BOOM STARTS FOR GOOD ROADS

COUNTY COURT ORDERS IN ITS SUPERVISORS TO A CONFERENCE

TO MAKE REPORTS ON WORK DONE

Status of Improvement of Highways is to be Told and Ideas Discussed as to Better Methods of Work

From every nook and corner of the county where one of the 59 road supervisors is watching his little stretch of county road, will come the officials who are to talk good roads on November 5, and make their reports to the county court.

The commissioners have instructed all of their supervisors to report in the city at that time and to talk over the question of road improvement. The members of the commercial club will be invited to attend the conference as will the owners of automobiles in the city and county.

The question of road improvement has agitated the minds of the county court since first it took office. The supervisors will make their reports on the amount of work that has been done during the year, the kind of construction that it was, and the nature of the difficulties that had to be overcome in order to put the road in usable shape. All of these things are interesting to the court and to all boosters for good roads.

The reports will give the number of miles of road work that has been done during the year, showing whether the construction was of gravel, plank, crushed rock, or graded. The various districts will show the total road improvement that has been done in the county and will indicate just how much this county has done during the past 12 months toward the betterment of the condition of the county highways.

Already the court has ordered the construction of one-half of hard surface road over a much used highway near Milwaukie and has started to build bridges and do other improvement work at various places through the county. The hard surface highway has been given considerable attention by the court and the conference next month will be joined by the commercial club and users of the roads who will be asked for advice and suggestion as to the best method of construction of the county highways.

ENGINEER ON HUNT FOR WATER FACTS

Seven hundred and ninety-four feet above the reservoir site in the city will be in the intake of the new water supply if the scheme for the pipe line to the south fork of the Clackamas goes through.

H. A. Rands, the engineer delegated to survey the upper reaches of the stream has been at work for two or three days with a party of five. He has secured through the mountains where "flows the mighty" Clackamas and has discovered that the first falls of the river is 794 feet above the city. In his first estimate, he believed that it was about 200 feet above the site of the proposed reservoir.

This additional pressure would send the water rushing through the mains at a velocity greater than that of the city of Portland and would fill the reservoir sooner than the mains now carrying the supply of the Rosa City into the Mount Tabor reservoir.

Fire pressure would be more than the highest buildings could stand, considering the growth that Oregon City may possibly have within the next 20 years. One quarter of a mile farther up the stream, the intake will be built where the south fork flows into the Clackamas. The engineer believes that the construction of the intake at this point would give the city a better water supply and would guarantee the pressure on the mains. The point is high enough over the falls to preclude the possibility of fish entering the mains and is deep enough into the mountains and forests of the upper reaches of the stream to prevent fish from ever getting into the pipe.

