CUZCO AND THE INCAS.

Peru's Ancient City Was on the Plan of the Roman Camp.

The ancient city of Cuzco, when first riewed by European eyes, was, according to the best authorities, a great and wealthy municipality of perhaps 200,-000 souls. How old it was at that time we have scant means of knowing. Garcilasso would have us believe that there were only thirteen Incas in the royal family line from Manco Capac to Huayna Capac. Montesinos, on the other hand, assures us that the Incas ruled a thousand years! Which are we to believe? No written history of the race exists-only the records of the fulpus, those queer knotted strings which were the lucas' sole documents and for which no archaeologist has as yet discovered the key, the Rosetta

Cuzco's original plan was, singularly enough, that of the Roman camp, a quadrangle divided by two intersecting streets into quarters, with a gate on each face and towers at the angles. The Incas, like the citizens of the United States, had no more definite name for their country than Tavantinsuva, the Empire of the Four Provinces. The four streets of the capital, prolonged by great roads, divided It into four main provinces, each under the dominion of its governor. When their people came to Cuzco they lodged in their own quarter, where they adhered to their national costumes and the customs of their own province.

The city today retains the same general plan, its two principal streets being virtually the old main thorough-. Battle of Nations Monument To Be Dedicated In October

NE of the greatest monuments in the world is shortly to be dedicated. It is too big to be unveiled. Thirteen years ago the German Patriotic league started hundreds of men at work on the Battle of the Nations monument at Leipzig. It is now just finished and will be dedicated in October. One hundred years ago Austrians, Prussians, Russians and Swedes fought against the French in one of the bloody battles of history. The picture shows the monument practically completed, but with the great network of scaffolding still in place, like some giant office building iron framework.

DUST FROM TAR ROADS KILLS TREES ON HISTORIC DRIVEWAY

French Scientist Finds That Bitumen Pavement Is to Be Preferred.

Unless the present system of tarring the roadways in the avenues of the Bois, Paris, France, is promptly discontinued there will soon be no trees left at all, according to an announcement recently made.

It is officially stated that since the roadway has been tarred to minimize 6 to 6%c. the dust the number of dead trees which have had to be replaced by new ones has multiplied by four. Moreover. the young trees which have been planted are unable to flourish, owing to the poisoning of the soil, and rapidly per

Although a grant of $6,000 was re cently made by parliament for the planting of new trees in the Avenue du Bois. Le Forestier has not yet on basis 4 for 35 to 40c touched the money, asserting that until some new method is introduced such an expenditure would be throwing the money into the gutter.

Conditions are the same throughout the more frequented roads, which are treated with pitch, and there is a strong feeling on the part of the public that no time should be lost in radically changing the present method and insuring that no further damage shall be done to the vegetation of the historic

In support of his agitation Le Forestier points out that a commission, appointed some time ago to inquire into the matter, has already reported that' not only are all the ornamental plants and flowers seriously affected by the tar dust strewn on them from the wheels of passing vehicles, but also that their leaves first show spots resembling burns and then drop off.

Among the trees two species, the vew and the plane, seem to resist the effect a little better than the others, but even with these final destruction is only a matter of a short time.

The commission recommends that the roads of the Bois be covered with small paving stones or bitumen instead
