

MILWAUKIE BANK SCENE OF HOLDUP

The best chances lay in surrendering and in returning the money. Preen seemed to recognize the truth of this, and was coming out from his hiding place in the water beneath the mill, when "Paddy" Maher rushed in ahead of Sheriff Mass, and pointing a revolver at the young robber, ordered him to "surrender, you blankety-dash, you villainous person, surrender, throw up your hands, or I'll pump you full of lead."

Sheriff Mass ordered Maher to stand aside, and on his refusal to go Deputy Staats waded into the creek that ran under the mill, grasped the redoubtable "Paddy" by the neck of his shirt, and threw him to one side. Preen then came out and surrendered to Sheriff Mass.

After Portland newspaper photographers had done their duty the prisoner and Sheriff Mass started for Oregon City. The young robber—who later gave his age at somewhere between 18 and 20—arrived here in a pitiful state, being wet and chilled by the swift ride. He was given a change of clothing and locked up in the city jail until the evening, when he was transferred to the county jail for the night.

Of the $395 which he stole, $225 was recovered on his person. The other $170 he said he dropped on the highway, during his pursuit. In his clothes was also found a keen saw, which it is believed he supplied himself with to cut his way from jail in case of capture. About his neck, in a cleverly concealed leather case, was a razor, which the officers think he intended using as a weapon if cornered where there was any chance of flight. In his pockets was also another razor, which the youth said he bought.

In accounting for himself the robber said his mother and father had separated about a year ago, and that he had then "hit the grit" and gone west to California. In San Francisco he said he had worked in a livery stable for awhile, and then had started northward, beating trains and working every now and then to get a little money for lodgings. He said the last place was in Roseburg, where he put in two days on a track-laying outfit.

Since leaving Roseburg, according to his own account, he had been at Canby, where he declared he found the revolver he used in his crime. From Canby he had made his way to Milwaukie, where he hung about with some hoboes for a day, and then went over to the Tualatin valley, where he spent four days. He said he came back to Milwaukie Saturday morning, and while "stalling" in front of the bank conceived the idea of holding it up. He denies having had a "pal" in his work, and says he has not traveled with any particular set of hoboes or yeggs.

Officers are inclined to doubt certain parts of his story, and Sheriff Mass is checking up a number of his statements. The boy stoutly maintains that he has never been in trouble before, and says that this is his first crime, but his familiarity with thieves' language and slang makes this seem doubtful, as well as some other details of his life, which he omitted and which are being probed. Preen is slight of build, has a smooth face, with rather a keen expression, and has brown eyes and slightly curly hair.

"Paddy" Maher, aside from his "grand-standings" at the moment of capture, also put Constable Jack Frost out of the chase for a few minutes. When the cordon was closing in on Preen, after Maher and Curtis had formerly concluded to give up the hunt, Frost was creeping through the brush towards the mill, when some Milwaukie citizen saw the brush moving, and yelled to Maher that "somebody's in there." Maher promptly brandished his ready revolver, and Frost, who could see him, though himself out of sight, decided it was the part of wisdom to lie close. He therefore quit his part in the closing operations until Maher had been pulled off by somebody who knew of the place of capture.

Incidentally the robbery caused the prisoners in the county jail to go hungry, as the two sets of keys to the prison were carried off by the possessor, Sheriff Mass having one set and Jack Frost the other. During their absence with the keys, nobody could get into the jail to give the prisoners their dinner.

OREGON SONGBIRD WILL SING SUNDAY

Miss Mary Adele Case, who so greatly pleased the large audience at the Shively opera house last Wednesday evening will sing "The Star-Spangled Banner" Sunday evening at the exercises in the First Methodist Episcopal church in celebration of the vicories of Gettysburg and Vicksburg.

Miss Case's father was a soldier in the Union army, and two of her brothers, who were soldiers in the Spanish-American war, were among the first to enter Manila, and were in the battle of Malaban, where the Oregon boys won everlasting fame. She will, therefore, sing with a sympathy and love for the old soldiers, and for the boys of the O. N. G. who are to be present and take part in the exercises.

