EAGLE TO SCREAM LOUD ON FOURTH!

In spite of the fact that the "safe and sane Fourth" idea has spread pretty generally over Clackamas county, there will be no dearth of celebration of the Nation's birthday this year. While fire-crackers and other finger-destroyers are taboo in most of the incorporated towns and cities, nevertheless the small boy and young lassies who want to indulge in the sort of things can find ample opportunity to do so. Out aside from this there will be celebrations of many kinds, and most of all of them will be worth going to.

Oregon City will have a choice of many of these. There will be a big picnic and celebration at Canby, primarily for the benefit of the employees of the Willamette Pulp & Paper mills. Then there will be the big Gladstone reunion and celebration at Gladstone park, which will be in a class by itself.

Aside from these gatherings, there are many other things that will be going on. The "insane Fourth" at Molalla, where the Hon. Gilbert L. Hedges will be the orator of the day, is one of the most interesting. The "insane Fourth" at Molalla, where the Hon. Gilbert L. Hedges will be the orator of the day, is one of the most interesting. SOCIAL HYGIENE PROBLEMS HEARD

A conference of physicians, educators and others, held in the rooms of the Commercial club Monday, first steps were taken towards the formation of a social hygiene society. Plans for the meeting were made by Wm. Anderson, C. H. Campbell, W. A. Huntley, M. D. Latour and F. J. Toole, and at the close of the meeting that same committee was continued in power to take up the work with citizens of the community.

The meeting at the Commercial club was called to order by B. T. McRae, the chairman for the evening. Addresses were made by Dr. H. S. Munt, Earl J. Cummins, representative of the Oregon Social Hygiene society, and Dr. W. A. Huntley, M. D., of the state board of health, U. S. G. county agent superintendent, Dr. Schultz, Dr. Hagedorn, Dr. Williamson and J. E. Huntley. The meeting was held in the Commercial club rooms.

CHAMPIONS OF THE ROWING WORLD BOAT LENGTH AHEAD OF THEM

Remarkable picture showing the finish of the most sensational variety eight race in the history of rowing. Syracuse nosing the Cornell for the 1913 intercollegiate rowing title at the Poughkeepsie regatta. The Syracuse crew finished approximately half a boat's length in front of the hardy Cornell eight, thereby displacing the Ithaca crew as champions of the rowing universe. The prow of the Washington state shell can be seen coming in third, only two second being the Cornell boat.

112 ARE KILLED BY HEAT IN EAST

CHICAGO, June 30.—Reports received up to late tonight showed that at least 112 persons died today as a result of the heat waves in the Central West, which has continued unrelentingly for six days. From 96 degrees at Pittsburg, the temperature through the whole Middle West ranged well into the 80s, culminating with 102 degrees in Chicago. This gave Chicago a record for the day of it being the hottest place in the United States except for Tucson, Ariz., where the temperature also was 102.

ANCIENT MUDHOOK SEEN BY VISITORS

To look over the big anchor recovered from the bed of the Willamette by Captain Reed and member of the crew of the government dredge Champe, Mayor Linn Jones, Judge Grant B. Dimick, Councilman Albright, Geo. A. Harding, M. E. Dunn and Ed H. Brown Monday visited the dredge, and were shown around by Chief Engineer Larsen. The big mud-hook was examined carefully, and while no mark of identification was found upon it, it was the general belief of all that it came from the ship Convoy, which anchored at about that spot in 1829, and which was driven away by the hands of Indians.

The big anchor has a shank 11 feet 3 inches long, and spans 6 feet 4 inches. The anchor is made of Norway iron, and weighs 1,200 pounds. It will probably be secured from the government and placed in McLoughlin park as a relic of pioneer days of this vicinity.

WEST SIDE CITY MAY LOSE AREA

WILLAMETTE PLANS SECOND ELECTION ON ANNEXATION MATTER FOR JULY 30

INCREASED TERRITORY IS INCLUDED

Citizens of Older Town Believe Next Test Will Result in Bringing Mill Property Within City Limits

It now begins to appear that West Linn has not yet "beaten Willamette to it." The annexation election held Saturday last, by which Willamette hoped to add to her territory two-fifths of the mill property and some adjacent land, and which was lost, is not the end of the matter. There will be another annexation election July 30, and Willamette believes that the next one will carry, and that she will not only get the greater part of the additional territory before desired, but some more area, as well.

Notices and other legal forms are out, and the next election will concern the greater part of the territory that split 18 to 21 on the matter before, and also some land to the west of the city. It is an open secret that the residents of the territory to the west are unanimously in favor of joining Willamette, and their vote, together with that of the faithful 18 in the territory formerly concerned, is expected to swing the election the other way.

