

WHITE SLAVERY TO BE LECTURE TOPIC

The Hon. Guy F. Phelps will lay bare the ghastly system of traffic in girls in an address in the First Methodist Episcopal church, of which the Rev. T. B. Ford is pastor, this evening at 7:45 o'clock. Mr. Phelps is the author of the stirring book, "Ethel Vale, The White Slave."

Fathers and mothers, especially, should hear this lecture on the horrors of this awful infamy. Dr. Ford invites the general public to hear this orator in a terrific arraignment of the business of selling souls for gold. Come and have your soul set on fire with indignation against the crime, white slavery, with pity for the poor girl who has been carried away by demons and shut up behind iron bars while she cried out from the horrors of the underworld for release, and with a purpose to help in the extermination of the traffic in young women.

WHAT DAN LYONS SAID

Dan Lyons, master tunnel builder who took part in the general discussion at Wednesday's night's council meeting in regard to the contract for the improvement of Fourth street, finds that there is a misconception as to what he said to Jack Moffatt. Mr. Lyons wants it understood that he said Moffatt was not a citizen of Oregon City, and hence had no right to the floor. The Enterprise stated that he had declared Mr. Moffatt was "no citizen."

THREE-QUARTER TON SAFE FOR NEW CITY

Gladstone, having become a regularly incorporated city some time ago, and having entered upon a campaign of municipal betterment that has brought it prominently into the lime-light as one of the most progressive communities of the state, has found it necessary to obtain a strong-box for its ready cash and valuable records. A safe weighing three-quarters of a ton has therefore been purchased, and Saturday was delivered in the offices of the city recorder, John Selviers.

The mass of steel is guaranteed burglar proof, and is an imposing affair that would be necessary to penetrate the floors before it could be safe to be placed in its position. It has a fancy and new-fangled combination that Recordar Selviers has been industriously trying to memorize for the past several days, and it is reported that almost every evening now Mr. Selviers may be seen experimenting with the knobs and do-dads on the face of the three-quarter-ton strong-box, practicing with their combinations, so that he can open the thing

CUPID KEEPS BUSY

County Clerk McIvey has issued marriage licenses to the following, showing that Cupid is still busy in Clackamas county, in spite of various legal difficulties that have been created in his path by the recently effective law: Luis Porphy and Albert F. W. Kent, of Oregon City; Elizabeth Morel Adams and John Richard Leeper, of Seattle; Florence N. Kenner and Albert R. Zeller, of Portland; Ruth Muntz and Paul M. Ellmers, of Portland; Olive Irene Flagger and George A. Livers, of Portland; Mac Campbell and Alva Hughes, of Oregon City; and Ida C. Monahan and E. Palmer, of Oregon City.

FRUIT QUOTATIONS STILL GOING UP

Local markets are already beginning to feel the scarcity of fruit, due to the shipping east of the major portion of the state's crop. Royal Ann cherries are as scarce as hen's teeth, and are quoted retail at two pounds for 15 cents, which is no sort of price for a fruit state like Oregon. Logans and raspberries are fairly plentiful, and some late strawberries are being offered, but prices are all pretty steep.

California fruit growers, taking advantage of the scarcity in Oregon, and of the anticipated scarcity that will come when the larger fruits ripen, are shipping in apples, plums and pears. Apples are being offered at $2.75 per box, while the Portland quotations on pears and plums are around $2.50 and $2.75 per box.

Cantaloupes are also showing a higher figure, the price having gone up about 25 cents a crate. This is due largely to the fact that much of the incoming fruit from the south is overripe or spoiled by bad packing and transit.

California watermelon is on the market in considerable supply, and is of good flavor. The melons are small but tasty and range in price from three cents a pound up.

Vegetables are showing no change, beets, onions, peas, beans and carrots being plentiful and cheap.

COMPLAINT TO BE HEARD

"THE DEERSAYER" IS LIFELIKE FILM

Few novelists possess the necessary genius to carry the same character through five different works, but such a one is J. Fenimore Cooper, the author of "The Leather-Stocking Tales," a series of stories dealing with frontier life in the days preceding the revolutionary struggle. Cooper's abilities were such that he was able at the same time to tell an interesting story and give it a correct historical setting.

Those who have read "Deerslayer," one of the Tales, will be interested to know that this splendid story has been dramatized by the Vitagraph company, who have produced from it a most thrilling photo-play. "The Deersayer" is a two-part feature and will be shown in this city July 14.

Those who have not read the book will be given an especial treat as they will not only gain a splendid idea of the colonial period but will experience keen pleasure in seeing an exceptionally well enacted drama.

Prince John's Birthday

London, July 12.—Prince John the youngest son of the king and queen, had a birthday anniversary today. Though the prince is but eight years old and stands sixth in the line of succession to the throne, his birthday anniversary is accorded the same official honors as in the case of the older members of the royal family. This morning the bells of the Curfew tower and of Windsor Parish church were rung and at noon a salute of 21 guns was fired in the Long Walk.

TRY YOUTHFUL MURDERER

IRONTON, O., July 12.—Berkley Flemings, the 29-year-old farmer who according to his confession deliberately murdered his mother and his step-brother, is to be placed on trial here Monday, which will be the third anniversary of the step-brother's murder. He is to be tried first for the murder of his mother. Notwithstanding that Flemings made a detailed confession of the two murders after his arrest and led the officers to the places where he had buried his victims, he has entered a plea of not guilty and a strong fight will be made to save him from the electric chair.

The bad weather of the past few weeks has imbued the powers with a strong desire to get away on their vacations before vacation time is entirely ended, and in consequence it is likely that the congressional mill will be headed up from now on. During the coming week the senatorial debates on the tariff measure will begin in earnest, while the recess programme of the house is likely to end with the bringing in of the report of the currency committee.

A special election will be held in Texas, Friday, to vote upon several amendments to the state constitution proposed in joint resolutions adopted by the recent session of the legislature.

Few large conventions or other gatherings are scheduled for the week. The national assembly of the Knights of Khorassan will hold its annual meeting in Minneapolis. At Winnipeg will be held the thirteenth annual convention of the Union of Canadian municipalities.

Events of the week in sport include races at Pittsburgh, the Northwestern rowing regatta at St. Paul, and numerous state golf and tennis tournaments.

MONUMENT TO A PIG

BERLIN, July 12.—Lüneberg, in Hanover, boasts of having what is probably the most unique monument ever erected to an animal. In the ancient town hall in Lüneberg there is a mausoleum containing a costly glass structure. This contains a ham and is a monument to a pig. There is an inscription engraved upon a marble slab, as follows: "Passers-by! Contemplate herein the mortal remains of the pig which won for itself imperishable glory by its discovery of the salt springs of Lüneberg."

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
The Rev. George Nelson Edwards will preach at the Congregational church Sunday morning upon "A Present God—the Remedy for the Present Unrest." Gustave Fletcher will assist in the special music for the day. There will be no evening service at the church, the pastor hoping that the members of his congregation will join in the special services at the Gladstone park Chautauqua.
