VALLEY TAVERN BOSS INDICTED

"LAST OF ROAD HOUSES" NOW
DOOMED BY GRAND JURY
INDICTMENT

GOVERNOR WEST HAD EYE ON PLACE

Erickson's Place, Which Has Been
Mecca of Portland Joy-Riders for Months, is Hit By Authorities

What is generally referred to as "the last of the Portland road-houses" is now believed to be doomed, following the indictment and arrest of its proprietor, August Erickson. The Clackamas county grand jury, which has been investigating the place known as "The Clackamas Tavern" for some days, based its indictment upon the new state law, passed by the last session of the legislature, which prohibits the sale of liquor outside of incorporated towns. The indictment was placed in Judge Campbell's hands late Saturday afternoon, but the bench warrant was not issued until early Monday morning. Sheriff Mass at once went to the tavern and placed Erickson under arrest. Bail was set at $500, and Erickson procured this and returned to resort late Monday afternoon.

When former Sheriff Stevens, of Multnomah county, started his crusade upon the Linton road resorts, and when Governor West took up his spectacular campaign against other places, including the Milwaukie Tavern, it was generally believed that Erickson's place had but a few days to last. Its remoteness from centers of population, however, and the fact that it was conducted with a reasonable amount of quietness and decorum, left it untouched until the becoming effective of the law passed by the last session of the legislature. Within the month Japanese waiters employed in the resort complained to Sheriff Mass that they were not getting their money. One of them said he had lost the proprietor $200, and that he could not get it back. About ten days ago further trouble over financial matter arose between the Japanese servants and Erickson, and Sheriff Mass went out to the place to investigate the fuss.

At this time the grand jury was already investigating the resort, so Sheriff Mass took no action, beyond advising the servants to keep a strict accounting of all money they took in. The night following this the Japanese voluntarily brought in to the sheriff's office $147.20, which they said was the money collected from customers during the previous night. The sheriff held the money over night for safe-keeping, and the next day returned it to the waiters, advising them to settle with the proprietor and end their disputes.

Some two or three nights after this, when Governor West came to Oregon City to look into the "rioting" situation in the mills, he talked with Sheriff Mass about the Clackamas Tavern, and asked him why it was allowed to run. Mr. Mass told the governor that he had turned over to the grand jury evidence in regard to the place, and was expecting action by the inquisitors at any time. The governor replied that it was not necessary for the grand jury to act, as under the new law liquor could not legally be sold outside of an incorporated town. The sheriff answered that he knew that, and added that if the grand jury did not return an indictment, he would take action himself as soon as he could secure new evidence. The indictment returned Saturday charges Erickson with selling liquor without a license. Erickson's place has been doing a land office business since the road-houses nearer Portland closed, and taxicabs and touring cars have nightly brought out scores of people from Portland.

Miss Theora Carter, president of the Good Cheer society of New York city, will extend her toothbrush crusade among the boys and girls of the city playgrounds this summer. All winter and spring she has waved the brush above the heads of the tenements and has accomplished much good in instilling habits of teeth cleanliness among them. In many cities the teeth of the children of the poor afford a problem for school doctors and dental clinics. Miss Carter's idea is to get the children so interested in the daily use of the brush that they will carry the habit back to their humble homes.

World's Road Men Meet.

LONDON, June 23.—Leading men from practically every country identified with highway construction and maintenance were assembled in London today at the opening of the International Road Congress. The American Road Builders' association, representing the United States and Canada, has sent a delegation of twenty-five members to the congress.

SOCIAL HYGIENE WORK IS PLANNED

C. H. Caulfield, M. D. Latourette, William Anderson, W. A. Huntley and F. J. Toole have been named a committee to arrange a program for a conference of physicians, educators and others on social and moral hygiene to be held in the Commercial club rooms on the evening of July 3, at which time steps will be taken to formulate a plan for a wider spreading of knowledge now regarded as necessary for the benefit of the community. B. T. McBain will probably be the chairman of the meeting, and it is hoped to have Dr. H. S. Mount, Prof. T. J. Gary, J. E. Hedges, Dr. Strickland, Senator W. A. Dimick, Judge J. U. Campbell and some representatives of the state board of health among those who will speak.

The meeting will be under the auspices of the Oregon Social Hygiene society, which has been engaged for some time past in campaigns against social wrongs in all parts of the state. Under its management local organizations to spread hygienic knowledge have been formed in many of the leading Oregon cities, and the intention of similar work here is at the urgent request of civic leaders who believe that there should be a greater understanding of sex problems here. There will be opportunity afforded in the local activities for many men and women in the community who are legitimately and earnestly interested in the campaign for betterment.

AINSBERRY GETS NOT TRUE BILL

GRAND JURY SEES NO GUILT IN USE OF REVOLVER BY HOME PHONE MAN

OSWEGO RIOTING CASE RECALLED

Man of Many Aliases Again Liable to Arrest: Upon Charge of Breaking From State Penitentiary at Rawlins

In the opinion of the Clackamas county grand jury J. C. Ainsberry, alias C. L. Armsberry, and also known as "W. W. Warren" and "Bert Lawson," is not guilty of assault with a deadly weapon, and the inquisitors have returned a not true bill in his case. Under this ruling Ainsberry is now released from the $1,000 cash bond put up for him by the Home Telephone company, it is liable to arrest at any time as a fugitive from the state penitentiary at Rawlins, Wyoming, and also as a fugitive and parole breaker from San Quentin penitentiary, California.