Oscar Woodfin, a young man of musical gifts and worthy ambition, will also sing, while the large chorus choir will come in strong on the old war songs, and songs of our country, and swell the melody. Dr. Ford says he expects to see one of the greatest and most enthusiastic services he has ever held, and invites the Spanish-American war veterans and all old soldiers of the North and the South, and their friends, and all who love our country to come and help to make the service one of the most memorable of our city.

MRS. B. N. HICKS, DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

The funeral of Mrs. B. N. Hicks, wife of B. N. Hicks, a well-known attorney of this city, was held Saturday afternoon at the Methodist church, the T. B. Ford officiating. Interment followed at Mountain View cemetery. Mrs. Hicks, who was 38 years old, died Friday at noon, following an illness of about a year's duration. She was but recently brought home from a Portland hospital. Mrs. Hicks was a native of Tennessee, and since coming West had made many friends, who mourn her loss and sympathize with her husband in his bereavement.

COUNTY FAIR LIST SOON TO BE READY

The premium list for the county fair, which is to be held at Canby, is now in course of preparation, and will be published within a few days. Delay in composing the list has been caused by doubt on the part of the fair directors as to the sum they would receive from the state. This sum has now been determined, and work on the premium list is under way.

A new departure in prizes will be made this year, in the offering of four prizes, of $50, $25, $15 and $10 for the best community and garage exhibits. Duplicate prizes will be put up for both varieties of exhibits. In addition to this it has been determined that any exhibitor taking part in a garage or community exhibit may also enter his own individual display for competition in the general exhibition. Heretofore this has been impossible, all community exhibits being judged as a whole.

The fair directors feel that the new plan will not only be more just to exhibitors, but believe that it will also stimulate community exhibits, and will result in the several sections of the county going to greater care in producing a display of their resources. This year's fair is expected to surpass all former ones in the wealth and quality of exhibitions.

SPECIAL SCHOOL LEVY IS NEEDED

There will be a special school meeting at the court house Monday evening at half past seven, at which authority will be sought by the school directors to levy a special tax to provide for the immediate construction of a two-room addition to the Barclay building. This structure is now overtaxed, and the addition is a matter of necessity.

In planning for it the school directors feel that they will be providing room for increases in attendance for some time to come, as well as caring for present needs. It is hoped that the addition can be constructed this summer, and be ready for occupancy in the autumn.

It is also the desire of the directors to provide for payment of interest up on the bond issue. This must be met by a levy according to law. The expense of providing for the expenses of the district will also be taken up, and the levy for the coming year fixed.

BRIDGE CAVED IN BY STUMP PULLER

A government stump-pulling outfit weighing some 20 tons or more, caved in what is known as the Baker's ferry bridge on the south Clackamas valley road Friday, putting that structure out of commission, and providing a problem for government men to raise the heavy apparatus from the ravine some 20 or 30 feet below the level of the road. The county commissioners looked over the wreck of the bridge Saturday, and took steps for its repair.

Owing to the general closing down of country telephones on the Fourth, notifications of the failure of the bridge was not received in time for the road supervisor to post barricade notices along the road leading to the bridge, and as a result many farmers drove to the structure before finding out that the road was impassable, and then had to make a long detour to continue on their way. Barricade notices have now been posted at considerable distance above the structure, so as to prevent continuance of this inconvenience.

UNLUCKY DAY FOR ENTERPRISE FOLK

Two men connected with The Enterprise plant came to grief yesterday through minor accidents, one in Oregon City and the other in Seattle.

Joseph Miller, an employee in the Miller-Parker garage in the morning and was thrown heavily, his wrist being broken, was struck by an automobile at the door of the garage for some gasoline when William Sheban's car, driven by William McFarland, swung in and struck him.

The other accident occurred in Seattle, where Louis Fischer, formerly a pressman on The Enterprise, caught his arm in a press in one of the shops in Seattle, and had it so mangled that it had to be amputated at the hospital.

NOW SOLD IN AMERICA

Now Sold in America in Less Than Five Years. Parisian Sage, the Splendid Hair Tonic, is Sold All Over America.

