HUGE BULLDOG MAD; AT LARGE

the darkness but it will be resumed again Friday.

Olds, who was bitten by the creature, is an order clerk for the Burns Grocery company, of Gladstone, and was taking orders at the time he was attacked. He was standing just inside the fence of E. P. Chandler's yard when the beast broke for his chain and rushed blindly at him. Olds tried to lead aside but the big brute nipped him as it flew past. Not feeling much pain at the time, Olds continued on his way taking orders, and not until he had completed his evening's work did he give attention to the bite.

Examination showed that the dog had bitten through his trousers which were of heavy material, his stockings and underclothes, and had bruised the flesh badly. It did not appear to be cut by the animal's teeth, however. Olds had the bruised leg cleaned and dressed at Gladstone, and then went to Portland for the best surgical and medical aid he could procure. The dog heretofore has made no objection to Olds when he entered the yard, and there was nothing in its behavior Thursday to indicate that it was infected with rabies. The size and power of the bulldog makes its case a particularly dangerous one, and warnings of the dog's malady have been sent broadcast throughout the district that it is apt to cover in its runnings.

But all this will take money, says some one. Of course, it will; and well that it does. But who has the money? The people have the money, and have it in super-abundance for all good things—if only they can be made to see that there is good money and plenty of it for them in these higher and holier enterprises, into which they may invest their means. O! the blighting wasting curse of the "penny wise and pound foolish" regime of the ages. Selfishness has ever been the wrecking crew of the race; the selfishness of his individualisms.

The facts are, all moneted values are divinely illusive except in cases of wise philanthropic handling. Illusive? Pathetical so, until the record and epitaph of most rich men has ever been, "He left," yes, reluctantly "left a fortune of a million or more." Just had to go off and leave it. The record and epitaph of all men, rich or poor, had infinitely better be as intended, "he used wisely and well, his possessions, and has advanced to the enjoyment and eternal possession of his well gotten and better used gains whose capital and doubly secured interest thereon are eternally his." And now how shall the means be secured for this larger and better enterprise? Let all interested, and all should be interested, let such take stock in the enterprise as in reason they may be able. At least as heretofore suggested, let everyone secure a season ticket, and while thus increasing the finance of the concern, they better serve themselves by insuring to themselves a more regular attendance thereon, and of course becoming thereby more largely benefitted by all the services of the Chautauqua.

I also suggest that at least two representatives from every commendable organization within the Chautauqua territory, be placed upon the board of control of said Chautauqua, that the organization itself may be put into closest possible sympathetic touch with the people, and as soon as possible or practicable, a field secretary or two should be put into the field to work up advertisement and by platform and personal solicitation, the means for its annual need. Meanwhile let everybody favorable to the enterprise think, talk, plan by month and by every week of every month for the success of the same.

All this can be done. Therefore, it should be done, and we are the people who can do it. Will we? There is the rub—will we? We can if we will, for there there is a will there is a way. In the very law and fitness of things, there can be no need, without a corresponding way to its supply. Let us up like men and live for others than ourselves, and use God of heaven. He will bless and prosper us.

I. C. S. An Ethical Power

Now, gentlemen, just for a moment, I would speak to you, not as an educationalist, but as a preacher of manhood and a lover of his kind. The question of the use of alcohol by the student when studying, has carried me back to the thought. The International Correspondence Schools are not simply educational, they are ethical; they not only make foremen and craftsmen and draftsmen, but they make MEN—in capital letters. For you can never awaken any one to his commercial possibilities without stirring up all other possibilities—social, patriotic, philanthropic, intellectual, moral. The moment you succeed breaking up one area of inertia you set vibration moving through every part of the being and all kinds of dormant and stagnant powers are set into healthy motion. When a man's mind gets engrossed with an intellectual occupation and he finds that he has a grip upon the laws and forces of the universe, the saloon, the vulgar and degrading game of the craps-table, loafing, and the hours of inane and ribald waste all seem to be unworthy of him and his self-respect clothes him in a protective armor which helps to keep his inner manhood inviolate. A great American preacher used to speak much about "the explosive power of a new affection," and, having as your life work the duty of both supplying and developing this "new affection"—the love of the best, by which the unworthy and base will be expelled, perhaps unconsciously but surely, from many and many a man. Success to you in your work!

The Trained Man Never Worries

When the chiefs put their heads together to hire or "fire"—the trained man doesn't worry. He knows that there is always a place for him.

You can look your job and every man in the face if you possess the training so much in demand everywhere today. The International Correspondence Schools will go to you in your spare time, wherever you live, and will train you to become an expert in your chosen line of work. Such a training will forever take you off the "anxious" seat. It costs you nothing to find how the I. C. S. can help you. Mark the coupon opposite the occupation for which you have a natural liking, mail the coupon today, and the I. C. S. will send you facts showing how you can earn more money in the occupation of your own choice.
