IT WAS NOT an interesting commentary upon modern times that people nowadays go to Chautauqua meetings in preference to going out in the fields and picking berries. When the Chautauqua idea first spread to the West it was solemnly declared that if the assembly and the fruit season conflicted, the assembly would suffer. Perhaps it did at first, but years of familiarity with the Chautauqua have changed this, and now with the opening of the annual assemblies the fruit fields and orchards are at once deserted, and the pickers are to be found camped at Gladstone, or at Albany or at any of the other gathering places.

The Chautauqua has been recognized by the farmers and by the children of farmers as an excellent summer school, where opportunity is offered for the accumulation of much useful knowledge. And, on the other hand, the Chautauqua managements have realized that the more they help the rural population, the greater their success; so each year sees the program changing to more and more practical subjects. In fact, while the original Chautauques were largely literary or religious in a non-sectarian way, the assemblies of today are found to be largely extensions of the courses of the agricultural colleges, with the literary section of the program contained almost entirely in what are known as the "entertainment" features.

This is a promising sign of the times. It is good for everyone, and it is particularly good for the Chautauqua idea, which is designed to bring about an intermingling of rest and learning. The coming assembly at Gladstone park will particularly emphasize this; and in its course will afford ample opportunity for those who attend to get a wide range of knowledge of a very great number of use-

Nation Must Stand by Its Word to Maintain Leadership

By Dr. PAUL S. REINSCH, Professor of Political Science

NO SINGLE THING WOULD WEAKEN THE POSITION OF AMERICAN LEADERSHIP, OUR REPUTATION FOR NATIONAL SINCERITY, MORE THAN IF WE SHOULD, FOR INSTANCE, REFUSE TO ARBITRATE OR TO SETTLE IN SOME OTHER SATISFACTORY MANNER THE QUESTION OF THE PANAMA TOLLS OR IF WE SHOULD NOT LIVE UP TO OUR TREATY OBLIGATION IN THE TREATMENT OF ALIEN RESIDENTS.

Nature has given us an advantage of position beyond any European or Asiatic nation. Our freedom from constant and besetting rivalries makes it easier for our nation to follow the POLICY OF HUMANITY than for any other, but we should soon lose the advantage of this position if, while preaching a policy consonant with the orderly development of humanity, we should DISREGARD IT ourselves as soon as minor advantages could be gained by following an opposite course.

Our policy is not based on sentiment. It is the outgrowth of our NATIONAL DESTINY. It is inevitable and not a matter of choice for us. Our national policy must be seen as a whole in order that we may realize how seriously the achievement of our main purpose is often endangered by YIELDING TO MINOR INTERESTS and to importunities of the moment.

ONE of the best LOCATIONS in OREGON CITY

On the corner of two improved streets, 3 blocks from the head of 7th street steps; 6-room house with sleeping porch, electric lights, hot and cold water, fine lawn, good garden. All street and sewer assessments paid. This is a good home with a beautiful view. If you do not believe it come and see ful things. There will be lectures and demonstrations of domestic science and household economy; there will be lessons in horticulture and agriculture, and there will also be lessons in the more refined vocations such as music, art and the modern languages. Those who attend may take their pick of subjects, and may get a brief but most thorough course in any one of a number of helpful things.

Then, partly as recreation and partly as a sort of unconscious training, there will be programs that will be almost purely entertaining, yet which will give those who attend a glimpse at various quarters and subjects of the wide, wide world. There will be "travelogues," there will be lectures upon astronomical subjects, there will be discussions of matters of state and political economy. And there will also be training for the physical body in various games and contests, and in the outdoor life. In short, it is a very broad and varied Chautauqua idea, and its interpretation, that has made the assemblies so popular—it is this breadth of ideal that is attracting so many people to Gladstone park. People who formerly put in their summer days earning such money as they could get in the fields or in offices or shops, now realize that the helpful training they will get at the Chautauqua, and the recreation they will have, is worth more to them in actual dollars and cents than the money they formerly earned by labor. They go to Chautauqua because they know it is valuable, because they know it is helpful, and because they want to take advantage of the opportunity offered for self-betterment.

WHEN IT. Everybody knows that HAPPENED the "Liberty Bell" is cracked. But few people know how, why or when it cracked. In fact there have been those who have declared that the historic bell never was really cracked, and that the apparent rent in it was only a flaw in the casting. However, the bell was cracked 78 years ago today, and it cracked at a most appropriate time. The bell that rang in liberty in a new world ceased its pure melody when the great John Marshall, chief justice of the Supreme Court of the United States died. While being tolled in his memory the mass of metal burst asunder, as if its very heart was torn by the passing of this great man.

For 34 years John Marshall sat in the highest tribunal of the land—from 1801 to 1835—and during those 34 years he completed the work that was started by the men who framed the Constitution of the United States. He interpreted that wonderful document, so that its provisions could apply to the problems of a fast-growing country; in brief he made it a living guide to right, instead of a mere declaration of principles. What more fitting, then, that the bell that rang in liberty should crack when Marshall, the great exponent of American liberty, was called to the world beyond?

One might even find more than fitness in this peculiar coincidence. Those who would go to extremes might say that with the passing of John Marshall there passed also the original work of the Supreme Court; for it was soon after his death that this tribunal began to find its calendar filled with cases not of interpretation but of interrogation. Before 1835 court was called upon to define the constitutionality of various laws, and to apply the test of the Constitution to statutes; soon after 1835 the court found itself confronted with the more modern questions, as to just how far the laws could be violated without violating the Constitution. It was fitting, perhaps, that the Liberty Bell should have cracked with the coming change—it was portentous that it should crack.
