WHERE THE Farm and Firebirds, FARMER WINS the national farm paper published at Springfield, Ohio,

"Most everyone reads and appreciates the government weather forecasts; but how many, especially farmers and poultrymen, realize the value of the weather report, giving, as it does, the temperature and weather conditions of the previous day in all sections of the country?"

"Since the advent of the rural delivery, all up-to-date farmers get a newspaper, and its value can be made immeasurably greater by a careful study of the weather report. For instance, the previous day at 8 p. m. the temperature of Detroit was thirty degrees. Then, if you happen to live in eastern Pennsylvania that will in all probability be your local temperature the following evening.

"It takes a little time and study before one becomes proficient in anticipating the weather, but after a time it becomes like second nature. There are many who, by closely observing local conditions, can pretty accurately forecast the weather.

"The writer has had four years' experience raising squabs, and he knows how invaluable it is to have some knowledge of weather probabilities in arranging the ventilation of pigeon-houses for the night. Poultrymen who sometimes have to get up during the night to look after an outdoor brooder, because a strong cold wind has sprung up might have foreseen the conditions by a simple study of the weather report.

"In reading this article do not confuse weather reports with weather forecasts. They are distinct and sep-

SOMETHING FOR Oregon City

ALL TO NOTE especially fortunate in having secured the exhibit of the Oregon Social Hygiene society. This exhibit, though in existence less than a year, has already aroused such a popular demand that it has been necessary to carry it out of the state into Washington. Educators from all parts of the country who had the opportunity of seeing the exhibit at the recent Reed College conference were unanimous in their opinion that in completeness, uniqueness and timeliness this exhibit is without a peer.

No expense nor effort has been spared to make the exhibit perfect in every detail. Logically divided into three sections, the first deals with "The Enemy." Graphically the social diseases are outlined from the tiny germs that cause them to the unfortunate results finally produced. The second section has to do with "Allies of the Enemy." Here the various quacks that prey upon ignorance of men and women are truthfully shown up in their utter dishonesty. The final section, in dealing with "Remedial Measures," shows what has been done to do away with the red plague and what can still be done.

Here in a few minutes one can learn the truth about a subject that every well-informed person should know. Thoughtful men and women will welcome this as an opportunity of securing knowledge so vitally important to the home life. Social Hygiene is largely a matter of home insurance and this exhibit in a remarkable manner points the way for applying this insurance.

"THIS IS MY 51ST BIRTHDAY"

James C. McReynolds, who holds the post of Attorney General in President Wilson's cabinet, was born in Elkton, Ky., July 23, 1862, and was educated at Vanderbilt University and in the law department of the University of Virginia. For several years he served as secretary to Justice Howell E. Jackson of the supreme court of the United States. He was a professor at the Vanderbilt law school from 1890 to 1903, when he was appointed assistant United States attorney general by President Roosevelt. His work in this position consisted chiefly in the prosecution of the tobacco trust and anti-trust coal cases and his success established for him a reputation as a "trust buster."

Congratulations to: Cardinal Gibbons, 75 years old today. Simon S. Pennewill, former governor of Delaware, 46 years old today. Dr. Albert Shaw, well known editor and publicist, 56 years old today. Rt. Rev. Edwin G. Weed, Protestant Episcopal bishop of Florida, 76 years old today.

Points for Mothers

Games For the Summer.

Duck Market.—This game may be played outdoors or in with five or more players. Two of the players are buyer and seller. The rest are ducks. The ducks stoop down in a row with hands clasped under the knees. The buyer says to the seller, "Have you any ducks for sale?" The seller says, "Yes, plenty of them. Will you walk around and try them?" The buyer now tries different ducks by laying his clasped hands, palm downward, on the head and pressing inward. He pretends to find fault with some of the ducks, saying, "This one is too old," "This one is too fat," "This one is too tough," etc. When a duck is found that is satisfactory the buyer and seller grasp his arm, one on either side, and swing him back and forth, the duck still remaining in a stooping position, with hands clasped under the knees. If he stands this test the buyer leads him away to a place selected as the coop. The sale goes on till all the ducks are sold. Any duck that smiles or does not stand the swinging test must pay a forfeit, to be redeemed at the conclusion of the sale. In case there are many buyers there should be two or more buyers and sellers.

