school district, and to do it at once. The law provides that four weeks notice must be given of an election in such matters, and the Willamette folk got their election notices posted shortly before midnight so that they will be able to hold their election June 28. It took some rustling to get the notices printed and posted, and to make arrangements for otherwise complying with the publicity that must be given the matter. But it was successfully done, and now Willamette is chuckling and feeling quite happy.

Its citizens believe that they have stolen a march on the rival claimants of the much-desired strip of property. Their election calls for its annexation to Willamette, and there are many reasons to believe that the election will carry by a heavy vote. No matter how much the other communities hustle now, they cannot hold their election before June 29, and as that date comes on Sunday, they cannot hold it before June 30. This gives Willamette two days lead, and Willamette is sure that it has the victory already won.

About two-fifths of the school district will be embraced in the annexation. This will mean, also, that about two-fifths of the mill property will be included, and taxation on this will be yielded to Willamette instead of to the new incorporated city that is soon to form on the west side. Just how much taxation this will amount to in dollars and cents has not yet been figured out, but whatever the amount is, it will be that much less available for the new incorporation.

MEMORIAL DAY FITTINGLY OBSERVED BY GRAND ARMY FOLK AND OTHERS

Memorial Day was observed in Oregon City by the general suspension of business, by picnics and outings, and by the solemn services of Meads Post, G. A. R., and its allied organizations. The day was perfect in every way, and the warm air and bracing breeze made it ideal as a holiday.

Throughout the day the city was crowded with visitors, many of whom were attracted by the scenic grandeur of the falls, which, because of the exceptionally high water, are now at their best.

The typical celebration of the day commenced early in the morning, when local veterans gathered for their exercises. Each of the old soldiers wore his medals, the buttons on every uniform had been freshly polished, and the hands that had through the years of the war carried muskets or swords bore instead tokens of peace—pretty bouquets of wild flowers. The post and relief corps assembled on Main street, and escorted by Company G, Oregon National Guard, marched to Willamette hall.

There, led by the famous Oregon Veteran fire and drum corps, came also the children from Eastham and Barclay schools and from McLoughlin institute.

Patriotic exercises were held, and the veterans and children were addressed by Rev. Father Hillebrand, City School Superintendent, Toosa and Comrade H. S. Clyde, patriotic instructor of the post. Following this the column moved to the suspension bridge, where flowers were strewn upon the Willamette in honor of the sailor dead. The veterans and escort then marched to Shively's hall, where the main exercises of the day were held. On the line of march hundreds of people, waving American flags, waved to the passing squadron of soldiers, who were in command of H. L. Hull, commander of the post, and J. Doremus, officer of the day. The program at the hall was as follows:
