When the King of Rome Cried. Many mothers might take a lesson to heart from the following incident. narrated by one of Napoleon's blog-ruphers: His little son, the famous king of Rome-L'Aigion, whom Maude Adams portrayed as a young boy a few years ago-was hardly more than a baby. He was in charge of a lady of high birth, who acted as his governess. In addition to gentle birth this woman possessed a true love and thorough sympathy for children. She understood the little king of Rome as nobody else did, and in return for her affection and kindness he grew very fond of her.

One day he began to cry, pettishly and rebelliously, and would not stop. The lady ordered the windows closed. the curtains drawn and the candles lighted.

The child looked on in wonder. "What are you doing?" he finally asked

"I am closing the windows so that the people of France will not know that their little prince cries," said the

The little prince ran to her impulsively. "A thousand pardons, madame," he said in the formal words in which he had been taught. And he forthwith stopped crying.

His governess understood that an appeal to a child's sense of honor will have more effect than all the scolding or reasoning in the world. Most mothers, although their children are not princes, could at least suggest to their children that the neighbors in want of subjects would hear the crying. An appeal of this sort seldom fails, especially when drawn curtains and lights in the middle of the day have attracted the child's attention and taken his thoughts away from the cause of his

What Every Mother Should Know. Every mother should early learn the appearance of a healthy throat. She can then easily recognize inflammation, enlarged tonsils and other unhealthy conditions. 'She should also accustom her child to throat examination Even a baby will soon learn that there is nothing to dread in having a teaspoon or other form of tongue depressor used As so many of chilfren's serious troubles start in the throat, it is better to be overcautious and to summon a doctor at once. The appearance of a rash is another danger signal which should not be allowed to co unheeded. A child on whom a rash has broken out should at once be quarantined, especially if there are other children in the family.

If a child shows any bad effects from a fall a doctor should be consulted and the child thoroughly examined. The fact that no bones are broken is no proof that other injury has not been sustained. This is one of the cases where an ounce of precention is worth many pounds of cure.

I. C. S. An Ethical Power

Now, gentlement, just for a moment, I would speak to you, not as educationalist, but as a preacher of manhood and a lover of his kind. The question of the use of alchohol by the student when studying, has carried me back to the thought. The International Correspondence Schools are not simply educational, they are ethical; they not only make foremen and craftsmen and draftsmen, but they MEN-in capital letters. For you can never awaken any one to his commercial possibilities without stirring up all other possibilities—social, patriotic, philanthropic, intellectual, moral. The moment you suc ceed breaking up one area of inertia you set vibration moving through every part of the being and all kinds of dormant and stagnant powers are set into healthy motion. When a man's mind gets engrossed with an intellectual occupation and he finds that he has a grip upon the laws and forces of the universe, the saloon, the vulgar and degrading show, the curb-stone loafing, and the hours of inane and ribald waste all seem to be unworthy of him and his self-respect clothes him in a protective armor which helps to keep his entire manhood inviolate. A great American preacher used to speak much about "the expulsive power of a new affection," and, having as your life work the duty of both supplying and developing this "new affection"—the love of the best, by which the unworthy and base will be expelled, perhaps unconsciously but surely, from many and many a man. Success to you in your work!

They Can't Vote Yet, But They Can Paint. These Suffragists Show How It's Done.

While suffragist couriers from all parts of the Union were invading Washington to pay their respects to congress a band of the faithful remained at home at Tompkinsville, N. Y., off which warships often anchor when they visit New York harbor, and painted. Now, when you say a woman paints it is politic to qualify your meaning, no matter whether she is a suffragist or not. These votes for women advocates turned painters in real truth. Donning overalls, bloomers or old skirts, with hats firmly pinned on, they attacked their clubbouse and painted under a redhot sun just like mere man. They climbed ladders and risked their limbs on the slanting roof just as nimbly as any simon pure union painter could have done. What is more, they made a good job of it. The picture shows Miss Elizabeth Degroff in overalls as head painter and Miss Genevieve Morritt in bloomers as assistant foreman of the job.
