SHORTAGE in the air which is already beginning to cast big black shadows o'er the mind o' men. From the ocean breezes of the placid Pacific through every nook and corner north of the Mason and Dixon line clear through to the old-time dumping ground of the Boston Tea Party there is whispered upon leagues and leagues of warm air, down through the ways of silence, down through the ways of sound, a warning and this warning has made the blood run cold of every one of the several thousand readers of this paper.

O'er hill, o'er vale, Between the earth and stars, Comes the usual tale, About the shortage of cars. Notice has now been served by the American Railway Assn. that there will be a car shortage in October. Managers predict that it will be a greater shortage than that of last October, although there have been large additions to the railroad equipment within the year and in many instances the crops have been lighter.

Nowhere Else Do Women Dress as Foolishly as In America :: ::

By J. WILBUR CHAPMAN, American Evangelist

THE CLOTHES THAT I HAVE SEEN AMERICAN WOMEN WEAR ARE AWFUL, AWFUL! I HAVE NEVER SEEN ANYTHING LIKE THEM ANYWHERE ELSE; NOT EVEN IN PARIS ARE THEY AS IN THIS COUNTRY.

I refer especially to the slit skirt and to all the skirts and dresses so tightly draped around the figure that every curve and line is thrust upon the eye of the beholder. I can only compare the appearance of certain women who are visible on the streets of our big cities with that of some poor Chinese women whom I saw in their own country.

Of course I do not for a moment imply that all our women are so absurd. In fact, I know that the best women in America dress modestly and appropriately. I believe that they are in the MAJORITY. But the hurt and shame of the women who do dress sensationally remain, and I think that the teachers and leaders of the people should protest.

A WOMAN SHOULD WEAR CLOTHES THAT SUIT HER INDIVIDUALITY WITHOUT SUBMERGING IT.

ter than anybody else, yet the annual car shortage which has been with us for a period of many prosperous years is becoming not only a huge joke but a huge nuisance; in fact at times it has assumed such gigantic proportions as to result in heavy losses. The matter should be investigated by the Interstate Commerce commission before it is too late to remedy. The needs of the hour will soon be upon us.

The Bank of Oregon City OLDEST BANK IN CLACKAMAS COUNTY. Even if you have money to burn, it is better to feed the stove with something else.

Train and Track.

Brazil added forty-seven miles to its railway lines last year.

The steel railroad tie, which has made very little headway in the United States, is extensively used abroad and particularly in Germany, where two years ago the Prussian state railways alone bought more than 150,000 tons of ties of this character.

The busiest railway station in the world is that of the Gare St. Lazare, Paris, for the total number of passengers arriving or departing is officially set down at nearly 45,000,000 annually. It is estimated that 25,000,000 would be the number dealt with in a year at the three great London termini—Waterloo, Liverpool street and Euston.

The Royal Box.

The czar is a clever whistler and can whistle the most intricate variations on national airs. He entertains intimate friends in this way.

Japan's ruler, the mikado, evidently considers that what suffices for his subjects is good enough for their emperor and sleeps on a rug with bamboo sticks for a pillow.

The rapidity with which the male lines of younger sons of British sovereigns have died out is remarkable. It is noted that, with the exception of the king and the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, Prince Arthur of Connaught is the only living grandson of Queen Victoria in the male line.

Why Need They Have Been Slaves? In Athens in the year 300 B. C. there were 21,000 citizens, 10,000 foreigners, and 400,000 slaves.

SIRE AND SONS.

St. Louis has in Blodgett Pierce, aged twenty-five, probably the youngest judge in the nation.

J. G. Phelps-Stokes, noted New York Socialist, has just inherited $2,000 a year from the estate of his father.

Cardinal Gibbons, whose seventy-ninth birthday was recently celebrated at Union Mills, Md., spent part of the day in a game of quills, giving a remarkable exhibition of skill and vigor for a man of his years.

Edward Bruce Moore, commissioner of patents, began life as a page in the United States senate in 1896. He studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1881. Two years later he entered the patent office as assistant examiner.

Sir Frederick Young, who recently celebrated his ninety-sixth birthday, was a spectator at the coronation of King William IV, and later in life became a pioneer of British imperialism. He wrote "Imperial Federation" in 1876.

General Josias von Heeringen, who has just retired as minister of war of Prussia, became an officer of the Eighteenth Fusilier regiment at the age of eighteen. He took part in the Franco-Prussian war and progressed rapidly from one high military post to another until in 1906 he was given command of the Second army corps in Stettin.

Not Very Impulsive.

Maud—So he's been calling on you regularly for ten years! Why do you suppose he hasn't proposed? Beatrix—Oh, you see, he's the sort of man who always does things on the spur of the moment!—Judge.