There is a reason for the phenomenal sale of Parisian Sage in the United States during the past three years.

And the reason is plain to all: Parisian Sage does just what it is advertised to do.

Ask Huntley Bros. about it, they will tell you that they rigidly guarantee it to cure dandruff, stop falling hair or itching scalp, in two weeks or money back.

There is no reason whatever why any man or woman should fail to take advantage of the above generous offer.

But one thing that has made Parisian Sage so famous is its peculiar power to turn the harsh, unattractive hair that many women possess into luxuriant and radiant hair in a short time. Women of refinement the country over are using it and it never disappoints.

Sold by druggists everywhere and by Huntley Bros. for 50 cents a large bottle.

Estacada and Eastern Clackamas

ESTACADA.

W. F. Cary was a business visitor in Portland Monday.

The evangelistic meetings, which were held at the M. E. church last week, came to a close Sunday when services were held morning, afternoon and evening. A basket lunch was served at the church at noon and after the 2 o'clock services the ordinance of baptism was administered to several. The meetings were considered quite a success.

The Union Meat Co.'s ball team of Portland met defeat here Sunday afternoon in a game with the home team, the score resulting in 8 to 2. The Estacada boys are playing good ball this season, having lost but one game.

Arthur Howard, the young man who had his leg badly crushed by a log falling on it, is reported to be getting along nicely in a Portland hospital.

O. O. Bland and wife returned from Markham, Wash., the latter part of last week, where they have been residing for several months.

The judges for the Fourth of July parade will be parties from Portland. Mrs. Frazier, as chairman of the parade committee, is working diligently to make the parade a success. It will be in the morning program and will be headed by the brass band.

The Civic Improvement club is responsible for the rubbish cans which have been placed in different places on the main streets of Estacada. They are plainly marked and it is expected that hereafter the streets will be free from banana and orange peelings as well as all kinds of refuse. This is only a beginning of the improvements which the ladies expect to make to beautify the town.

A most revolting case was brought before Judge Givings Monday evening. When a young man by the name of George Nass was arrested for misusing his horse. The horse was balky and so the fellow tied a rope to its jaw and then hitched a team to the rope and dragged the animal until the jaw bone was torn from its head. The young man plead guilty and was fined $20 and costs. E. Bates made the arrest and an Oregon Humane officer swore out the warrant.

BOOKS OF TICKETS ARE NEARLY GONE

The sale of Chautauqua book tickets will close Monday night sharp, and all who are unable to take advantage of the "book plan" will be compelled to pay $2.50 for their season Chautauqua tickets, instead of $2.00, which is the price charged when ten parties buy their season tickets together.

Mr. E. G. Canfield at the Bank of Oregon City has charge of the booking sale and has been notified by the Chautauqua management not to sell any books after Monday. That this saving of 25 per cent on the price of a season ticket is appreciated, is shown by the fact that the sale at the bank during the past four days has been unusually large.

The book plan is dead easy. Just find nine of your friends, who like yourself, are planning on attending Chautauqua, take their names and $2.00 from each and Mr. Canfield will give you a book of ten season tickets for $20.00. The season tickets admit to everything during the big 13-day program which opens Tuesday morning.

FRUITS SHOW LOSS OWING TO WEATHER

Expectations are that the cherry season will be under way in earnest this week, and prices are dropping rapidly on the best grades. Good Royal Annes are now quoted at from 5 to 7 cents, and fancy black Republicans are ranging from 6 to 10 cents a pound. The wide range in price is due to the fact that much of the early-ripened cherries have been rain-split or otherwise damaged by the wet weather.

Raspberries are still holding at from $1.50 to $1.75 per crate, and are in better condition. Logan berries are ranging at slightly higher prices than raspberries, and some late strawberries are also to be found in the market. Blackberries, small and wild, are being marketed at 12½ cents a pound. Owing to the wet weather all these small fruits are not in the best of condition.

California plums and peaches are being offered at $1.50 a crate, but are not in the best of condition. Local peaches that are being offered are lacking color, owing to the failure of sunshine.

New potatoes are now down to $2 per hundred pounds.