Flyaway.—Five or more children may play this game either in the schoolroom or playground. The children are seated with their hands in their laps. When "it" says, at the same time raising his hands, "Fly away, mosquito," or "Fly away, robin," or "Fly away," followed by the name of any other animal that flies, the rest of the players are to raise their hands. When he says "Fly away," followed by the name of some animal that does not fly, the players are not to raise their hands, although the leader raises his. Any one making a miss either by not raising his hands at the right time or by raising the hands at the wrong time becomes "it."

Japanese Tag.—When a player is tagged he must place his left hand on the spot tagged and keep it there until he has caught some other boy or girl. The game works out in this way: The one who is "it" endeavors to tag a runner on the knee or foot so that his efforts to tag any one else while his hand is on that part of the body will be awkward and amusing.

How Children Are Lost.

Teach your child its name and address as soon as it is able to talk. Hundreds of children get lost every year and cause endless anxiety to their parents simply because they cannot tell where they live. No matter how young a child is if taught its name and address and told to give it when asked its chances of being brought home safe and sound are assured.

A guard in a city park beloved of children as a playground says that it is surprising the number that go astray.

"I have come across many cases," he said when questioned, "where boys and girls did not know their surnames. Some answered to 'Baby' and nothing else."

A teacher suggests that the small children in schools should be taught their name and address in class and then examined every week to see that they had not forgotten it. "If this scheme were adopted it would save parents a lot of worry and anxiety," she said. "But any mother can do away with the fear that her little one will be lost by teaching the child his name and address. Another precaution worth taking if you are afraid the little one will forget easily is to write the name and address in indelible ink on his clothes. This need not be put on the little gown itself, but may be written on an extra piece of linen and pinned beneath the hem of the skirt or some other inconspicuous place. In this way a lost child is easily located and returned to his distracted parents."

FATE OF A WORLD

Its Course From Chaos to Its Hopeless Death Struggle.

THREE ACTS IN THE TRAGEDY

The First Is Shown by Jupiter, the Second by the Earth and the Third by Mars, While the Moon Shows the Empty Stage After the Play Is Done.

No stage was ever set for such a tragedy as the planet Mars presents. It is the last act in the drama of a world's history!

The first act in such a drama consists of scenes from chaos. The huge planet Jupiter offers up a spectacle of thick clouds and its whirling vapors, glowing like steam above a furnace.

The second act is represented by the earth, with its fertile crust, its cool, invigorating atmosphere and its life sustaining seas that give birth to the clouds which, condensing on the mountains, furnish the rains and set the rivers flowing.

The closing act is the role of Mars, where the seas have vanished, the atmosphere has thinned out, the rivers have disappeared, the continents have turned into deserts, and life, driven into a corner, is battling against final extinction.

That there is yet intelligent life on Mars is the universal belief of all the observers whom Mr. Lowell has gathered about him at his Flagstaff observatory, where the extraordinary phenomena of that wonderful planet are studied as nowhere else in the world.

More than that, they tell us with ever increasing emphasis that the people of Mars, compelled by necessity, have developed a command over natural forces which would seem miraculous if exhibited upon the earth.

With them it has become simply a question of brain power against the inanimate powers of nature.

They have nights and days of the same length as ours. They have seasons almost precisely corresponding with ours, except that they are each twice as long. But their oceans are dried up, no rains fall (though there may be dew), and nearly all the atmospheric moisture is alternately locked up in one or the other of the polar snowcaps.

In such a situation no vegetation can flourish unless artificially stimulated by a gigantic system of irrigation. And without vegetation animal existence is impossible.

But whence can the inhabitants of Mars derive the water needed for irrigation? The answer given is that they get it periodically from the melting of the polar snows. Being without seas and rivers they have no other source of supply.

On Mars the reign of universal peace must have begun ages ago, introduced not by moral or sentimental considerations, but by the necessity of uniting all the engineering skill, all the inventive powers and all the physical forces of the entire population of the planet in a common battle for life.

The only thought of their inventors is of improved means for controlling the slowly lessening supplies of moisture that once in about two of our years may be drawn away from one of the poles while the summer sun is dissolving its thin snows.

This universal concentration of mental energy upon a single aim is conceived as having developed upon Mars a knowledge of the hidden forces of nature such as has up to the present merely been dreamed of on the earth.

