CANADIAN JUDGE FREES JEROME

FINDS LAWYER DID NOT PLAY IN GAMBLING GAME AND GIVES DISCHARGE

WAS A JURISDICTIONAL QUESTION

Court Doubts Authority to Decide but Finally Takes Case and Hears Testimony Offered by Defense

COATICOOK, Que., Sept. 8.—William Travers Jerome was acquitted tonight of the charge of having gambled on Thursday last on the station property of the Grand Trunk Railway here while waiting for the immigration authorities to pass on the case of Harry K. Thaw. In discharging him the court apologized for the humiliation to which he had been subjected. The hearing before Magistrate Henry Mulvena, of Sherbrooke, lasted less than an hour. It began at 7:35 o'clock and at 8:20 the court said: "Sir, you are honorably discharged. An attempt to hold an afternoon session failed because the magistrate felt he had no authority to take precedence over James McKee, the justice of the peace who signed the warrant for Mr. Jerome's arrest. Tonight, however, the magistrate said he was convinced of his authority to act and the hearing moved with dispatch.

COUNTY IGNORES COURT'S ORDER

DISTRICT ATTORNEY ADVISES NEW OFFICERS NOT TO HEED MANDAMUS

IS THE ECHO OF RECALL VOTE

Holds That Suit Was Brought Against Officials Not Now in Power and Has no Effect at Present

Deputy District Attorney Livy Stipp, acting as county attorney, has advised the members of the county court and the county treasurer to ignore the decision of Circuit Judge J. U. Campbell in the matter of the Gladstone road fund suit, which was brought in the form of mandamus proceedings to compel the county to refund to Gladstone the unexpended portion of the road tax collected within its borders for the years 1911 and 1912.

The court ruled that the money collected within the Gladstone limits was for the sole use of the improvement of Gladstone's highways and ordered the unexpended balance returned to the municipality.

Suit Against Old Court

The proceedings were brought against the county court composed of Judge R. B. Beatie and Commissioners N. Blair and Mattoon. While the matter has been pending in the courts Judge Beatie and Commissioner Blair have been recalled, and replaced by County Judge H. S. Anderson and Commissioner J. W. Smith. Mr. Stipp holds that the present county court, therefore, is not a party to the action, that it cannot be mandamus on the original suit, and that as they have never refused to give the moneys in question to Gladstone, and have never had a day in court for any hearing in relation to the matter, they cannot be affected by the outcome of the action. Mandamus proceedings, Mr. Stipp holds, are directed against individuals, and not against county officers in the abstract, and therefore Judge Anderson and Commissioner Smith cannot be bound by court orders directed to Judge Beatie and Commissioner Blair.

TENEMENT HOUSE PLAY STARTS SUNDAY

A realistic picture of life, or existence rather, in a typical New York tenement of the lower order, is Kindling, which The Baker Players will present this week beginning Sunday matinee.

Few persons in this glorious West have any idea of just what it means to fight for air and food like some wild animal from day to day as these people do, and a play that portrays the life as Kindling does is bound to attract more than passing attention. Then the fact that it was the play in which the well-known star, Margaret Illington, returned to the stage and so suddenly re-established herself in the hearts of Broadway's critical auditors, is going forth to "darn socks and forget the glare and glitter of the footlights," stamps it as being something out of the ordinary. After playing it constantly for two years Miss Illington has turned to something else, and Manager Baker secured it for stock in Portland while in New York last summer. Kindling tells the story of a young wife of the tenements, who having become haunted with the idea that her unborn child would be killed if allowed to first see the light of day in surroundings like hers, determined to get it something better, and in carrying out her purpose, was easily led into an alliance with a worthless thief for the purpose of robbing a wealthy house in which she was employed. The clever detective work of Rafferty, the discovery and following confession at the little empty cradle, the attempt to murder the child, the guilt upon himself and the final happy ending are all wonderfully worked out and Kindling is one of the most interesting and thrilling plays of the day. The usual Baker matinees will be given Sunday, Wednesday and Saturday and her special bargain performance Monday night.

MASONS IN SUIT OVER EIGHT LIENS

Partial decisions were given by the circuit court Monday in the suit brought by A. Koutz against the Canby Lodge No. 134, A. F. & A. M., on eight liens that had been filed against the $8837.75 home of the order. On other cases, the court will reserve its judgment and continue the case over until Wednesday.

