KNIGHTS TEMPLAR GATHER IN DENVER

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 8.—From east and west and from north and south armies of Knights of Templars are converging on Denver today. The advance guard is already within the gates, and the entire city will capitulate to the invaders before Sunday, when the thirty-second triennial convocation of the order will be formally opened.

It is more than twenty years since Denver was similarly honored, the last meeting of the grand commandery here having taken place in 1892. In the interval Chicago, Cleveland, Boston, Saratoga, Louisville and Pittsburgh, among other cities, have entertained the triennial convocations. In the matter of attendance Washington, D. C., holds the record, over twenty-five thousand Templars, by actual count having passed in review before President Harrison, but Denver hopes to eclipse this record, and to show at least forty thousand plumed knights in line next week.

For nearly two years the local committee of reception and entertainment have been preparing for the advent of the mighty hosts that will sojourn in this city during the next seven days, and even this early the hundreds of strangers are willing to admit that the work of the committee has been well done. In the matter of decoration, it might be said that Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed as is Denver today. On every hand are to be seen the emblems of the order intertwined with the national colors. The electrical decorations are particularly rich and elaborate.

LINEMAN IS ILL

W. J. Smith, a lineman employed by the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co., is seriously ill at his home in Canemah with typhoid fever. His sister, Miss Elma Smith, a trained nurse, was called to his bedside Thursday from Salem. Dr. Mount is the attending physician.

Mr. You Have-It,

—permit me to introduce Mr. and Mrs. I-Want-It.

Mr. and Mrs. I-Want-It have been looking for the very goods you manufacture, but they did not know they could be bought in this town.

The merchants—some of them—keep your goods. That's their complaint—they keep them too long.

They would much rather sell your goods than keep them—but Mr. and Mrs. I-Want-It have not been told about them.

Why not use the newspapers here to let them know what you manufacture and how good it is? Mr. and Mrs. I-Want-It read the advertising in newspapers like the ENTERPRISE.

Tell your story here and see how quickly the live, hustling merchants of this town will cooperate with you.

See how the people will appreciate a little information.

Smile as the orders roll into your factory. You will be too busy to worry!

For the Children

Little Son of Captain Scott, the Lost Explorer.

MASTER PETER SCOTT.

Very likely you all remember father or mother a little while ago telling you about Captain Scott and the brave men who went with him to find the south pole.

It does not much matter to you what this south pole really is, except that every one agrees that to find it is about one of the hardest things on earth to do.

Captain Scott and his party did find the pole after months of suffering and danger, but they found it only to lose their lives out in this frozen region.

It was a splendid, fine thing to do what these Englishmen did, even if they found out after reaching the pole that another man, Amundsen, had got there ahead of them. The world nevertheless always will be proud of this little company of Englishmen who filled to arrive first at the pole.

The sweet little boy whose picture you see is Peter, Captain Scott's baby son, who waved goodby to his father when he started for the pole two years ago. Peter missed his father so much that every now and then he would say to his mother: "Isn't it time daddy came home again? He promised he'd come back to us soon."

If you care to know more about Captain Scott and this little boy there is a book written especially for you children which tells the whole story of the expedition.

Conundrums.

Why do Russian soldiers have steel and the French brass buttons on their coats? To fasten them with.

How can you swallow a door? Bolt it.

Why is a watch a difficult thing to steal? Because it must be taken off its guard.

Why is an air played by an orchestra like Italian robbers? Because it is a band ditty.

An Industrious Child.

Anne Elizabeth Emily Green Loved to polish and scrub and clean. Early and late and brisk as a bee, Good little girl, she'd work for three.

She polished the knocker right off the door.

She scrubbed herself through the pantry floor.

She brushed the dog till she made him jump.

And washed the cat at the back yard pump.

She rubbed the color quite off the face Of her waxen doll, whose name was Grace.

And combed her hair in so stern a way It all came off in a heap one day.

Out in the garden among the flowers Anne Elizabeth raked for hours, Cried when some of them would not grow, "Well, it's a great deal nester so!"

