Young is visiting friends in the county a few miles from Oregon City. Mr. and Mrs. H. Lehaw, of Newberg, are visiting in this city. They arrived sometime Monday. Mrs. N. M. Aldredge and daughter, Miss Edith Aldredge have entirely recovered from their recent attack of typhoid fever. Bryan Newton was able to go home several days ago from the Oregon City hospital after a long and hard case of typhoid. Walter Taperman, formerly of Oregon City but now of Portland, passed through this city Tuesday afternoon headed for Portland. George U. Hoover, a business man from the southern part of the state was in Clackamas county the first part of the week. Paul O. White, a young man from Astoria, returned to his home town after spending several days visiting relatives and friends in this city. Coffee is a human necessity and if you must have it why not get the best that money will buy and get it fresh roasted at Harris' Grocery. Mrs. Frank Foster with her three children have returned to their home at Cathlamet, Washington. They have been visiting relatives in Gladstone. Among those registered at the Electric hotel are: W. Pearson, Mrs. Hutchinson, Niles Johnson, D. J. Sullivan, M. Morrell, C. C. Barland and A. Hodge. Our Old Homestead coffee is a winner. They all exclaim, "how can you furnish such coffee for 20c per lb." We roast it every day, at Harris' Grocery. J. Hannford Smith, formerly of this city but now living near Ashland, was here for a short time yesterday, the first time for a number of years. He says that there has been many changes and improvements. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Anderson have returned from a short stay at St. Martins Springs. They left Saturday and returned without mishap beyond a little trouble with a wrecked freight train on their return trip. L. K. Sigmond, passed through Oregon City on his way from the western part of the county to Portland. He owns a tract of land in that section of the county but will probably sell it and move to the southern part of the state.

ONLY TWO KINDS OF ROADS NEEDED

Concrete and Gravel Best For Highways In Country.

EFFICIENT AND DURABLE.

President Waldon of Automobile Chamber of Commerce Expresses Views—Says Old Roadmaking Methods Are Not Practical For Modern Traffic Usages—Cites Illustrations.

In the opinion of S. D. Waldon of the good roads committee of the automobile chamber of commerce there should be only two kinds of roads built in this country, concrete and gravel, says the New York Sun. Mr. Waldon believes that concrete is the most efficient and durable and the least expensive road surface, while gravel, he states, is the best farmer's road that can be built at minimum expense. He believes it is a waste of time to build roads of material better than gravel and not as good as concrete. Speaking further of his views of roads, of their making and their maintenance, Mr. Waldon says: "This is a very concrete presentation of the solution of the highway problem that is puzzling all civilized countries."

MIXING SAND AND GRAVEL.

tries day. It is generally recognized by highway authorities and road users that the methods of building wagon roads with broken stone, as introduced by Telford and Macadam a century ago, have become obsolete. While these water bound roads were serviceable enough for the traffic of the nineteenth century, they are utterly unsuited to the increased traffic and the higher speeds of the twentieth century. Within from two to five years after a new macadam road is built it is worn out and must be remade, or at the very least must be resurfaced throughout its length. In the meantime, unless it has been oiled frequently or otherwise treated with an adhesive binder, the dust lying on its surface is a public nuisance to all who

Federal Judge Speer, Who Faced Charges of Misuse of Office

FEDERAL JUDGE EMORY SPEER of Georgia was under fire before congress for alleged misconduct in office. Charges were preferred against him, criticizing the manner in which he handled certain estates and charging him with irregularity in allowing his son-in-law to dissipate property while acting as receiver in bankruptcy. Judge Speer denied absolutely all the charges, claiming that they were made by his political enemies. He upheld his official conduct and defied his accusers to produce proof.

COLLEGE MEN FOR PUBLICISTS.

The fact that our universities are the most democratic ground in America fits them well to be the recruiting stations for publicists. Men of all classes, poor and rich, through American universities, wherein merit is the sole measure of the man. For the tree to be healthy the sap must flow freely from the root through the trunk to all the branches. So must it be with the men who are going to affect vitally public opinion and political action. They must spring from the bosom of the people. The statesman is a man of uncommon ability with common opinions. His heart must throbb responsively to the multitude, for, as Emerson said, great ideas incarnate themselves in the multitude. In suggesting that we need schools for statesmen, as we have had schools for prophets, for physicians, for engineers, for lawyers and for journalists, it may be asked whether any definite career awaits the publicist as a certain door opens to the physician, lawyer or engineer. Can the publicist expect a career? Democracy is government by influence rather than by office. Under a monarchy one must hold office to exert influence, and his influence is the more effective the nearer he stands to the king. But the glory of popular government is that every man counts according to his character and capacity for leadership in molding public opinion. Public opinion is sovereign, and whoever gives impulse to public opinion has a decisive part in shaping policies and making laws. Office is for the few. Influence is for all.—Samuel Chiles Mitchell.

On Her Mind. Speaking of a lobbyist whose lobby had failed, a senator said: "He tried to accept defeat with urbanity, but unconsciously he showed his chagrin. Poor chap, he resembled Mrs. Smythe. Mrs. Smythe called on a friend, expecting to be asked to stay for luncheon. But the friend didn't ask her, and so Mrs. Smythe, secretly much disappointed and put out, rose to go. She didn't intend in the least to show her regret, but, involuntarily, as she put out her hand, she said, 'Well, goodbye, dear Mrs. Luncheon.'"—Utica Observer.

How He Escaped. "So you've never been spanked, little boy?" "Naw. Never."

"Isn't that nice? Then you've never given your father and mother cause for annoyance?" "I've made 'em mad often enough, I guess."

"And they've never whipped you for it?" "Naw. You see, whenever paw starts in to spank me paw gets mad, an' whenever paw threatens to spank me paw gets mad, an' they have a derve argument, an' by the time they get over that they've forgotten what it was they were going to spank me for, anyhow."—Detroit Free Press.

AN IMPERATIVE DUTY.

The beginning of manhood is to keep one's will acting freely and vigorously, to protect one's intellect from the false coloring which comes from emotion and feeling, to assert oneself in the face of the passions and influences that assail the stability of a man's integrity and independence. This is never an easy thing to do, but it is always an imperative thing, something which no man can leave undone and be a man in the full sense of the word.

Musical. It was at a musicale given in an old fashioned country house, and the soprano was screeching her loudest. "The room is cold," complained one of the guests, "and I would like to stir the fire in the grate, but I don't know how to do it without interrupting the music." "That's easy," suggested his companion: "stir it between the bars."