The suit was brought on the liens filed against the property for material furnished. The lodge let the contract to Arnt Anderson who was paid according to the estimates of the architect until it neared completion when a certain per cent was retained. The liens were filed for $1000 more than the lodge had on hand to pay the debt and it immediately refused payment. Suit was then brought on the liens.

By stipulation, the plaintiff was granted a decree for $650, J. C. Bayer for $333 without costs of any kind, and those of the defendants Fisher and the Ironite Concrete company contained until Wednesday for further evidence.

Striking Prize Winners In Asbury Park's Famous Baby Parade, Which Was Witnessed by 100,000 Persons.

Photos by American Press Association. One hundred thousand persons, many from various parts of the country, saw the annual baby parade at Asbury Park, N. J. This yearly event at this famous seashore resort is the biggest thing of its kind held. There were 648 babies in line, attended by fond parents or relatives, and the prize winners were all interesting. The float that attracted most attention and won first prize showed little Burnadette Barret of Arlington, N. J., three years old, as "September Morn." after the painting that has been so much talked about. Another striking prize winner was little Malline Wharmby of Asbury Park, who posed in the float "The Hand That Rocks the Cradle Rules the World." This won the Princess Cinderella prize. These two prize winners are shown in the illustration.

BACHELORS LAMENT FAIR MAIDS' ARTS AND WILES

"Say, have you fellows noticed how this club is losing its old bachelors right and left?" demanded the philosopher as he settled back in a Morris chair at the Commercial club Monday afternoon and chatted with a crowd of newspaper men and others who were killing time in the club rooms. Lighting a fresh cigar, he went on to explain his sudden burst of confidence: "Within the last few months there have been a lot of the members of the old gang who have left here and built little nests of their own. Many of the fellows whom we thought were confirmed in their ways and who had defied the wiles and arts of most of the pretty girls here for years have at least succumbed and have gone out of the club rooms.

MILWAUKIE SCHOOLS TO HAVE NEW WORK

Milwaukie schools opened Monday with an enrollment of 320 students. Although this town has grown in the past year, the attendance is about the same as the preceding year, the reason being that a large number of the students are still in the hop fields.

Prof. Robert Goetz, principal of the school, was in Oregon City Monday and expressed himself as satisfied with the conditions there. He said that he was decidedly in favor of establishing a manual training department for the boys of the school. Last year this proposition was turned down because of the expense, but it is said, that lately there has been a decided public opinion in favor of this new enterprise. Many people believe that this step will be taken before the end of this year of school.

SHOES HORSES IN MANY STATES, LOCATES SHOP HERE

It is not an uncommon thing to see a man who holds a record in a hundred-yard dash or running a typewriter, but there is one man in Oregon City who has a record in a class by itself. That man is Mr. W. J. Wheaton.

Mr. Wheaton has shod horses in 36 states in the union, in Australia, New Zealand and the Philippines, and has now settled down in Oregon City in a shop of his own. He was formerly in the employ of J. F. Hodges when he secured control of the shop on the corner of Water and Sixth streets.

Mr. Wheaton will restock his shop and intends to establish the reputation of an up-to-the-minute place of business.

WOMAN THROWS RING AT PASTOR

SUDDENLY LOSES HER MIND AND TRIES TO DISROBE BEFORE MINISTER IN CHURCH

IS WELL KNOWN IN OREGON CITY

Worries Over Domestic Troubles Effected Her While Here—Son Cited to Appear Before Grand Jury.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 8.—Little hope is entertained here today for the immediate recovery of Mrs. Rosalie Goulding, who was suddenly bereft of her senses as she sat in the choir of the Howard Street Methodist church here last night.

The pastor, Rev. Dr. Carlos, had just concluded a prayer when Mrs. Goulding arose and began to disrobe before the startled congregation. Ushers rushed to the choir loft and finally quieted the woman. A moment later Mrs. Goulding again jumped to her feet and threw her wedding ring at the pastor. She was then removed to the hospital for observation.

