Canada in Henley Regatta.

LONDON, July 2.—The annual Henley regatta opened today and will continue through the remainder of the week. No oarsmen of the United States are entered in the regatta this year, but Canada is better represented than ever before and it would not be surprising if one of the coveted trophies was captured by the Canadians. Most interest centers in the contest for the Grand Challenge Cup, which for seventy-five years has been considered the "blue ribbon" of amateur rowing. The trophy is now held by an Australian crew and was previously won by a Belgian crew several times.

The 'stuff Successful Men Are Made of'

The International Correspondence Schools are NOT closed in summer. All of our truly ambitious students those who think more about the increased salaries their studies will qualify them to earn, than of the imaginary discomforts of summer study—devote a part of each week to their studies all summer.

A student who will only study in cold weather punishes himself. Why? Because he takes two or three times as long in preparing himself to earn more money, as the student who studies from a half hour to an hour per day all the year round. We have enough letters on file to make several very large books, the general purport of which is: "Oh, if I had only taken up that Course when I first wrote you about it! I have just missed a fine position, at largely increased wages, because I wasn't prepared to fill it. I lacked just the special knowledge I could have had from the Course." The writers of these letters never have to be coaxed to study in summer NOW. They know what delay costs. Why not profit by THEIR experience, instead of taking the same bitter medicine yourself?

Persons that suffer most from the heat are those that have nothing else to occupy their thoughts. A man who is interested in his studies doesn't know how hot it is. He has no time to fret about the weather. He is looking ahead a few months to the time when he can demand advancement in position and salary, because his special education will have made his services of more value to his employer. It is no harder to read an Instruction Paper in summer than to read a newspaper. How many summer days are hot enough to prevent you from reading the daily news?

The man who promises himself that he will enroll next fall is only trying to deceive his conscience. He may not know it, but he is weakening his will-power, and it is will-power—power to do what one knows he must do to succeed—that makes the man. A man of weak will—one who will study some day, but not now—will always be down in the world; always in "hard luck," frequently out of work, and when employed, it will always be at low wages. He knows that a knowledge of certain subjects will fit him to earn more; yet he stills his conscience by promising to start later. Such a man isn't truly ambitious. He is one of the kind that always does the hard, menial work, and draws small pay all his life. Are YOU one of that kind, who YOU truly ambitious to earn more and make something of yourself? If you won't study in summer you are NOT. If you prefer to fret about hot weather, rather than forget it by studying, you are NOT.

The dangerous habit of "putting off" has ruined the lives of more promising young men than drunkenness. It is so easy to say "yes," it's what I need; I'll start tomorrow—next week—some other time." The difference between the man that makes a failure of life and the man that succeeds is simply this: The failure is going to begin "tomorrow;" the success begins today.

The men who "get there" are those that study for self-improvement in summer, or whenever they have time. They don't let the weather keep them in inferior positions, at small wages. They don't make excuses to themselves when they ought to be up and doing. They don't work for wages barely enough to keep soul and body together either.

HE CAUGHT THE KHEDIVE.

A Breezy American Who Made the Most of His Opportunity.

When E. Alexander Powell was the consular representative of the United States at Alexandria he received a call one morning from the president of an American concern engaged in the manufacture of agricultural and well drilling machinery. This man explained that he was passing through Egypt and asked if it would be possible to obtain an audience with the khedive. In "The Last Frontier" Mr. Powell gives an amusing account of the interview:

Agriculture and its attendant problems of irrigation and fertilization constitute the sole hobby and amusement of the khedive. He is consequently a ready and liberal purchaser of all improved types of agricultural machinery, which he puts to practical use on his great estates. The request of my compatriot was duly transmitted to the grand master of ceremonies, and shortly thereafter a reply reached me that named the day and hour when his highness would receive us at the palace of Ras-el-Tin.

Frock coated and top hatted we drove to the palace on the day appointed, were received by the officials of the household and shown into the audience room, where his highness stood awaiting us. After a cordial greeting the khedive drew me down beside him on a small sofa and motioned to my companion to take a chair opposite us.