Those in favor of the annexation point out that there is much to be gained by going in with Willamette; in fact they say there is more to be gained from the old city than there is to be had by becoming a part of the new town. It is pointed out that the extension of Willamette's improvements into this territory will cost the property-owners less than will a whole new deck of improvements, as will be inaugurated in West Linn. Annexation will also give the incoming territory the benefit of fire and police protection, and many of the other privileges of city life.

In combating the last annexation election, those opposed to joining Willamette, busily circulated the report that the incoming section would have to pay a share of Willamette's debts. Citizens of Willamette resent this, and say that there is more money in the city treasury now than the total of the debts; and that the debts don't amount to much anyway, being merely for a chemical fire engine and some street work.

CLACKAMAS TEAM WINS OVER LOGAN

The Clackamas ball club won its seventh straight game Sunday by defeating Logan 15 to 4 in a one-sided game on the Logan diamond. Burdon for Clackamas allowed but 5 hits while Clackamas solved the dailies of Douglas, Babbler and "Lefty" Gerber for 17 safe swats. In the seven games played this season Clackamas has scored 84 runs and have allowed their opponents 21 runs in the same number of games. Next Sunday, they will play the "Gill Butchers" team of Portland, which is considered one of Portland's fastest teams and a hard game is expected.

OLD SHOWMAN RETIRES

PERU, Ind., June 30.—"Uncle Ben" Wallace, reputed to be the wealthiest circus man in the world, forever quit show business today, when his controlling interest in the Hagenbeck-Wallace shows was transferred to a newly formed corporation known as the United States Amusement company. Wallace entered the circus business more than a quarter of a century ago and has been on the road ever season since without intermission. His home and the winter quarters of his circus are in Peru. The veteran showman is said to be the only man who ever successfully bucked the "circus trust." The corporation which takes over the Wallace show is composed of capitalists in Chicago, Kansas City, Indianapolis, and Davenport, Ia. At the head of the corporation is John O. Talbot, formerly a newsboy in Indianapolis, and now a millionaire.

ELEVATOR WORK HAS NEW SNAGS

WATER COMMISSIONERS SURE SPECIAL MAIN AND PUMPS WILL BE NECESSARY

ELECTRIC POWER ALSO SUGGESTED

Two Conferences Fail to Bring About Agreement as to Best Method of Meeting Requirements in Case

Members of the Oregon City water board, the special elevator committee of the city council, representatives of the Otis Elevator company and of the Oregon Bridge & Construction company, the city attorney and engineer, as well as attorneys representing other interests concerned, held two meetings Monday to discuss the possibility and advisability of utilizing city water for the motive power of the hydraulic elevator that is to be built up the face of the bluff at Seventh street. The meetings were somewhat stormy, and at their conclusion but one thing was generally understood, and that was the water commissioners deemed it inadvisable for the elevator to be operated with water from the city mains.

In fact the commissioners put a rather effective raboo on this idea, setting forth that the continual use of pressure and lack thereof, as the elevator went up or down, would act as a battering ram on the mains, and would put them to an unreasonable stress. It was thenceforth set forth that if city water was to be used, a special main would have to be laid from the pumping station to the foot of the elevator shaft, and special pumping and pressure devices would have to be installed for this service.

The Otis Elevator people set forth the utilization of electricity as a motive power in the big lift would be far cheaper, after the machinery was once installed, than hydraulic power, and urged the elevator committee to so modify its plans as to make this possible. In such a change, however, the elevator committee saw new charges in the line of power, and showed no inclination to adopt the suggestion. On the other hand the members of the water board set forth that as the water system was maintained here by the consumers, any use of water for power purposes should be paid for, so that the consumers might be reimbursed.

Suggestion was made that the water for the elevator be taken from the hill reservoir, but this was frowned upon, as menacing the supply for home purposes. There were also other objections to this. The apparent inability of either side to adopt the suggestions of the other, in fact, was the prime cause of the storminess of the meeting. Towards the end of the second conference there was an indication on the part of the council representatives to suggest that as the water system was a part of the city activity, the water board ought to be compelled to provide power for the elevator as part of its public duties.

At the close of the second meeting it seemed to be pretty well established that a special main would have to be laid to the base of the elevator tower if hydraulic power was to be used, and that special pumping apparatus would have to be installed to provide the necessary pressure. As to just how this would be done, no decision was reached. Aside from that, the conferences established nothing, save that there was a very great difference of opinion regarding the problems presented.
