Principals In Newest Act Of the Thaw-White Drama

Photos copyright, 1913, by American Press Association

HE sensational escape of Harry K. Thaw, slayer of Stanford White, from the Matteawan (N. Y.) asylum for the criminal insane, his capture within forty-eight bours in a small Canadian town near the New Hampshire border and his subsequent fight against being brought back to the asylum furnished one of the most dramatic acts to Thaw's life drama. This picture shows how he looked at the time of his escape, for it was taken only a short time before His wife, Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, feared that Thaw would make an attack upon her or would flee to England and there attempt to work his revenge through her little child, whom she had left there when she came to America recently to resume her stage life. This picture was taken when she arrived in New York.

HAPPINESS. To be unhappy is to blame life unjustly. Those who understand this and realize that happiness is of their own making know that paradise is to be found here on earth. It should be the duty of the governments of the world to destroy the anguish and terror felt by living creatures toward nature, life and death, Be happy in love. We must recognize that disillusionment is not always caused by the other person, but from lack of clear sightedness. We must have the courage to be mistaken twenty times and, so far from despising disappointment, must understand that it can be useful in educating us.-Henry Marx.

DISEASED THOUGHT.

When You Realize That Is What Worry

Is You Have It Mastered. Concentrated thought is virtually irresistible. All the vast edifice of modern science and industry is obviously the product of thought much of it of our own time and observation. The birth of an idea in the human mind is clearly the one and only dawn of empires and revolutions, of engines, phiosophies trade routes civilization

To class worry under the head of thinking, therefore, seems a glaring sacrilege. Yet worry is thought, for all that-diseased, impure, adulterated thought. It means an admixture of emotion, of the worst of all emotionsfear-into one's thinking. Instead of concentrated, clear, serene thinking on the problem in hand, worry is thinking muddled black with fear. It is about as helpful as clapping the brakes upon wheels toiling uphill.

Yet all the world is laboring under that Egyptian beaviness of the wheels, and almost every spirit is a spirit in the dark prison of fear. But once we grasp this truth clearly, once we convince ourselves that we can rid our thought of emotionalism, of fear, the day of our deliverance is at hand. And the substitution of encouraging, healthy thought, of new channels among the worn ruts, is a powerful aid. There may be failures and back slidings, as is customary in all mortal effort and human endeavor. But fear is weakened like a choking thing, and more and more clear and unimpeded becomes our thinking, for we realize at last, once for all, that where thinking cannot help us fear certainly will not. And then we have worry by the thront.-Collier's Weekly.