Ex-King Manuel of Portugal and Princess He Selected as Bride

INVITATIONS for the wedding of ex-King Manuel of Portugal and Princess Augustina Victoria of Hohenzollern-Sigmaringen on Sept. 4 brought a cordial response from European royalty, and the young couple were showered with costly presents. The family of Kaiser Wilhelm was particularly interested in the event because of some ill feeling which had existed between the two branches of the Hohenzollerns. Prince William, father of Princess Augustina Victoria, represents the older branch of the family tree, which has been at odds with the emperor. It was said that Kaiser Wilhelm had agreed to attend the wedding.

Heart to Heart Talks

BEWARE OF THE UNDERTOW! Almost every day in the summer we read in the newspaper items something like this: "While bathing at the beach yesterday John Jones, a young man, ventured out too far and was caught in the undertow. When last seen he was struggling to get back to shore. Assistance was sent, but before the life savers could reach him he sank and was drowned. The body has not been recovered."

Beware of the undertow! There is joy in breasting the billows, in swimming on the crest of the waves. The water is refreshing, the sunshine is alluring. But when the underwater current moves out and the bather is caught in its irresistible ebb not even the strongest swimmer may withstand the suction.

It draws one out—out into the treacherous waters where the feet can gain no hold when the arms are exhausted, and the water closes forever over one's head. "Drowned—Caught by the Undertow," reads the headline. In the ocean of life there is an undertow.

It is pleasant to swim strongly in the breakers of the joy of life. It is good to feel oneself able to bear up when the tide comes in, to be able to say: "I can swim with the best of them. I will venture out as far as any one else dares go!" But under the surface is the undertow. If the joy of living leads you to extend your strength too far, to forget your limitations, to enter upon strange waters where the billows will be too strong for your powers of resistance—Beware! There is peril of drowning. You may not know when you are near the undertow of sin and recklessness. You may not know that you are going out too far.

Therefore it is well to sink the feet now and then to try to touch bottom. There can be no safety without a solid footing. If you cannot feel under your feet the solid ground of reputation and character and honest dealing and the approval of conscience—There is danger that the undertow will carry you out and that your name will be added to the long list of the drowned in the ocean of life. It is well to beware of the undertow.

Fashion Frills.

Things are never as bad as they might be. What if hoops had to be worn with the slit skirts?—Chicago Record-Herald.

Innovators having begun on the trousers, we put forward the suggestion that instead of the slit leg the slashed knee be introduced, thereby obviating "haggling."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Never say again that the English are deficient in a sense of humor. An Englishman visiting this country remarks that the only fault he has to find with American women is that they are overdressed.—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

Forest Notes.

A Russian scientist claims to have discovered an inoculation for use against forest insects.

There are nearly 6,000 professional foresters in Germany who are associated with various technical societies. The University of Washington has secured the use of two sections of land on the Snoqualmie national forest in connection with its forestry courses.

A tool used to fight fires on the California forests combines a rake, spade and hoe. It is compact, so that it can be carried on horseback, and weighs less than five and one-half pounds.

Way of the Law.

Prisoner—It's hard to charge me with forgery. I can't even sign my own name. Magistrate—That point is immaterial. It's another man's name you're accused of signing.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

ELECTRICAL WORK Contracts, Wiring and Fixtures WE DO IT Miller-Parker Co.

Early Use of Tobacco. I have heard my grandfather say that one pipe was handed from man to man round about the table. They had first silver pipes, the ordinary sort made use of a walnut shell and a straw. Tobacco was sold then for its weight in silver. I have heard some of our old reomen neighbors say that when they went to Malmesbury or Chippenham market they culled out their biggest shillings to lay in the scales against the tobacco. Sir W. R., standing in a stand at Sir Robert Poyntz's park at Acton, took a pipe of tobacco, which made the ladies quit it until he had done.—Brief Lines Set Down by John Aubrey, 1699-98.

The Claw of the Devil. In the middle ages people recognized witches and possessed persons by seeking on their bodies for what was called the claw of the devil. It was a more or less extensive part of the skin in which the subject was insensible to any touch or prick. The expert intrusted with this work would close the eyes of the subject and, armed with a sharp needle, prick here and there the different parts of the body. The sufferer was to answer with a cry to each prick, and the claw of the devil on a certain spot was recognized from the fact that he did not cry when this spot was examined.—From "The Major Symptoms of Hysteria," by Pierre Janet.

Took No Chances. A certain young man who is always generous with his touring car offered to take the old colored janitor of the apartment in which he resides downtown the other day "No, sub, boss; no, sub; thank you, sub;" grinned the ancient functionary. "I reckon I'll wait and go on de street yeah?" "What's the matter, uncle? Are you afraid?" "No, sub; me afraid? No, sub; I got to wait."

"Uncle, have you ever been in an automobile?" "Nevah but once, an' den I didn't let all ma weight down"—Argonaut
