

WELL KNOWN BOYS' SCHOOL TO REOPEN

Bishop Scott Grammar School for boys will be reopened in September, on the new site near Yamhill, formerly known as North Yamhill. The new home of the school consists of one hundred acres of rich land near the head of a little valley looking out on the valley of the North Yamhill. There are a number of substantial buildings on the property, and in addition to these the school board will erect a new building for school and dormitory purposes.

This school was founded by the late Bishop Morris in the year 1870, at Nineteenth and Couch streets, Portland. Nine years ago it was found necessary to close the school for financial reasons, but since that time the lots have increased in value, and now bring in a good income on a ground rent basis.

The Yamhill county farm was bought three or four years ago, Springs on the place supply pure water. The school has its own electric light plant, modern plumbing is being installed, sanitation will receive strict attention, and adequate provision will be made for heating. The school will aim to give a thorough grammar school education at very moderate cost. It is to be a practical home school, under moral and religious influences, where every boy, whatever his means or his social position, will be on the same basis as every other.

"UPLIFT" EFFORTS PLANNED LOCALLY

Attractions of the Portland Rose Festival lured many who otherwise might have attended the brotherhood supper in Woodmen of the World hall Tuesday evening to hear the Rev. J. S. McGaw, field secretary of the World's Second Christian Citizenship conference tell of the aims and plans of the big gathering in Portland. As it was, however, there were many who enjoyed the fare provided, and who joined in the musical program that opened the meeting.

After the inner man had been cared for Mr. McGaw told of the scope of the movement that he represents, and a start was made in laying plans to arouse local enthusiasm in the gathering. Local workers along a similar line of endeavor also spoke, and the evening was one of general interest to those that attended. Further meetings to build up local interest in the matter will be held after the Rose Festival has ended, when it is expected that there will be a larger attendance.

"COUNTY FAIR" SHOW SURE SOME COMEDY

The local talent entertainment, "Clackamas County Fair," to be given in Shively's hall for the benefit of the Episcopal schurch will be the finest and most interesting entertainment ever given in Oregon City. This will be a real county fair with pumpkins, potatoes and cabbage on display and real bicycle races, horse races and pig races. Plenty of fakers will be there with their gold bricks and side shows. A real wild man and fat lady, in fact there will be attractions finer and greater than anything ever before seen in Clackamas county.

Advertisements have been sent to all the neighboring towns and counties and it is likely there will be an unusual crowd in attendance. At any rate Jake Sprucey and his wife have sent word they will be on hand and as they are related to half the people of Clackamas county the Sprucey family will likely have a reunion right in the fair grounds. Parson Briggs will be out to look after his flock and keep them away from the temptations which are bound to lie in their paths on an occasion of this kind.

Furniture dealer Bush has offered a plush parlor suit to any couple in Clackamas county willing to have the knot tied at the annual county fair, so far there has been no volunteers, but it is hoped that some buxom couple will take courage when the time comes. It has been rumored too that our president and other members of Washington's diplomacy will be there, but this may be an exaggeration.

WIDOWS IN MADAGASCAR. Their First Year of Mourning One of Abuse and Misery.

There are no gay widows in Madagascar—not at least, for one year after the husband has died. In Madagascar, on the death of any man of position, on the day of the funeral the wife is placed in the house, dressed in all her best clothes and wearing her silver ornaments, of which in general she possesses a considerable quantity. There she remains until the rest of the house have returned from the funeral.

As soon as her relatives return they begin to revile her in most abusive language and tell her that it is her fault that she has been stronger than her husband and that she is really the cause of his death. They proceed to tear the ornaments from her ears and neck and arms and give her a coarse cloth and a spoon with a broken handle and a dish with the foot broken off. Her hair is disheveled, and she is covered with a coarse mat, under which she remains all day long and can only leave at night. And she may not speak to any one who goes into the house. Neither is she allowed to wash her face or hands, but only the tips of her fingers.

All this the Madagascar widow endures for a year, or at least for eight months, and even when this is over her time for mourning is not ended for a considerable period.

The last straw consists of the fact that she is not allowed to go home to her own relatives until she has been first divorced by her husband's family. —Chicago Tribune.

Obeying the Law.

A small town in Mississippi passed a law that no wheelbarrows should be allowed on the sidewalks in the business portion of the city. Soon after the law was passed one Saturday, which is the busiest day of the week, while the streets were crowded, a negro came along the main street trundling a wheelbarrow filled with groceries. The city marshal stopped him, telling him he was under arrest for pushing his wheelbarrow on the street. The negro looked at the officer for a moment, and then, picking up his little girl, who was walking by his side, he placed her upon the top of the groceries and, turning to the officer, said: "Go on, white man. Dis here ain't no wheelbarrow. Dis is a baby carriage." —New York Times.

With and at a Will.

A drill sergeant was drilling the recruit squad in the use of the rifle. Everything went smoothly until blank cartridges were distributed. The recruits were instructed to load their pieces and stand at the "ready," and then the sergeant gave the command: "Fire at will!"

Private Dunn was puzzled. He lowered his gun.

"Which one is Will?" he asked. —New York Post.

SALMON ROMP OVER FALLS IN MAD RUSH

run has already made its way to the upper river. The wardens have done good work this year, and the steady patrol has given the fish a chance to get to spawning grounds without being blocked by nets, as was formerly the case. I believe, however, that it would be still better for the preservation of the salmon if the dead-lift for nets was put still further back.

Others who are interested in the fish question, and who have been worried by the large number of salmon which this year had wounded or killed themselves in dashing against the rocks, saw not only a menace to the fish in this, but also a menace to consumers of the canned product. They believed that some rigid form of inspection ought to be instituted at the canneries, so that salmon that had been dead before being removed from the water would not be packed. Intimation was also made that too many "black" salmon were getting to the canneries, and that such shipments ought to be forbidden.

With the changes of the ladder, and with the fish now going through, it is not believed that any more trouble will result.
