

GIRL DROWNS IN WATER BARREL

THREE-YEAR-OLD DAUGHTER OF CANBY PARENTS MEETS UNUSUAL DEATH

HAD BEEN WITH LITTLE PLAYMATES

Leaves Brothers and Sisters to Find Amusement for Herself and is Dead When Children Search for Her

While her brothers and sisters were playing in the yard, the three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Gobbe was drowned in a barrel of water at the family residence three miles out of Canby on Saturday night.

Busy with their own play, the children did not miss their baby sister for sometime and not for several hours did they institute the search resulting in the discovery that the child had climbed over the edge of the barrel and had fallen into the rainwater collected there. Though every effort was made by the physician who was summoned immediately to revive her, the child had been in the water too long and was dead when the children found her.

During the day the little girl had been playing with her brothers and sisters in the yard. Sometime before the accident, she left them and started around the family home. So busy were the others with their own play that they did not notice she had gone and it is probable that she had been in the water for sometime when they at last began a search for her. The parents were notified by the terror-stricken playmates but the doctor who was called was not able to revive the child.

The funeral services were held at the residence at 12:30 o'clock Monday afternoon in the presence of a large number of the friends in and around Canby.

Organized Labor in Politics.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 18.—The long-standing strike of workmen employed in manufacturing owned by Governor Foss, and the prospect that the governor will make a hard fight for re-nomination and re-election, has prompted the Massachusetts Federation of Labor to prepare to take an active part in the state campaign this fall. ATHENIAN DEMOCRACY.

Our form of government does not enter into rivalry with the institutions of others. We do not copy our neighbors, but are an example to them. It is true that we are called a democracy, for the administration is in the hands of the many and not of the few. But, while the law secures equal justice to all alike in their private disputes, the claim of excellence is also recognized, and when a citizen is in any way distinguished he is preferred to the public service, not as a matter of privilege, but as the reward of merit. Neither is poverty a bar, but a man may benefit his country whatever be the obscurity of his condition.—Thucydides.

FORUM OF THE PEOPLE

OREGON CITY, Aug. 18.—(To the Editor of The Enterprise)—I noticed in your columns of August 17, where we had finished the first recall. Farmers seemed to have been lead blindly to think our county court had been wasting the taxpayers' money, but this is gone and past, so let them rest in peace.

Mr. Editor, I am not in favor of the recall for it will drive good men away from office seeking and give place for the low down leaders of the movement; but now to get back to business, while things are hot, why not finish up with the city council? I see where they are thinking of taking Bull Run water from Portland when our own water tests pure, though the council and a few of our up-to-date doctors who don't pay a cent of taxes would like to see the poor home builder burden himself with taxes to sustain the false statements and publication that they gave Oregon City water to try to make themselves famous. The state university, the state agricultural college, the board of health, and Dr. Hampton, of Portland, all found the city water pure and then our local talent still hangs on and tells the people to boll the city water. This matter will be watched closely by the taxpayers.

Thanking you kindly,
H. W. SMITH.

Love In the Stock Market

By DONALD CHAMBERLIN

About the close of the last century, when shares on the stock market were rising and falling like the waves of the sea under a storm, James Rigdon was for a time a power in Wall street. When it was reported that Rigdon was selling a stock everybody rushed to sell. When he bought the price would rise like the thermometer on a July morning.

Rigdon was a bachelor, and as soon as it became known among his women friends that he knew what stocks were going up and what were going down he received more attention than the handsomest man in New York. One of these ladies, Miss Martindale, he wished to claim as his own, but despite all he could do he couldn't find out whether she had any use for him other than to learn how to make money in stocks.

One evening while with her she impudently told him to give her a tip on some stock that was about to be "put up." He explained to her that when he boomed a stock, if it were known that he was booming it, it would rise in value, but the trouble was that, when he wished to unload, the moment it was known that he had begun to sell, down would go the market and he would be left with a lot of "undigested securities" on his hands. He was about to put up the market price on a certain stock, but he could not take her into his scheme, for if it were known that she was buying and selling by his advice it would result disastrously for him.

"But I won't tell," she said. "Can I rely on you?" "Certainly." "Very well. Buy Onarora Copper. It is selling at 7 cents a share." "How awfully kind of you!" "I can rely on you?" "Surely."

She gave his hand a special pressure when he left her and, running to the telephone, ordered him to purchase 1,000 shares of Onarora Copper. He did so without disturbing the market price of the stock half a point. Then she fell to thinking that her father and her brother and her sister would be delighted to participate in her good fortune, so she told them she had bought Onarora. There was no need for them to ask her why, because they knew she had for a long while been endeavoring to get a tip out of Mr. Rigdon. Surely there was no breach of confidence in this.

So the Martindale family put what spare money they had in Onarora Copper, and each told his broker his reasons for doing so. Each broker had a number of speculators hanging about his office who were given the tip. The stock rose slowly and beautifully like a balloon sailing up toward the sky. Now and again it would fall back, a few thousand shares being thrown upon the market.

Huge Argentine Dreadnought Biggest Battleship In World

THIS is the biggest battleship in the world. It's the Argentine Dreadnought Moreno Rivadavia. She was snapped at Quincy, Mass., where she was launched, Aug. 28, 1911. Her sponsor was Senora de Naon, wife of the Argentine minister to the United States. The displacement of the Rivadavia is 27,500 tons, and she has twelve twelve-inch guns, all of which can be fired at one broadside. The dimensions of the Dreadnought are: Length, 577.5 feet; width, 96 feet. She was scheduled to start on her trial trip over the government course at Rockland, Me., Aug. 12. A number of United States officers will be aboard her.

"Manipulation," said those in the secret. "The price is rising too rapidly for him. He hasn't got all he wants. Wait a bit." By and by these sales grew smaller, and for some time the stock ceased to be offered. Miss Martindale asked Mr. Rigdon if it were not time to sell. He replied, "Not yet." And the stock went higher. Then suddenly it began to tumble. Every one who had been speculating on the Rigdon tip began to get "from under" except the Martindale family. When Onarora had sunk to the price they paid for it Miss Martindale sent for Mr. Rigdon and asked him if the boom was over. "Yes, it is," he replied, "and I have unloaded all I had, some 40,000 shares, at a fair price."

Miss Martindale looked appalled. "I supposed," she said coldly, "that you were to let me know when to sell as well as to buy." "That would not have accorded with my plans. I told you when to buy, and you told others. I knew you would and that your tips to others would put up the stock. If I had told you when to sell it would have spoiled my scheme."

"In other words, you have used me to your own advantage. You have not only disappointed me, but you have induced me to disappoint others."

"How have I induced you to disappoint others?" "Why, they knew I bought the stock and surmised that I did so by your advice."

"And you did not tell them the secret. Well, you had no occasion to tell them. I believe that, in all, you and your family hold 3,000 shares. Am I right?" "You are."

"Well, when the stock reached its highest stage I sold 3,000 shares for your account and also sold 3,000 shares more for you to be delivered within thirty days after the sale. You and your family have made on the rise of the stock $12,000 and as much more on the fall."

Miss Martindale stood looking at Mr. Rigdon with astonishment, the cold look on her face breaking into a smile. Then she put out her hand. Mr. Rigdon improved the opportunity by putting the other hand around her waist and, drawing her to him, kissed her, at the same time proposing a new deal by which she should always profit by his operations.
