MACKSBURG.

Hop picking, which was suspended for two or three days of last week, recommenced on Friday. The ripening of the hops in these rainy days had progressed sufficiently to make the work of the pickers easier than it was before.

Threshing, also interrupted by last week's rains, has been resumed. Everywhere the grain is turning out well. Mr. Herbit's crop, mentioned in last week's Enterprise, is still the highest in oats, but the corn continues growing. County Commissioner Smith has a field from which specimens should have a place in the corn show to be held at Pendleton this fall. The corn, everywhere, is leading us to think that Oregon need no longer be omitted from the list of corn growing states. Late potatoes are promising a fine yield, both in quantity and in quality. The blight of last year having entirely disappeared.

Apples are making a fair show though last year was such an abundant one in apples, we are not expecting a very heavy crop.

Building does not stop even in these rushing times. Chris Notzger's fine, new residence is making visible progress, while those of Wm. Barth and Frank Matthews are nearly ready for occupancy.

Mr. and Mrs. Riggs have returned from Idaho, where they have been visiting their son, Edward.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Burgess, of Friend, Ore., are preparing to go to house-keeping in their new home near Aurora.

Mrs. Glade and her daughter, Miss Lizzie Glade intend, soon to leave for their farm in Iowa. They are selling their stock and some of their household furniture. The house and farm however, are not for sale, as was first intended. It is to be occupied by a relative, Jess Hepler and his family.

The Willamette Valley Railroad Co. are laying tracks at Liberal.

The Walsh-Heppler thresher is again busy after a short interruption caused by the giving out of the grain separator and the procuring and setting up of a new one.

Not the least benefit of the recent summer like rains is their effect upon the pasture. The cattle are showing marked improvement and the output of cream is far higher than it was last month.

ESTACADA.

Consternation would have reigned in our little village Monday evening had it been generally known that Ed Hunt's wildcat had escaped from its cage. Some person got funny and pried off the lock from the cage and turned the animal loose. Mr. Hunt discovered his loss the following morning and by calling the wildcat it finally came out from under the house and ran back into its cage.

The former editor of the Progress at this place, M. H. Boyle, left with his family last Thursday for Polson, Montana, where he will locate. The family made many friends during their short stay here, who will wish them all kinds of prosperity in their new home.

Estacada sure has been on the map this week, since the Moose picnic last Sunday. An arrest of two was made, and the trouble is to be settled in court here next Friday. It is to be regretted that such things happen but for the sake of the town's good name, home to their friends after Sept. 15. The good-wishes of hosts of friends go with them.

Mrs. Fred North has a brother ill with typhoid fever at Oregon City and was over there for a week assisting in caring for him. She returned Saturday and reports that her brother is improving.

Presentation by the OREGON CITY ENTERPRISE

Willis J. Abbot, the versatile writer on International subjects and author of many books of history and travel; spent months in Panama and the Canal Zone in the preparation of this volume. He collected at first hands the complete history of the great Canal, with a wealth of historical data concerning Panama which has never before been written. The result is a human interest story of this beautiful land its people from the early days when Columbus tried to find a natural waterway from the Atlantic to the Pacific, down to the present time.

Our Special staff photographers made the hundreds of beautiful views with which practically every page of this exhaustive book is illustrated.

The well-known artist, E. J. Read, made the sixteen sumptuous water-color studies which are reproduced by the latest color processes on specially made paper.
