RURAL SCHOOLS AND ROADS.

Impassable Highways Seriously Handicap the Country Child's Progress.

The most serious charge yet lodged against the rural school is that the rate of rural illiteracy is twice the urban rate, despite the fact that threefourths of our immigrants are in the cities, and illiteracy among native born children of native parentage is more than three times as great as among native children of foreign born parentage, says A. C. Monahan of the federal bureau of education.

With 226,000 one teacher school houses, of which 5,000 are log buildings, we face the fact that the rural school is alarmingly neglected. Walking Sticks.

"Does the use of a walking stick really spoil the actor's stage balance?" questions a correspondent. "In a stick shop in the Western Road, Brighton have noticed a quotation from a medical writer saying that the use of a properly made walking stick 'improved the carriage and tended to uprightness of body.' The fault of most walking sticks is that they are too short and tend to make one stoop. Our ancestors used sticks several inches taller than we do. Pickpockets and Letter Boxes.

When detectives are trying to find the meeting place of pickpockets that are working in a neighborhood they often ask the letter carriers to belp them. The postman can tell them in what mail boxes he finds the most empty pocketbooks.

After a thief has picked a man's pocket he wants to get rid of the empty purse as soon as he can, and looted wallet in a mail box? Then it won't be found on him and nobody can say he saw him throw it away. After every big convention the letter carriers find many empty pocketbooks in the boxes.-New York Sun.

This is a sample of the jokes they EGGS AND CHICKENS like in China:

A courier; bearing important dispatches, was given a horse and told to make all possible speed toward his destination. Some time afterward be was found in the road, walking and pushing his horse before him.

"Why in the world are you doing that?" he was asked. "Oh." he said. "I reflected and I came to the conclusion that we should make more speed on six feet than we possibly could on four."

Chinese Music. The Chinese have eight instruments for making their ritual music-the bell, the flute, the drum, the sonorous stone, the fife, the plume, the shield and the ax. The last three make no music, but used as decoration or emblem in the musical ceremonies and are enumerated as musical instruments. In every ceremony there are always two instruments of each kind, sometimes as many as four or six, never an odd number, in order to emphasize the duality of the Chinese people. For instance, one drum announces the bewhat could be easier than to drop the ginning of the music, and its mate strikes the last note; one bell calls, and its counterpart answers.