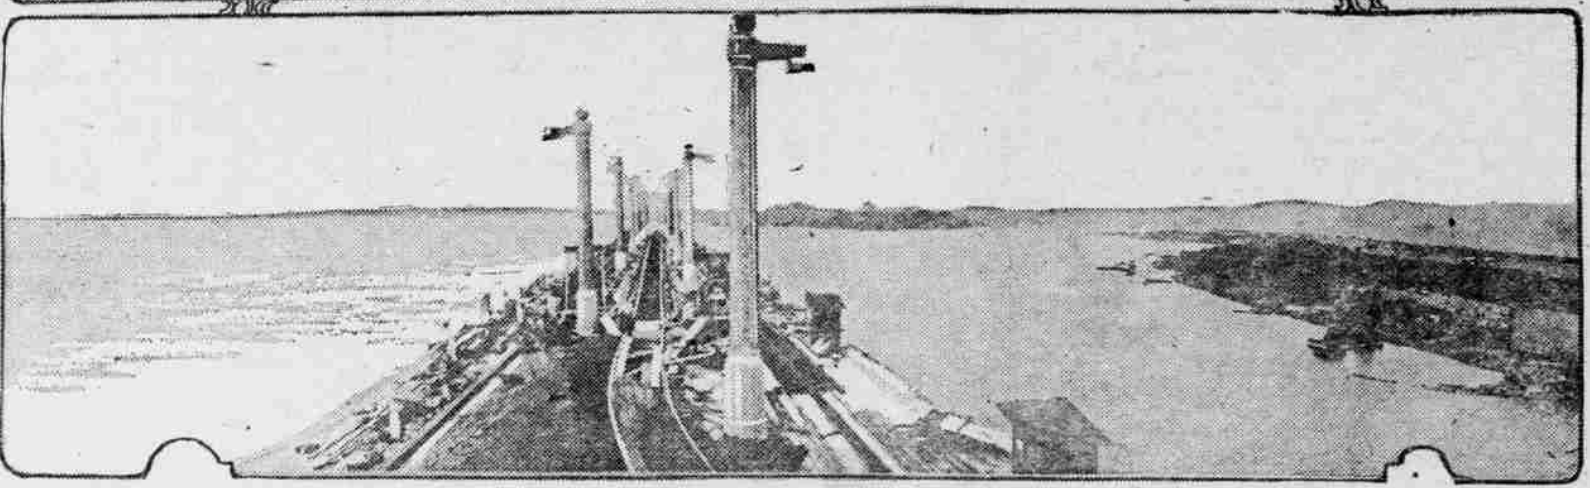

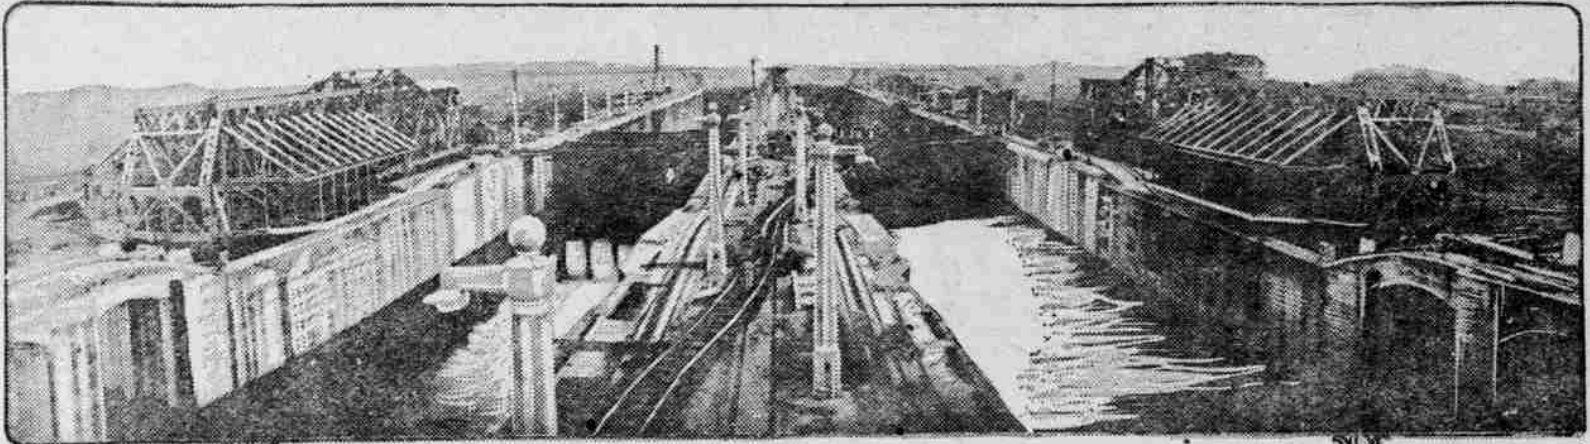

He believes, too, that he will have a full and complete report ready for the committee within one month and that he will be able to give the people of the city an exact understanding of just what it would cost and the amount of work that would have to be done to get the line completed. He has been investigating the cost of pipe and now has some figures on that feature of the expense.

Today he will go into the country between here and Springwater to continue his investigations.

First Pictures of Completed Gatun Locks on Panama Canal, Showing First Step In Journey From Atlantic to the Pacific

Photos by American Press Association. These are the first pictures showing the great Gatun locks of the Panama canal completed and water let in from Gatun lake. The top picture is a general view of the locks, which are 1,000 feet long and 79 feet deep. They extend out into Gatun lake at the Atlantic end of the canal. The lake is seen in the lower picture with the huge center walls of the locks extending out into the water. It was planned to dynamite the Gamboa dike on Oct. 10.

Friends Aid Woman Whom Husband Left in Destitution

With her eyes burned out by overwork, destitute and deserted by a husband who left her in the days when her eye sight began to fail, Mrs. Anna Snyder's helpless condition and her absolute dependence upon the odds and ends that she can get to do to maintain herself and her two baby daughters has aroused her friends and a performance will be given for her benefit at the Bell Theater on October 24.

As a gift for her birthday that comes three days later, the management of the theater and the Burroughs-Howard players have donated the services and use of the theater and troupe to raise the funds. The plan originated with the Loyal Order of Moose and is seconded by the woman's club, both organizations taking a hand in the entertainment and the raising of funds for the donation.

For two years, she has been blind and helpless. Odds and ends of various kinds have been given to her to assist her in the effort to maintain herself and her two children. She has done some fancy work for several persons in the city who have assisted her to get all of that kind of employment that she could handle. The two organizations have, however, found that she is unable to maintain herself and children in comfort and that she is actually suffering for some of the necessities of life.

