TO STUDY CURE FOR PANICS AT THEATRES

and, if that should be impossible, to reduce the danger from such panics. He has made a study of fire panics and has come to the conclusion that the confusion at panics is due to the fact that the persons in the audience insist upon leaving the house through the same door which they entered. Many plans were suggested at the conference to teach the audience to leave quietly through the nearest emergency exit instead of rushing wildly toward the main entrance, but so far no feasible plan has been suggested that promises to be effective.

MEADE POST PAYS TRIBUTE TO COMRADE

Another light has gone out, another beloved comrade has been summoned across the Great River. Comrade Milo Cooper, who died at Pilot Rock, Oregon, on the 14th day of August, 1913, was for many years an honored member of this post.

He was born in Lewistown, Pa., on February 1st, 1835, and enlisted in Company "C," 123rd Pennsylvania Volunteers in 1862, serving three years. The 123rd was attached to the Army of the Potomac and participated in nearly all the great battles in which that army was engaged.

Comrade Cooper lived in Pennsylvania until 1880, when he moved to Kansas, and in 1880 he came to Oregon, holding many positions of trust and responsibility in each locality he resided.

Comrade Cooper was a man of sterling integrity—a brave and gallant soldier and was very highly esteemed by all with whom he came in contact. His loss will be keenly felt by all members of the post. To the surviving relations of our deceased comrade, this post tender its sincerest sympathies.

MICHIGAN SHOWS EXAMPLE.

Rich and Poor Work on Road Improvement Task. Five thousand Michigan men from nearly every walk of life have recently set an example which may well be followed by the whole United States by building 250 miles of excellent automobile road in a single day.

And the women of the northeastern part of the state, through which the new highway runs, are entitled to much credit, too, for, while their husbands, fathers, brothers and sweethearts labored at digging and plowing and grading, these women cooked meals that put new heart in the muscle weary workers and made this most notable accomplishment possible.

As a result of the labors of these Michigan people there now is an unbroken line of gravelled highway for over 250 miles from Bay City to Mackinaw City, where two days before there was mfe after mile of corduroy road, sand holes and swamp lands.

Mayors of cities and towns, state officials, millionaire lumbermen and mill men slaved in the hot sun, hewing with picks and axes at corduroy road slabs, throwing stones, shovelling sand and gravel, leading plow horses or performing other of the innumerable tasks.

GRAY, FADED HAIR OR BEAUTIFUL, DARK, ATTRACTIVE—CHOOSE, MADAM!

Says Sage Tea Mixed With Sulphur Restores Natural Color and Lustre. Grad, faded hair turned beautifully dark and lustrous almost overnight, is a reality, if you'll take the trouble to mix sage tea and sulphur; but what's the use, you get a large bottle of the ready-to-use tonic, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," at drug stores here for about 40 cents.

This is the age of youth; gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with the sage and sulphur tonight, and you'll be amazed at your youthful appearance and the real beauty and healthy condition of your hair within a few days. Inquiry at drug stores here shows that they all sell lots of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur," and the folks using it are enthusiastic.

Bland Acres are for sale in 2, 5 and 10-acre tracts on easy monthly terms. Prices, $200 an acre and up to $350. Special inducements to buyers during the month of September. Special inducements will be made to buyers who are bona fide home-builders, or those who will immediately improve their tracts.

DECAY OF MANNERS.

The men of the seventeenth century were, I suspect, the gentlest bred Englishmen ever produced, partly because they possessed good manners themselves, and partly because they realized the enormous importance of courtesy and good manners in the common transactions of life.

Now, we English people, and I am afraid, still more so Scotch people, are never famous for good manners. I think at one time there was a sort of John Bull feeling in England that good manners were a device for the dancing, frog eating Frenchman, whom it was our duty to despise.

I think there has been a decay of manners in England, Scotland and all over the world. Good appearance and good manners have an enormous commercial value in life. I sometimes wonder why they are not harped on more. Good appearance, you may say, is not at our command. I don't agree. Good looks are not at our command. They are a gift of the gods, but a good, straightforward, manly appearance, an appearance without self-consciousness—which is the most disagreeable feature perhaps of all in appearance—is within the command of every boy.—Lord Rosebery.

SYMPATHY.

We often do more good by our sympathy than by our labors.—Canon Farrar.

It is not by attending to our friends in our way, but in theirs, that we can really avail them.—Margaret Fuller.

The most delicate, the most sensible of all pleasures, consists in promoting the pleasures of others.—La Bruyere.

A good deed is never lost. He who sows courtesy reaps friendship, and he who plants kindness gathers love.—Basil.

INTROSPECTION.

That which a man thinks and feels, with his whole force of thought and feeling, the man is himself.—Owen Meredith.

The solitary side of our nature demands leisure for reflection upon subjects on which the dash and whirl of daily business, so long as its clouds rise above us, forbid the intellect to fasten itself.—James A. Froude.

There is that within us which, all unbidden, rises to answer to the voice of intellectual truth, come whence it may.—Edersheim.

How few persons are quite aware what resources and powers are stored up in the soul—or waiting within easy call, to serve them in all intellectual or moral emergencies.—Rev. C. G. Ames.

Prussian Blue.

Prussian blue is prepared from horses' hoofs, and is made by fusing the hoofs with potassium carbonate.

TRY COOKING LETTUCE.

Palatable Ways of Serving This Popular Vegetable. There are so many ways of cooking lettuce that it might almost appear on the table every day in two forms—once as salad and once as a cooked vegetable.

One rather unusual way makes use of a sort of lettuce which any amateur grower sometimes raises, much to his despair and regret. This is lettuce that has gone to seed. Let it grow eighteen inches tall, strip the stalk of all leaves and cut the stalk in inch pieces. Boil these until they are tender and serve them with a well seasoned cream sauce. Lettuce served in this way is truly delicious.

Lettuce boiled like any other green and served chopped with butter, pepper and salt is also very good. It should be tender and fresh before it is cooked if it is to be tender and delicious when it is served.

Lettuce cooked like greens in the following way is worth trying: Boil it in salted water until it is very tender. Then drain in a colander and chop it fine. Measure a tablespoonful of butter and half as much flour for each quart of the greens and blend them in a frying pan, adding the lettuce when the butter and flour are smooth. After four or five minutes' stirring add salt, pepper and a quarter of a cupful of cream. Stir until the cream is hot and serve.

WORLD CONGRESS OF STUDENTS

ITHACA, N. Y., Aug. 29.—With an attendance of delegates representing the student bodies of universities and colleges in many parts of the world, the eighth biennial congress of the International Federation of Students assembled at Cornell University today and will continue in session until the latter part of next week. The congress is the first gathering of its kind in America.

The international federation was organized in Italy in 1898, and now has affiliated societies in many countries of Europe and in both North and South America. The principal object of the organization is to create a closer unity among students of all nations and to consider the problems common to students in every country. At the conclusion of the sessions here the foreign delegates will be conducted on a two weeks' tour of the principal cities and educational centres of the eastern states.
