The Almighty Dollar With a Hole In It

We all like to think that our own dollar is sound and worth 100 cents. If some one tries to pass us a dollar with a hole in it, or one plugged with lead, we make an emphatic protest.

And yet some of us go along, day by day, letting each of our dollars buy us an average of about 70c. apiece.

MARVELS OF PHOTOGRAPHY.

How Creatures Invisible to the Eye Are Shown as Monsters.

Photographing the invisible sounds like a misnomer, but correct to say invisible by the unaided eve. This complex and valuable science is revealing wonders in the excessively minute, and myriad objects, animate and inanimate, are brought to view whose existence has all along been unknown.

Two methods of illuminating the objects are in use strong light is pass-Mrs. J. W. These solid particles can be placed on glass slides or floated in transparent liquids, as a drop of water be tween two very thin glasses. Pinch the glasses close together; there is no danger of killing the smaller kinds of animals, such as bacteria and microbes. They have plenty of room in a film of water so thin as to be beyond imagination

The magnifying lenses for expansion of images of these minute objects require the most consummate skill in manufacture, the microcamera likewise, and the two combined are triumphs of human genius. The finished products, the perfected pictures, are highly educational. The word "affectionate" is an instance of how meanings change, for an affectionate person was originally the reverse of agreeable, the word meaning passionate or willful. ## TIMID GIRL

By JOHN B. OVERAKER

Nellie was her name, though if she had been born in New England when they were naming children for the hu- | boats. man virtues they would have called her Modesty. Timidity would have also described her, for she appeared to be afraid of her shadow. She was a typewriter in my private bank out in the western town of B. My institution was a small one, and I required but a small force. There was one teller, who paid and received; also a bookkeeper, a boy and my typewriter. One day a party of robbers rode into an adjoining town, pulled up at the bank, shot the cashier dead, emptied the loose currency into bags and galloped away, all within seven minutes. Their leader was known to be a desperate youngster called Kid Malone, scarcely twenty-two years old.

When Kid Malone a few days later rode into another town and robbed another bank with only one man to assist him and in less time than before, it occurred to me that I had better be taking measures to prepare for an attack on my own institution. I called my little force together for consultation. The cashier proposed that a revolver be so fixed in the door of my private office that I could fire it immediately on the appearance of a robber and another be similarly fixed to his window. The bookkeeper should also be armed. Bob, the boy, said he intended to arm himself with hand grenades. When it came Nellie's turn to make suggestions she said she couldn't think of anything. In case a robber came she would duck under her typewriter table. But after a number of propositions, none of which seemed to be practical, she gathered her wits and surprised us all by a very sensible proposition.

"These preparations to fight desperate men frighten me. It seems to me that they should rather be met by artifice. Until this scare is over how would it do to conceal the cash in something that could be easily removed? I know you'll think it ridiculous, but I have an idea that I think I could work myself if I could only keep enough courage. How would it do to have a baby carriage standing near the back door with a lot of little pillows and blankets and quilts in it, just as though there was a baby asleep, and under the covering to keep the cash during banking hours? Then if this Kid Malone comes to rob the bank I can shrick, run to the baby carriage and wheel it away."

"That's an idea worth considering," said L

She didn't wait for robbers to reach the bank. She ran for the baby carriage, and both she and it disappeared. I heard the riding party carry their supply of water about with stop before the bank and sat still, intending to submit to a robbery of what few bills there were on the counters. The teller crouched down below his window, the bookkeeper ducked under his desk, and, as for Bob, he followed Nellie out through the back door.

I waited every minute expecting to see armed men come in through the front door, but nobody came. Then I heard the horses without trot away. was wondering what it all meant when Bob came in and cried:

"Stung!" He had been running and was out of breath. When he recovered he said that Nellie had gone from the back around to the front door, where one of the party of riders had beloed her on to a horse, while another had taken the contents of the baby carriage under his arm, and, mounting, the party had ridden out of town

I could not believe the story and hur ried out to the street, where I saw the baby carriage standing on the side walk A crowd was gathering, several of whom assured me that they had seen my typewriter riding away beside a man whom they recognized for Kid

Malone. I went back into the bank and told my force to keep their mouths shut. I was not entirely broken up by the loss, though I was badly crippled. Fortunately we kept only enough cash in the bank to get on with, the rest being hidden in my home.

POCKETS VERSUS HAND BAGS.

Real Reason of the Subjection of Wo man to Man. Civilized man finds it difficult to make his way through life without a dozen pockets. The ordinary walking suit has fifteen. Civilized woman makes her way through life without pockets, depending on a single bag carried in the hand. The professional humorists have never tired of commenting on woman's pocketless condition, but it is really no laughing mat-

Here is a sex difference which is something more than fashion, which goes to the very heart of the subject tion of woman to man. If we accept Spencer's definition of the evolutionary process as consisting in progress from an indefinite homegeneity to a definite heterogeneity the superior position of man is at once established. His fifteen diversified pockets, each allocated to a separate use-watch, cigar case, pocketknife, purse, newspaper and package of garden seeds-need only be contrasted with the single reticule in which the female of the species stores away an unco-ordinated mass of handkerchiefs, tollet articles. car fare, press clippings, telephone addresses, dress goods samples, confectionery, memoranda and tradesmen's bills that have long been settled by

Strong in his pockets, man walks the earth free in the play of his upper limbs, whereas woman sacrifices the use of her right arm before venturing out in a world of street cars, motorcars, moving staircases, elevators and ticket booths.-New York Post.