Considerable interest was expressed here Monday over the report that Mrs. Rosalie Goulding had gone insane in a church in San Francisco, hurling her wedding ring at the minister. Mrs. Goulding was well known here, where she was for some time correspondent of the Oregon Daily Journal.

While acting in that capacity here she was assisted by her son, who later sent a fake dispatch to The Journal, in which he charged that there had been an attempt at a robbery in the Gault murder trial. For this he was cited to appear before the grand jury, but fled the city before the subpoena could be served. Later he returned for a brief visit and was quizzed by the grand jurymen.

Mrs. Goulding was much worried here, where she was at present for a Portland furniture house attached her home furnishings, and she found her returns from newspaper work insufficient to support her. Later she moved to San Francisco, but the C. O. Pick Transfer company attached her belongings in Portland to satisfy a debt.

In Portland Mrs. Goulding was a candidate for councilman-at-large at the last primary. She got but a handful of votes.

TWO CITIES SOON TO HAVE OWN CHARTERS

West Linn and Molalla will hold their first municipal elections during the month when they will select the officers who will start the machinery of their city governments in motion under charters that are fixed to be approved by the people.

The county court has fixed the date of the election in West Linn as September 19 and that of Molalla as September 22. At these times, the cities will select the officers for their new form of government and will later adopt a charter that is now being prepared by attorneys who have been employed.

Both cities have decided on incorporation under the state laws and have determined to elect municipal officers and have a charter of their own.

BARDE & LEVITT STOCK ON BLOCK

BANKRUPT FIRM'S MERCHANDISE WILL SOON BE SOLD TO HIGHEST BIDDER

COURT TURNS DOWN COMPROMISE

Oregon City Merchant May be Able to Make Arrangements to Resume Business Here in Near Future

The stock of Barde & Levitt, on the corner of Main and Seventh streets, will probably be sold to the highest bidder as soon as it can be advertised according to a decision made Monday by Judge Bean in the United States district court of Portland.

After the failure of Barde & Levitt last February, the firm made a proposal to settle with its creditors at 45 cents on the dollar. This compromise was generally satisfactory, but a few of the creditors were obdurate and in a fight among some of the attorneys for fees the whole matter was held up until Monday, when Judge Bean held that the manner in which he marked the bookkeeping methods of the firm, now in bankruptcy, savored strongly of an attempt to conceal its true financial condition. The court, it is said, also was dissatisfied with reported stock juggling in the firm of M. Barde & Son, of Portland.

Mr. Levitt, whose sudden failure occasioned considerable surprise in Oregon City, went into business here several years ago and built up a fine trade. About a year ago, however, he joined forces with Barde and they opened a chain of stores, maintaining clothing establishments at Salem, Corvallis and Hood River. These ventures did not work out satisfactorily and the firm was plunged into the bankruptcy court. Ever since the Oregon City store was closed, Mr. Levitt has held on to his lease of the lower floor of the Barclay building, which is unusable, and has been waiting for a store, and it is possible that he may yet arrange to resume business in Oregon City.

Lack of available working capital at a critical period is said to be the primary cause for the failure of the firm. At the time it was in bankruptcy, its assets were placed at $112,908 and the liabilities at approximately $140,000. It is probable that the stock of each of the four stores will be sold separately.

MOLALLA TO HAVE BRIDGE NEXT YEAR

Molalla will have a new bridge over its river as soon as the danger from flood is over and the construction work can progress without interference from high water.

The county commissioners have listened to tales of plan and specifications and has decided that it will allow the appropriation for the bridge as soon as the work can be completed without interference or danger of damage.

To award the contract at this season of the year would mean the judgment of the court, throw the actual work during the period when the water in the river is at its height and would endanger all of the substructure erected during the work. As soon as the flood danger is over, the court plans to advertise for bids on the cost of the bridge and to have the bridge rushed through to early completion.

Talk Improvements. Roads and bridges through the county have been the subject of considerable discussion in the court room during the last few days of session and has attracted a great deal of attention from the members of the court.

Among other things, the commissioners have considered the plan of allowing the several districts to use the money that is raised within their limits for actual work on their own roads and to take none of that money for roads in other parts of the county.

Several arguments along this line have been made to the board by those who are interested in the improvement of the county highways and the matter has been placed on the table for future determination.
