ASSAULT ACTIONS TO HIGHER COURF

In Justice Sievers' court Saturday were arraigned for oreliminary hearing William Mumpower, the former deputy sheriff who shot Earl McAlty, of Portland, following the latter's at tempt at escape from custody on the Clackamas road; and Charles Wright, who is charged with attempting shoot Miss Elsie Utiker, of Oak Grove Defendants in both cases were repre sended by George C. Brownell and Gordon E. Hayes, while Deputy District Attorney Livy Stipp represented

Examination was waived by both defendants, and they were bound over to the circuit court under bond, Mum-Wright's bail of $2,000 being contin-

Mampower had arrested McAlty for shots at his prisoner when the latter tried to escape on a motorcycle. Two shots took effect, one piercing Alty's leg, and the other imbedding itself in his back. Wright, while intoxicated, waylaid and fired two shots at Miss Utiker, because, as he alleged, she had refused to marry him.

THE BATTLE AT BAZEILLES.

Commandant Lambert's Simple Report of the Desperate Conflict With the Bavarians That Was Immortalized In De Neuville's Famous Painting.

famous French battle painting called "The Last Cartridges," the work of Alphouse de Neuville, represents the desperate defense of an old house at power's surety being $1,000; and rines against great odds. Doubt havshooting a dog ,and while bringing has published the official report made the boy to Oregon City, fired several by Commandant Lambert, who commanded the detachment at Bazellles.

This is the brief story as it was recounted by the brave commandant:

Lambert had been wounded by a ball than a few steps. With a few officers and a detachment of his soldiers, cut off from the main body of the French army, he took refuge in an isolated house at the highest point in Bazeilles and defended it against the Germans.

Firing from the windows and any other openings that they could find, for some time past has been lodging the soldiers inflicted heavy loss upon the bulding at 612 Main street, the enemy, who swarmed through the streets of the town. They believed that they would soon be rescued by their own troops.

They still heard the sound of their mitrailleuses and the detonations of the French chassepots, which they could distinguish perfectly well from the sounds of the guns of the Bava-

They did not know that these sounds came from a French force as hopelessly walled in as they themselves were and that the main body of their countrymen had deserted them,

At one time, seeing a chance for their escape, Lambert tried to send his comrades away while he and a few soldiers were to remain and fall into the hands of the enemy, but they refused to go. Meantime projectiles of Arkansas Wednesday to select a gov. all sorts were raining into the old ernor to succeed Governor Joseph T. bouse. > losses they had inflicted, proposed to issue from the building with charged bayonets and sell their lives dearly in

But their commander, the wounded Lambert, waited until the last cartridge was fired; then he limped through the door and confronted the swarming Bayarians alone. He declared that if they killed him it would be time for his soldiers to die, and it was possible that he, their commander, could make some terms for them.

As soon as he limped out and stood at Denver, the Western amateur golf with folded arms a dozen bayonets a total population of 440,000,000 burns were at his breast. He would have been killed in another instant if the gold leaf weighing 308 grain, making Bayarian captain had not, at the risk of his own life, precipitated himself upon the French officer and beaten back his own men. Infuriated by the frightful loss which the defenders had inflicted upon their own regiment, they would have put the whole detachment

The Bawarian captain prevailed, and the Frenchmen were made prisoners of war. The Bavarian officer congratulated the French commander warmly upon the desperate and heroic stand they had made.

PERSONAL RESPONSIBILITY. The best governed school I ever say was one that had few rules, but where every pupil was thrown on his or her own personal responsibility.

The best results I ever had in controlling my own boys came through appealing to their better natures and putting it up to them to do right on their own initiative.

I told them my view of the case, then informed them they had their own Bazeilles by a handful of French ma- lives to live and I was going to put the responsibility on them-that I would ing been cast upon the authenticity of not force them to do right, but leave this episode, the French government them to do right of their own motion. has published the official report made It never failed to work. We all know what is right, and in our hearts we all want what is right. But so long as we think somebody else will compel us to do right we ing and heroic series of engagements leave the responsibility to them. What in which undaunted bravery and reck. we need is to stand on our own feet

In other words, we need more of a sense of personal responsibility. We need it because it is best for us and best for the nation. Government cannot make us good.