The fairies watched, and they said, "It's

MOLALLA PLANNING 2-DAY CELEBRATION

MOLALLA, Aug. 9.—The preparations for the big celebration on September 19 and 20 are making excellent progress. Already application are being made for concessions for the two days of the fair.

There will be an excursion from Silverton, Woodburn and other southern points as well as from Portland and points north. The P. E. & E. will provide two bands and pay the expenses themselves.

The P. E. & E. are doing lots of advertising of the enterprise and it is thought that there will be at least five thousands people here on the 19th.

A letter to hand from Governor West, while not binding himself to a date so far in advance, assures us that if it is at all possible he will be here. The last of the month he will be able to tell us definitely.

A number of Mackinac people have asked to have the train stop near the railroad bridge on the day of the excursions that they could have an opportunity to ride on the first passenger train to Molalla. Probably their request will be granted.

DIVIDEND ORDERED PAID

Referee in Bankruptcy B. N. Hicks Friday declared a dividend of 15 percent on the liabilities of Seelye's grocery store that failed some weeks ago. The liabilities amount to approximately $5,000. In the course of a week or so there will probably be a further dividend of between three and five percent additional declared. Indications are that a total of 20 percent will be paid on the liabilities.

CREAMERIES FIND SELVES IN TANGLE

SALEM, Or., Aug. 8.—The discovery has been made that many business concerns, especially creamery firms, have incorporated under the general corporation laws of the state, but have organized under the law pertaining to cooperative companies, and unless they make a choice soon as to which of the laws they will operate under, they may be confronted with dissolution proceedings. All these concerns, organized under the cooperative laws, have failed to comply with the corporation laws.

Under a bill passed by the last legislature, no company is allowed to operate as a co-operative concern or to use the word unless it complies with the law relating to such associations, and in the event they do they are subject to dissolution proceedings either by the state or private persons. Corporation Commissioner Watson stated today that the best way for these concerns to avoid trouble was to elect the law under which they desire to operate, and then comply with it.

MOST DELICIOUS TALCUM

No queen ever used a better one. No American woman should use an inferior one, because nothing is too good for her. This thought governs in the making of Violet Dulce Talcum Powder.

Violet Dulce Talcum Powder is so impalpably fine as to make it usually persistent in its clinging qualities. It leaves the skin soft and velvety. It gives forth the dainty, exquisite odor of freshly-cut violets. Its soothing, antiseptic qualities help to allay irritation and keep the skin in health. It is cooling, comforting—a delight to men and women who want the best and the daintiest.

Violet Dulce Talcum Powder will in every way please the most exacting woman. That is why we sell more of it than of any other kind, and hear more praise for it than for all kinds put together. If it does not delight you—your money back. Price, 25 cents. Sold in this community only at our store, The Rexall Store, Huntley Bros. Co.

HAVING FUN ON TRAIN

LANDS YOUTH IN JAIL

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 8.—A real bright youth of 18, who gave his name as James Miller, of Oregon City, was arrested Friday night about ten o'clock at East Water and Hawthorne streets, upon complaint of two conductors on an interurban train, who told the patrolman on the corner that he had been "rough-housing" the car and passengers all the way in from the Clackamas metropolis. The youth was taken to the police station in the hooshgow automobile, and there failed to produce sufficient cash to bail himself out, so he was locked up for the night on a charge of disorderly conduct. At the police station the youth did not feel half as much like cutting-up as he had on the interurban train, and begged piteously to be released. There was nothing stirring.

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Aug. 8.—Predictions are being made that the 400-mile automobile speed record will be broken in the big race to take place over the Santa Monica course tomorrow.

FAMOUS PHRASES

Origin of Some of World's Most Popular Quotations.

WORDS THAT WILL ENDURE.

"While There's Life There's Hope" Was Written by Cicero, and Cynical Old Diogenes It Was Who Told the World "Habit Is Second Nature."

It is recorded that an ignorant person, explaining her distaste for Shakespearean performances, said that his plays were too full of quotations. Yet we, too, though we may pride ourselves upon our learning, probably do not know the origin of half the common phrases we use as carelessly as verbs in our daily conversation.