Ainsberry, whose record is picturesque in the extreme, was arrested at Oswego, May 19, for shooting Fred Ream, of Willamette, in the groin in the course of a riot between union linemen and men in the employ of the Home Telephone company. When arraigned he pleaded that he had shot only in self-defense, and was bound over in $1,500 cash bail to await the action of the grand jury. The bail was put up in cash, but Ainsberry refused to permit the court accept it, saying that he might be re-arrested at any time as a fugitive from California, admitting that he had broken his parole from San Quentin. He was then locked up.

A day or so later he was released on habeas corpus proceeding, brought in his behalf by J. E. Hedges. He then went to his home in Lewis, the Home Telephone company putting up $1,000 cash bail for him on the charge growing out of the rioting. At his home he was arrested by Archie Leonard, assistant chief special agent of the Oregon-Washington Railroad & Navigation company, on the charge of being an escaped convict from the Wyoming penitentiary at Rawlins, where he had been sentenced to a three-year term for robbing box-cars at Cheyenne, and from whence he had escaped with two other convicts 45 days later. Ainsberry admitted the charge, and also volunteered the information that he had also been confined in the Nevada penitentiary. He was locked in the county jail in Portland following this arrest.

While in the custody of Sheriff Tom Word, Ainsberry was taken to Salem to see Governor West, as a request for his extradition had been made by the Wyoming authorities. Governor West refused to release the prisoner, saying that he thought he ought to be held to answer to the more serious charge of using a deadly weapon. To the governor Ainsberry admitted his criminal career, but said that since he had married he was trying to reform. Taken back to Portland by Sheriff Word, Ainsberry was habeas corpusd out again, and then

FAMOUS WOMEN'S BAND TO GIVE TWO CONCERTS EACH DAY AT COMING CHAUTAUQUA.

The Ladies' Hand of Portland is to be one of the big features of the coming Chautauqua. This band consists of thirty feminine musicians of Portland, members of the Artisan Lodge. The ladies play exceptionally well together and have been making a hit everywhere they have appeared. They will be at the Chautauqua during the whole time, camping on the grounds, and will give two big concerts each day during the assembly. Their work is already attracting wide attention in this part of the state, and the Chautauqua is fortunate in securing this organization as the official Chautauqua band.

MAN WHOSE NAME CAUSES SOME MISUNDERSTANDING

Alvey A. Adee

They tell the following on Alvey A. Adee, second assistant secretary of state. He called up the grocer one day and started to give an order: "This is A. A. Adee," he said, "and I want you to..." "Wait a minute," interrupted the grocer. "Spell that name, will you please, so I can see it right?" "Certainly!" replied Mr. Adee. "A..." "Yes..." "A..." "Yes..." "A..." "Oh, go to thunder, I haven't got time to joke." And the grocer hung up.

RIOTERS INDICTED BY GRAND JURORS

Everett Broliar, J. W. Loha, Clyde Ackley, J. Olson, B. Westcott, E. E. Hes, J. Lawless, E. Niles, G. W. Esner, C. C. Swallow and Ed. Trapp, union linemen concerned in the riot with non-union employees of the Home Telephone company at Oswego on May 19 were indicted by the Clackamas county grand jury on the charge of rioting Saturday, but the indictment was not made public by Judge J. U. Campbell until Monday. The men have all been out on $2,000 bond.

The grand jury also returned an indictment against Ed Kindrick, of Logan, the charge being the larceny of a calf some two years ago. Kindrick explains the matter by saying that a cow belonging to him and another cow belonging to a man named Busse were fresh at the same time, and that the calf followed his cow home, so he naturally supposed it was his.

CHARLTON SPENDS 3 YEARS IN JAIL

NEW YORK, June 23.—Porter Charlton, who the supreme court of the United States recently decided must be returned to Italy to be tried for the murder of his wife, completed his third year as a prisoner in the Hudson county jail in New Jersey. Mrs. Mary Scott Castle Charlton was murdered in Italy in the early part of June, 1910. The body, having been put into a trunk and thrown into Lake Como, was soon found, but not until Charlton had fled and was on the sea bound for New York. He arrived here on June 22, 1910, and within an hour after his arrest he confessed to the Hoboken police that he was guilty of the crime charged against him.

Charlton was promptly committed to the Hudson county jail. He has been there ever since, while his family and counsel have exhausted every means known to the law to prevent his extradition to Italy. Two weeks ago the last hope was lost when the supreme court decided that the confessed murderer must be surrendered to the Italian authorities.

It is expected that within another month young Charlton will be on his way back to Italy in the custody of the Italian police. Even had he not confessed his crime, it is believed that the young man would have little chances of escaping conviction, as under the Italian system a prisoner is supposed to be guilty until proved innocent. There is no death penalty in Italy, and if Charlton is convicted he will probably get a sentence of twenty years in prison, ten of them in solitary confinement.