"It gives me particular pleasure," I began, "to present Mr. K. to your highness, as he is an authority on agricultural machinery, a subject in which your highness is, I know, much interested."

"Say, khedive," exclaimed my fellow countryman, suddenly leaning forward and emphasizing every sentence by wagging his finger under the khedive's august nose. "I've got the niftiest little proposition in well drilling machinery that ever struck this burg, and if you don't jump at the chance to get in on the ground floor then all I've got to say is that you're throwing away the chance of your lifetime!"

The khedive, being naturally quite unaccustomed to this form of verbal assault and still more unaccustomed to having any one waggle a finger under his nose, at first drew back haughtily. Then the humor of the situation dawned upon him, and as the river of talk, which is one of the chief reliances of the trained American salesman, flowed steadily on he became interested in spite of himself. Now and then he interjected a pertinent question and ended the audience by giving the American an order for several thousand dollars' worth of American machinery, which, when I last heard of it, was giving excellent satisfaction on the royal farms.

Prince Frederick William of Germany

Prince Frederick William of Germany is the high sounding title of the little boy whose picture is shown above. He is the grandson of Kaiser Wilhelm, the German emperor, who recently celebrated the silver jubilee of his ascent to the throne. His father is the Crown Prince William, who will one day succeed to the title of emperor—that is, if he outlives the present ruler. Frederick William is the oldest of the crown prince's children and is in the direct line of succession. At present that probably doesn't bother him very much. "Having fun," as young America expresses it, is doubtless more to his liking than thoughts of future grandeur. The little prince is seven years old and was born on the Fourth of July—a date that has no significance to him other than that it is his birthday. What boy or girl in this country would not feel an especial pride in having Independence day for a birthday? Then the Fourth of July would mean two celebrations in one.

What is the Answer?

Why is a cat's tail like the ends of the earth? Because it's fur to the end. But if the cat has no tail? Then it would not be so fur (far).

What is the best way to find a person out? Call when she is not at home.

Why are printers liable to take cold? Because they always use damp sheets.

Why is wit like the shoe on a Chinese lady's foot? Because brevity is the soul of wit.

What is the difference between a blacksmith and a safe steed? One is a horseshoer, the other a sure horse.

What kind of sickle does Father Time use in winter? Ice sickle.

Why is it dangerous to sleep in a train? Because the train runs over sleepers.

Why is "a" like 12 o'clock? It is the middle of day.

When is a boat like snow? When it is adrift.

What is that which works when it plays and plays when it works? A fountain.

The Daisy.

The Latin name of the daisy comes from a word meaning "pretty," and all will agree that it is well named. Our English word daisy is really "day's eye," and that is what it was called many hundred years ago.

Like the dandelion, each of its flowers is made up of a number of little ones, the tiny golden "disk flowers" in the center and the long white "ray flowers" around them. Daisies growing on the prairies from Kentucky to Texas have violet or purple rays.

To this same big family or "order" belong the asters, robin's plantain, goldenrod, dahila, boneset and many other common but beautiful wild flowers which we all know so well.

If we look at the flowers in the yellow center of a daisy through a microscope we shall find that each is shaped like a little bell and has pointed teeth on its edge.

Robin's Helpers.

On a blossoming apple tree Robin sang so cheerily, "Come, dear neighbors, for my nest Will you give me of your best?"

"Baa, baa," said the sheep, "my wool Is soft, white and beautiful. You shall have some for your nest. My pretty Robin Redbreast."

"Cluck, cluck, cluck," said Mrs. Hen, "You won't have to ask again. I will give to you a feather With the wool to weave together."

Mulley cow said: "Moo, moo, moo! Will a wisp of sweet hay do? I should think that would be fine, Robin, for your nest to line."

Dobbin horse spoke: "Black and strong Is my very tail so long. Hair will bind them well together—Wool and hay and fluffy feather."

Robin sat upon the tree, Trilled his song quite merrily: "Thank you, friends, for of your best You have giv'n me for my nest."