They have believed that a donation for her birthday would be appropriate and have undertaken to raise this by a performance at the Bell Theater about October 24. It is estimated that a fund of at least $100 can be raised in this way and the friends have pledged their support of the undertaking in the effort to get as large a donation as possible.

GROWTH STARTLES CALIFORNIA BUYERS

For a measly little ten dollars, George Burt of San Francisco, one of the capitalists of that city, has bought 500 lots near the Clackamas Southern right-of-way. Some of these lots are near the town of Estacada. Others are scattered along the line of the road through the county.

From his statements while he was in the city and from the remarks that he had let drop at various places that he visited, he intends to erect large warehouses and tenement buildings on the property that he has bought as soon as the growth of the community will justify the expense.

The record of the transfer of the title is filed in the office of County Recorder Dedman and shows that he paid $10 and other valuable consideration for the property. The exact amount is not given. He left at once for his own state and just what his plans will be in the way of building construction is not certain.

From as far as Manila, a buyer came to the city a few days ago looking for a site for a 400-acre walnut grove where he could raise walnuts to his heart's content and live off of the income from the money spent on the original outlay for the grove. From other parts of the world, too, in the last few days buyers have come to the city and the valley looking for investment and the construction of the lines of railroad has had an important part in the interest that these outside capitalists have shown in the growth of the valley and its probable development in the next few years.

And the heiress who marries a title seldom gets her money's worth. Ruin of a large part of the late potato crop announced. This was alleged frost; there's time yet to talk blight.

COUNTY OFFICES TO CLOSE ON MONDAY

Columbus Day will be celebrated at the county court house on Monday when all of the offices will close and the business will be suspended.

Under the recent act of the legislature of the state, October 12 is declared a legal holiday. The law also provides that on those dates when the holiday occurs on Sunday the following Monday is declared a legal holiday and courts and banks may suspend business.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Dispatches from Peking to the state department today reported the rescue of the American and Norwegian missionaries captured by Chinese brigands at Tsao Yang. No details were given.

MOLALLA'S BOOM IN BUILDING STARTS

Already with the organization of the new town of Molalla as one of the incorporated cities of the state, the buildings have grown up almost overnight and a new appearance has been put on in keeping with the standing that has been given to the place.

The city council has held its first meeting and has talked over matters of general importance to the city and its city affairs. W. W. Everhart has almost finished his new home and the work of plastering the walls has been started by an Oregon City firm. When completed, the place will have cost $2700.

Fred Havmann, cashier of the Molalla State Bank is also erecting a house, new and modern; while W. A. Beck has moved into his new home which will cost $2000. F. M. Hendrickson, H. Evans, and J. G. Taylor have completed homes within the last few weeks while a new building is being planned for the home of the Molalla Pioneer on one of the city's main streets.

BEAVERS ON JOB

Portland 9, Venice 5.
San Francisco 5, Sacramento 3.
Los Angeles 7, Oakland 2.

Folks are either self-made or self-marred.

But isn't it almost impossible for other members of the family to live with a 100 per cent little miss?

It seems that nobody has yet compiled statistics showing how many persons have gone broke on automobiles.

Not Even a Stamp to Recognize Bull Moose Party

The records of the office of the county clerk, Will L. Mulvey, show that the Bull Moose herd is rapidly disappearing. Even the office has not found it necessary to buy a "Progressive" stamp for the register lists as the applications are so few and far between.

Seldom in the office have there calls for the blanks with the name of the "Progressive" party stamped on them. Nearly every one of the old herd has gone back into the folds of the party and has joined again with those whom he last year so vehemently denounced in every adjective of the vocabulary.

Now, however, he alligns himself with the forces that he opposed last year. From indications in Clackamas county, it will hardly be necessary for the heads of the Republican party to worry themselves much about the fracture last year or to devise ways and means to bring the sheep back into the fold. That process has been steadily going on in the county and the people that were aligned with the party of Roosevelt and LaFollette have drifted back into the organization that they used to call "home."

Every other party of the county is represented in that stamp box of the county clerk. The Republicans, the Democrats, the Socialists, the Prohibitionists are all there, but the Progressives have disappeared from off of the map altogether. Once in weeks there appears before the counter of the clerk a man or a woman who still

KERAMIC CLUB PLANS EXHIBIT

MRS. POPE ENTERTAINS AT DELIGHTFUL FUNCTION IN HER STUDIO

CHILDREN GIVE SURPRISE PARTY

Drop Into Lovett Home and Help to Celebrate Birthday—Cards Announce Birth of Son—Woodmen Meet

(By Meta Finley Thayer)

Mrs. T. A. Pope entertained the Oregon Ceramic Club of Portland Wednesday afternoon in her studio. This club is composed principally of teachers of china painting, and the object of the organization is for social pleasure and mutual help along the line of their special work. They are planning an exhibit of original specimens, and as the members of the club are all very enthusiastic workers, some exquisite china will no doubt be displayed.

