A MATTER The Czar of all the Russias, in looking over his summer "camp," made the discovery that a private bathroom had been provided for each bedroom. According to press dispatches, the Czar at once gave vent to the opinion that this was reckless extravagance, even for royalty, and added that he and his immediate family always shared a single bathroom, and found it quite sufficient, so he concluded that one bathroom for every ten guests should be sufficient.

It is interesting and enlightening to have a standard in matters of this kind set forth by one of the great rulers of the peoples of the earth, for there has long been a pronounced difference of opinion as to just how many bathrooms were the proper thing. Most American architects, in building private homes for average families, incorporate two bathrooms in their plans; one for the family, and one for the servants. When guests arrive, the servants' bathroom is usually furnished up and turned over to the guests. As but few American families entertain ten guests at once, the standard appears to be considerably above that of the Czar.

American hotels, on the other hand, and the mansions of millionaires, which closely resemble hotels, usually run to a plentiful supply of bathrooms. Perhaps a fair average would be one to every two rooms. Thus in this instance, too, the Russian standard seems to be exceeded. Even in days and places of exhibitions, when hotels and houses are jammed with guests and poor relations who come to visit, the ratio is considerably more than one to ten. From this it must be concluded that Americans are needlessly extravagant.

Looking at the other side of the case, this conclusion may be reversed. People who have lived in the big Eastern cities, where many of the Czar's former people migrate, have observed that the average Russian immigrant is as densely ignorant of the purposes of a bathtub as is a cow ignorant of the purposes of curling-irons. Russian immigrants have been known to use bathtubs as beds, or to find them convenient to keep coal or potatoes in. Many of them take a bath when they arrive, because they are forced to, and then they have their relatives sew their clothes upon them again, so that there shall be no bother of buttons coming off or hooks coming undone. Judging by their standards, even one bathroom to ten guests is extravagant.

It is to be hoped that the "Little Father" and his opinion in regard to this matter will become widely advertised, among his own subjects, as well as elsewhere. The Czar's standard may be said to be conservative, but it is better than not having any bathrooms at all. The public expression of a ratio of one bathroom to ten guests is a considerable advance for Russia, and offers hope for the future. Perhaps in time the Czar will see the advisability of having one bathroom for every five guests, and then still further enlightenment will follow. In the meantime it is nice for Americans to know that over here one bathroom per was fighting for a principle? And now that the ripples are subsiding, and the future outlook is getting slim, and pickings seem to be becoming scarce and scanty; why, bunk somebody into subscribing to the thing, so that the editor will have enough to live on until some other fuss is started.

MORE LIGHT This week's issue of ADMITTED The Courier sheds some more light upon the recall movement and that paper's warm and earnest support of it. The day of election is drawing near, and the fulfidelity of the Courier knows that the fulfidelity of the spiteful attack upon the county officials will soon be apparent to all, so he hastens to "make hay while the sun shines." Probably he had advance information of the adoption of resolutions condemning Robert Schuebel by one of the important locals of the Equity society, and probably therein he saw the handwriting on the wall.

"There is no better time than now to play your part in helping The Courier," says the ingenious editor. "You are either with The Courier or against it. If you are with it, the least we can expect of you is that you secure at least one new subscription for us."

Sure. Now that the fight is about over, and as the time is approaching when The Courier will have no excuse for being, hop in and get somebody to subscribe for it. Why did the paper take up the fight, if not to ride on top of the ripples that it was making, and gain all the subscriptions it could from the misguided few who were led astray by the misrepresentations of the recallers, and who thought the paper was fighting for a principle? And now that the ripples are subsiding, and the future outlook is getting slim, and pickings seem to be becoming scarce and scanty; why, bunk somebody into subscribing to the thing, so that the editor will have enough to live on until some other fuss is started.

Common decency for the "cause" might have led The Courier to invite people to "help the recall by subscribing to The Courier." Other papers have done that. But courtesy has no place in The Courier. It knows the cause is just about lost, and like the rats that desert a sinking ship it hastens to get out from under—and with as much of the loot as possible.

Be Particularly Watchful of All You Eat During the Summer

By CARL L. ALSBERG, Chief of the Bureau of Chemistry, United States Department of Agriculture

WHILE PEOPLE SHOULD BE CAREFUL ABOUT THE CONDITION OF THE FOOD THEY EAT AT ALL SEASONS OF THE YEAR, THEY SHOULD BE PARTICULARLY WATCHFUL DURING THE SUMMER MONTHS. IN HOT WEATHER BACTERIA MULTIPLY FAR MORE RAPIDLY THAN IN COLD WEATHER AND PRODUCE CHEMICAL CHANGES IN SOME FOODS WHICH GREATLY LESSEN THEIR NUTRITIVE VALUE AND OFTEN MAKE THEM UNFIT FOR HUMAN CONSUMPTION.

Unfortunately there is no quick, absolute, simple, practical way of determining the presence of hurtful bacilli in foods or of obtaining positive evidence of the existence of ptomaines. The average family does not have the delicate apparatus needed for these tests nor the skill to detect these micro-organisms.

The housewife will find EYES AND NOSE THE SAFEST PRACTICAL DETECTIVES OF BAD FOOD IN HOT WEATHER. If any article has an unusual odor or looks abnormal it should be AVOIDED. People eating in doubtful restaurants should be PARTICULARLY CAREFUL ABOUT MEATS OR FISH COOKED WITH A HIGHLY SPICED OR AROMATIC SAUCE, which might disguise a bad taste or warning odor.

Only sweet smelling, clean food should be eaten. Spotted, green, slimy or frothy raw meat or meat which is soft in spots also should be regarded with suspicion. Taste, of course, is a supplementary test, but one to be used AFTER EYES, NOSE AND FINGERS. A mother before she allows her child to eat anything should EXAMINE IT CAREFULLY IN A GOOD LIGHT, SMELL IT AND FINALLY TASTE IT.

Those who go away for vacation should not get the idea that everything in a summer resort or strange city is necessarily pure and wholesome. The DANGER OF TYPHOID FEVER IN COUNTRY RESORTS IS VERY GREAT. Many of the cases of typhoid fever recorded in the fall in cities where the water is pure had their origin in water or contaminated substances drunk or eaten at some summer resort.