We have just begun to learn how to use electricity in the mechanic arts, but they may have unlocked the secret forces inclosed in the atoms of matter which our science has recently assured us exist without showing us how to utilize them.

Only by such suppositions can the "canals," hundreds of miles wide and thousands of miles long, be accounted for, if, as the Flagstaff observers insist, those objects are really of artificial origin. It should be said, however, that in Mr. Lowell's opinion the bands called canals are, in fact, irrigated belts.

The real canals within them are invisible, while the progressive darkening of these belts, as the polar melting increases, is due to the growth of vegetation, stimulated by the water.

After the world life drama closes there is left an empty stage, and this is represented by the moon. The lunar world has lost all its water. Its tragedy is finished. The actors are all dead. Millions of years ago there may have been a battle for life there like that which now appears to be raging on Mars. And millions of years in the future the stage of the earth will probably be set for a similar tragedy. For to the eyes of the overlooking gods (to change a little Shakespeare's figure): All the sky's a stage. And all the worlds and suns are merely actors.

Why Silver Tarnishes.

Did you ever notice that the silver you stow carefully away in neat white cotton flannel bags, presumably, to keep it from tarnishing, is blacker and more stained with tarnish when you go to get it out of the bag than the silver that has been in use all the time? And did you ever notice, if the silver is kept in a long case that is wound about itself, that the silver best protected, nearest the middle, is most badly tarnished?

A jeweler says that the reason for this is that white cotton flannel is bleached with a mixture containing sulphur, which spots and tarnishes silver very quickly. So, when your extra dozen silver forks are carefully packed away in their white cotton flannel case, of course, those in the middle, farthest from the air, become the most badly tarnished.

It is for this reason that silversmiths always use blue cotton flannel bags and cases for their silver, not, as many persons think, because blue is more beautiful than white. No sulphur is used in the preparation of blue cotton flannel, and so none lingers in its folds after it is made up into bags and cases for silver.

Resting.

An excellent way of resting, if you have fifteen spare minutes, is to lie flat on your back on a couch or bed. Relax all your muscles, stretch your arms straight out and draw in several deep, sighing breaths; then release them slowly. You will be surprised how much fresher you feel when you rise from this rest.

Folding a Coat.

Here is the way to fold a man's coat when you want to pack it in a box or a trunk. Lay the coat out perfectly flat, right side up. Spread the sleeves out smoothly, then fold them back to the elbow until the bottoms of the cuffs are even with the collar. Fold the revers back and double the coat over, folding it on the center seam. Smooth out all wrinkles and lay it on a level surface in the trunk.

SERVICE.

The sweetest lives are those to duty wed. Whose deeds, both great and small, Are close knit strands of an unbroken thread. Where love ennobles all. The world may sound no trumpet, ring no bells, The book of life the shining record tells: Thy love shall chant its own beatitudes. After its own life working. A child's kiss Set on thy sighing lips shall make thee glad. A sick man helped by thee shall make thee strong. Thou shalt be served thyself in every sense. Of service which to men thou renderest. —Robert Browning.

Begin Children's Education Early

By ABBOTT LAWRENCE LOWELL, President of Harvard University

BEGIN THE EDUCATION OF YOUR CHILDREN AT AN EARLY AGE. LET THEM ENTER COLLEGE AS SOON AS POSSIBLE. PERMIT THEM TO GATHER AS MUCH GENERAL KNOWLEDGE AS THEY CAN BETWEEN THE AGES OF THREE AND FIFTEEN, SO THAT THEY MAY BEGIN THEIR VOCATIONAL EDUCATION BEFORE THEY ARE TOO OLD.

The history of the United States is a history of frontiers. In the frontier days every man had to be a jack of all trades, able to do all kinds of work. THERE WERE NO SPECIALISTS.

Now the United States is no longer a land of frontiers, and it becomes necessary that every man undergo a vocational education, a TRAINING FOR A LIFE WORK. Instead of a boy being educated to everything he must now be EDUCATED IN A SPECIALTY, be it medicine, surgery, law, engineering or blacksmithing.

The fault of the parents of today is that they do NOT SEND THEIR CHILDREN TO SCHOOL EARLY ENOUGH. To be a great specialist one must also have a general knowledge, but a general knowledge without a specialty will practically condemn a man to obscurity.