Mrs. William Goodwin entertained the Ladies Aid society of the Christian church of Gladstone Thursday afternoon. This society will give a harvest supper on October 24, and are planning a bazaar for the early part of December.

About fifteen friends of little Miss Nan Lovett decided to help celebrate her eighth birthday, and stopped on their way home from school to play. All the children of the neighborhood love to congregate at the hospitable Lovett home and this impromptu party was a very merry occasion.

Cards have been received by friends here announcing the birth of a son to Mr. and Mrs. Axel Eckstrom. Mrs. Eckstrom was formerly Miss Florence Morey. The child has been named Axel Carl Eckstrom, Jr.

The Woodmen of the World held an enjoyable smoker Friday evening. Deputy Head Counsel Martin and District Manager Baley were present and assisted in making arrangements lodge is to hold.

Cataract Hose Company, Oregon City fire department, will give a help in Busch's hall on Saturday evening. These enjoyable dances are always well attended.

Mrs. Edward Harrington, of Gladstone, left Thursday for The Dalles, where she will spend a week with her daughter, Mrs. Copley.

Tacoma Will Take Chance

TACOMA, Wash., Oct. 10.—Regardless of its illegality, Mayor W. W. Seymour and Controller John F. Meads have promised that the city will subscribe $500 toward the relief of the stricken city of Nome, if a like amount is raised by private subscription. President George Scofield and Secretary T. H. Martin of the Commercial club expressed their belief that the required $500 could easily be raised among the business men.

Following the announcement, Secretary Martin agreed to take City Attorney T. L. Stiles, who ruled that the city could not legally contribute to such a fund, on a fishing trip during the next few days, which will remove his influence from the council.

Held Post for Several Years and Did Good Work—Made His Friends Rapidly and Had Many of Them

Marshall J. Lazelle, a former secretary of the publicly department of the Commercial club and state dairy inspector, died Friday at the home of his parents in this city after a four weeks' illness of typhoid.

He was born October 29, 1887, in the same home in which he died. He attended the local public schools and was one of the best liked boys in the city.

When he was 18 years old he entered the Oregon Agricultural College at Corvallis, taking a course in dairying. His popularity and power of making friends never left him and even yet the name of Marshall Lazelle lingers among the older students and instructors of the school.

Upon returning to his home town he took a prominent part in all of the local activities, having been manager of Booster Day, publicity secretary of the Commercial club, and state dairy inspector. Besides this he was a prominent member of the local orders of Masons and Elks.

In the middle of the summer he left for Hermiston, where he was engaged in business, and it was here that he contracted the disease. He was brought back about four weeks before his death.

He is survived by his parents and by a sister, Mrs. Fred J. Meindl, of Portland. Funeral arrangements have not been made as yet.

WORLD INTERESTED IN FATE OF PEOPLE OF SOLOMON

NOME, Alaska, Oct. 10.—Efforts were made today to secure definite news of the 300 inhabitants of Solomon, on Norton sound 40 miles from here, which was wiped from the map by the storm which wrecked Nome. Though it was understood none was killed at Solomon it was feared there might be much suffering there. Reconstruction work at Nome marked the pending the arrival of supplies and materials.

Mrs. Frank Beruier and son Harold, of Powell River, B. C., who have been visiting for the past month at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hunler, of Parkplace, have returned to their home in B. C.

LATEST CONFESSED DYNAMITER AND CAPTORS

George E. Davis, referred to as "O'Donnell" during the dynamite trial at Indianapolis, and one of the men most actively concerned in the dynamiting conspiracy of the International Association of Bridge & Structural Iron Workers, seated between Marshall Henkel, and Captain Foster of the Foster Detective Agency, of Louisville, Ky. This photograph was taken shortly after his arrest at the Hotel Breslin, New York.

Davis had been traced for some time by Captain Foster. At the Fort Pitt Hotel in Pittsburg, on September 10th, Davis decided to confess. Foster helped him to prepare this confession which involves the names of several of the officials of the association, and the pair went to New York, where Davis was arrested by Marshall Henkel.

In his confession Davis admits destroying nine structural jobs and recounts numerous other jobs which were planned, including the blowing up of the Queensboro Bridge in New York. Owing to his unwillingness to kill several men in the blowing up of the bridge, Davis gave up the job.