No less a person than Cicero first made use of the expression, "While there's life there's hope," in a letter he wrote to Atticus. "We are in the same boat" is not modern slang, but occurs in a letter written by Clement I, bishop of Rome, to the Church of Corinth in the first century. This letter is extant and is one of the prized documents of the early church.

"I never put off till tomorrow what I can do today," was Lord Chesterfield's explanation of how he managed to do so much work. "Whatever is worth doing at all is worth doing well" he wrote later in the famous letters to his son.

In some of the expressions we use habitually may be crystallized an epoch of history. Such is the motto of the Order of the Garter, "Honi soit qui mal y pense" ("Shamed be he who thinks evil of it"), which was given by Edward III, of England. Wishing to draw the best soldiers in the world to him, he proposed a revival of the round table of King Arthur, holding a tournament at Windsor castle on New Year's day, 1344. After the contest of arms the guests were entertained at his expense at a round table. Philip, king of France, was jealous over the interest this aroused and forbade his subjects to attend, at the same time misrepresenting Edward's motives. Several years later, when Edward founded the Order of the Garter, he chose a motto that seemed to challenge his rival monarch to think wrong of it if he dared.

Later English history has not been lagging in increasing the supply of apt remarks that have grown into everyday sayings. Lord Eldon, lord chancellor of England during the first twenty-six years of the nineteenth century, continually mispronounced the name of Henry Brougham, afterward to be a successor in the chancellor's office. Brougham objected to be called Broffam, and in this regard Eldon was the NEW CURE FOR RHEUMATISM.

mae over her. One, after bringing him made an excellent speech, Eldon by way of apology pronounced his name correctly and made a proverb, "Now brooms sweep clean."

The same expression occurs frequently to different people who could have no knowledge that their thought had been given utterance before. "No man is a hero to his valet" has been paraphrased by scores, from Mme. du Cornuel, a witty Frenchwoman of the seventeenth century, to Dr. Johnson and Napoleon. The first record of it, however, is found in Plutarch, who states that when Hermodotus addressed a poem to Antigonus I, king of Sparta, hailing him as son of the sun and a god, the monarch replied, "My body servant sings me no such song."

It was Diogenes, the cynic, who declared that "habit is second nature." The phrase "circumstances over which he has no control" was used by the Duke of Wellington in a letter concerning some affairs in which his son was mixed up and with which he declined to interfere. Dickens also used the expression a few years later when he had Mleawber write to David Copperfield, "Circumstances beyond my individual control," etc.

"Conspicuous by their absence" has been used on many occasions in modern oratory. It was first used by Tacitus in relating that in the funeral procession of Julia, niece of Cato, sister of Brutus, wife of Cassius, many of the images of the most famous families in Rome were seen, but "Cassius and Brutus shone pre-eminent because their images were not displayed."

"Nothing is certain but death and taxes," wrote Benjamin Franklin, stating that the constitution of the United States was in operation and to all appearances would last.

"Those who live in glass houses should not throw stones" was said by James I. of England when his favorite, the Duke of Buckingham, complained that a mob had broken his glass windows, which were at that time a luxury.

"Mind your p's and q's" is said to have been taken from an old French phrase at the time of Louis XIV. A very low bow was in fashion, and the dancing master in instructing his pupils would warn them to look out for the position of the feet and the movement of the head lest their cue wigs be disarranged. The French word for foot is pied. "Mind your p's and q's" soon came to be translated into English and abbreviated.

Walter Irwin once complained that when he had been invited to be funny at a banquet his real game of wit were addressed to the back of his chauffeur on the way home. But what's the difference? According to the Latin poet, upheld by modern investigation, every thing you could possibly say has been said before—Anna Bird Stewart in Minneapolis Journal.

JENNINGS LODGE.

The beautiful new home of Mr. and Mrs. Jennings was totally destroyed by fire on Wednesday morning at 1 o'clock A. M. Mr. and Mrs. Grogan narrowly escaped.
