CITY OFFICIAL NEWSPAPER

PLAY AND LEARNING The approaching opening of the teachers' summer school at Gladstone park, and the initiation therewith of a new plan for bettering the teaching staffs of the county schools, is being looked forward to with interest, both by those directly concerned, and by those who take a more or less general interest in educational work. The idea of a summer school, with its outdoor life and its recreation, is so different from the usual teachers' institute, with its crowded hours of lectures and discussion, that practically a new world is being opened up for the instructors.

Probably the new method will be found of great benefit. All work and no play makes teachers, as well as the proverbial Jack, dull; and the utility of the usual teachers' institute is of doubtful quality, both because too much work is attempted in a limited time, and because it is usually held at the end of the school year, when the instructors are fagged out with the hard labor of driving basic facts of learning into the heads of youngsters, who want to learn, but who do not know how to grasp the subjects forced upon them. With the teachers' meeting, instead, in one of the most picturesque spots in Oregon, with three weeks in which to assimilate the subjects of their course. It is not to be doubted for a moment that much greater benefits will result.

The very fact that their life during the three weeks will be widely different from their life during the school term will be a relief to the tired minds and bodies. Outdoor camping will come as a health-giver to all of them, and as a mind clarifier and bracer as well. There will be a natural spirit of rest and recreation in the meeting, that will stimulate the instructors in their own work, and will make for the best results from the gathering. There will be games and sports intermingled with the more serious work of the time, and this will afford a relief just when it should come to the more serious hours. In short the scheme is ideal—for the teachers.

And, incidentally, it will raise a question in the minds of all that will bear considerable mulling over. The teachers will find that their "school" is much easier and more interesting because of the way in which it is held; and quite naturally the thought will occur to many as to whether or not some similar plan may be incorporated in the regular school life that belongs to the pupils. Teachers will realize that they can assimilate a great deal more at Gladstone than they could at any institute, and the best of them—the thinkers—will try and devise some plan whereby the school term may be made easier for the pupils.

This meeting at Gladstone will do more than benefit the teachers, it is safe to prophesy. It will make them eager to find some new way to better school work, some way to adopt the "vocational school" idea in still a wider sense, and to make school life bearable for all concerned. It will suggest to them the possibility of holding school sessions out of doors, of incorporating in school picnics and gatherings the study of nature subjects, of physics, of geography, and such other subjects as can be more readily applied outside the school room than within its four walls. And if enough of the teachers get to thinking about this, and talk about it enough, there will come a change in Clackamas county schools that will make them still more advanced than they are today.

This is one of the reasons why the teachers' summer school, held in the open, will be a great thing for the county and the state. It will be an object lesson to the teachers themselves of the difference between cramming a subject in a hurry within four walls, and studying it at greater leisure outside. They will find that they can study more, study better, and get greater results in the same length of time, and they will want their pupils later to have similar advantages. Of course they will realize that regular school cannot be held in such places as Gladstone park; but they will also be led to think how the dull monotony of school life can be varied, how helpful recreation can be combined with unconscious study—and the result will be that we will have a change

Teachers Fail to Teach Children Respect For Law

By MAY IDA SPENCE, Educator, of New York

TEACHERS of dauntless courage and of self sacrifice are much needed, who will insist constantly and vigorously on certain needs; on the need for the CULTIVATION OF THE INTELLECTUAL VIRTUES not the least among the number, for they are essential to the well developed womanly character.

LAW ABIDINGNESS is one of the most important of social habits to acquire. When Miss Jane Addams was asked some years ago, "What is the matter with Chicago?" she promptly replied that the great fault of the people of that city was their disrespect of the law, and she added that "there is a sort of GOOD NATURED, HAPPY-GO-LUCKY EVASION ON THE ONE SIDE AND TOLERATION ON THE OTHER, both among the more educated and intelligent citizens and among the poor and ignorant classes, when all of them ought to stand up for the laws and not only obey them, but see that others obey them also."

I REMEMBER AN EDITORIAL IN WHICH IT WAS AFFIRMED THAT LAWLESSNESS SEEMED TO BE A CHARACTERISTIC AMERICAN TRAIT—NOT INTENTIONAL WARFARE ON SOCIETY, BUT JUST GOOD NATURED CONTEMPT FOR LAWS WHICH DO NOT SUIT INDIVIDUAL TASTE OR CONVENIENCE. YET WE ALL WANT THESE LAWS ENFORCED AGAINST SOMEBODY ELSE WHEN HIS OFFENSES ANNOY US. THE TEACHERS IN OUR SCHOOLS FAIL TO TEACH SUFFICIENT REVERENCE FOR LAW, AND THE HOMES FAIL TO INDUCTATE IT.

for the better in our school system, and that the lead now held in the state by Clackamas county will be increased in scholastic affairs, and that Clackamas county's schools will become models for the rest of the world to follow.

The Superiority of Electric Toast to the charred, or brittle, or soggy kind made in the tedious old-fashioned way, is relatively the same as the superiority of grilled steak to fried steak.

For one-tenth of a cent a slice the General Electric Radiant Toaster makes Perfect Toast faster than you can eat it. It is Perfect Toast because the radiant heat forces the necessary chemical change in the bread. This insures delicious golden Toast that fairly melts in your mouth.

You can operate the General Electric Radiant Toaster on the finest damask table cloth. Its neat porcelain base and cheerful glowing coils add grace and charm to any table.

This little toaster is on display at our store in the Beaver Building on Main Street.