"Feathers, hay and long, strong hair, I will weave them all with care. And the wool, so soft and fine—Just the thing the nest to line!" —Philadelphia Record.

He Had a Suggestion.

A Sunday school class was studying a missionary lesson, and the teacher was telling of customs among the Eskimos. She said:

"I have read an article by a traveler among these people, and it is the duty of the Eskimo's wife to chew her husband's clothes to keep them soft and pliable, as the skins get stiff, and therefore a woman is chosen according to her chewing ability, every man endeavoring to get a wife with strong teeth."

One little boy, with a look of intense nausea on his face, blurted out: "Why don't they get 'em a billy-goat?"—National Food Magazine.

REGISTRARS NAMED IN MANY PRECINCTS

As empowered by recent legislation, County Clerk Mulvey has appointed a number of registrars in various county precincts to register voters. These registrars get 10 cents per name registered, and turn their lists in to the county clerk. Some of them are out canvassing their several districts, while others just wait for voters to come in. The plan has been adopted as a convenience to voters living in the more removed districts.

Those so far appointed, and the precincts in which they are empowered to register voters, are as follows:

W. A. Heylman, Estacada; Percy Cross, Gladstone; Ted Aldrich, Canemah; J. W. Smith, Mackay; C. R. Thorpe, Sunnyside; E. L. Davidson, Oswego; William Knight, Canby; E. C. Warren, Oak Grove; Miss Mather, Clackamas; Charles Thompson, Tualatin; W. W. Jesse, Barlow; Julius Paulsen, George; John S. Owings, Killia; E. J. Maple, Milk Creek; William Moran, Boring; F. H. Dunagan, Molalla; O. Wissing, Milwaukie; Joe T. Thornton, Wilsonville; H. Leismann, Willamette; William Greshenwhite, Beaver Creek; M. E. Kandie, Highland; and Alfred Danielson, Colton.

Charles Thompson, of Tualatin, has already registered 2290 voters. Other registrars will be appointed in the near future.

RECORDER'S OFFICE EARNS BIG SHARE OF EXPENSES

Since January 6, this year, the office of County Recorder DeLman has taken in $4,147 in fees. These fees are based upon the number of folios of deeds and other documents recorded. The showing made by Mr. DeLman is regarded as an indication of the prosperity and growth of the county, and the sale of lands to new settlers. Incidentally the amounts taken in make the office virtually self-supporting.

TRY IT! SAYS SAGE TEA DARKENS AND BEAUTIFIES FADED, GRAY HAIR

Mixed With Sulphur Makes Hair Soft and Luxuriant and Removes Dandruff

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is coming in vogue again, says a well-known downtown druggist. It was our grandmother's treatment, and hundreds of women, and men, too, are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the musky mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is the most popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply dampen a soft brush or sponge with "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur" and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. Do this tonight, and by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application it is restored to its natural color.

What delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that besides beautifully darkening the hair they say it produces that soft luster and appearance of abundance which is so attractive; besides prevents dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair. Here, you gray-haired folks, get busy; look young.

HUNTLEY BROS., Druggists

Crowds at Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 2.—The international elstiedford, the great Welsh musical and literary festival, was opened in this city today. The predictions that the gathering would be the largest and most representative of its kind ever held in America have already been fulfilled. Nearly every state of the union may find the provinces of Canada are represented among the visitors. From Wales has come a large and distinguished delegation headed by Rev. Evan Rees, of Cardiff, the chief bard of Wales.

The Superiority of Electric Toast to the charred, or brittle, or soggy kind made in the tedious old-fashioned way, is relatively the same as the superiority of grilled steak to fried steak.

For one-tenth of a cent a slice the General Electric Radiant Toaster makes Perfect Toast faster than you can eat it. It is Perfect Toast because the radiant heat forces the necessary chemical change in the bread. This insures delicious golden Toast that fairly melts in your mouth.

You can operate the General Electric Radiant Toaster on the finest damask table cloth. Its neat porcelain base and cheerful glowing coils add grace and charm to any table.

This little toaster is on display at our store in the Beaver Building on Main Street.
