THE ANCIENT PESSIMIST

(Shades of Samuel Taylor Coleridge, you can't feel any worse about this than we do.) It was a bloomin' pessimist. And he stoppeth one of three. "By thy long sour face and dismal eye, Now wherefore stopp'st thou me?" "The Live Wires 'feed' will soon be served. And I must be on my way." But a skinny hag, the pessimist On the club man's shoulder lay. "List to my story ere you go, For I must know, quoth he, "Some things about this bloomin' town, That mightily puzzle me. "Why does the elevator scheme Into hysterics throw "The council, and please tell me why Does Toozee love Albright so? "Why must the prettiest spot in town, Be spoiled by a clanging bell. "That looks like a water tank by day, And all night raises—" (No, no, Clarice! They couldn't print that in a Sunday paper.) "Then take a look at poor West Linn, It was once a charming place, "A one-ring circus on a jamboree Can now scarce describe the case. "Who is in charge of the county health, "And why do they fight him, too? "It's not so much who the officers are, As what the officers do. "And why does the stand-pat water board, With tests try to assure "The town that the water is O. K., And 'to the pure all things are pure," "Water, water everywhere, "What do the commissioners think? "Water, water everywhere, And not a drop to drink. "Farewell, Oh! guest, but this I tell, Ere goest thou to your feast, "He serveth twice who serveth best "Both man and bird and beast." The pessimist, whose eye is bright, And whose hair with age is hoar, Is gone, and now the Live Wire guest, Is turned from the lunch room door. He went like one that hath been stung, And is of sense forlorn. Not wiser, but a hungrier man, He rose the morrow morn. Grapes are being gathered now and while they are very good in quality they are not so good in quantity owing, it is said, to a cold rain when in blossom. We hear they are selling at the yards for 2 cents.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—That indications are Provisional President Huerta of Mexico is about to retire, was the tenor of a message received at the state department today from John Lind, President Wilson's emissary, now at Vera Cruz. The Mexican embassy here was inclined today to credit the reports that President Huerta has resigned. Charge d'Affairs O'Shaughnessy of the United States legation in Mexico City supplemented the Lind dispatch with a telegram saying there is a strong sentiment among foreign diplomats at the capital in favor of intervention. President Wilson was understood, however, to be disinclined to take such a step. It was said to be his view that Huerta's immediate retirement would mean a fair election and all his information from both official and unofficial sources, led him to believe the provisional president is on the point of surrendering his power. Foreigners in Mexico City were known, nevertheless, to be clamoring for the United States to act decisively and many of Wilson's advisers thought he would soon be compelled to outline a new policy.

FORUM OF THE PEOPLE HAS IT INCREASED TAXES?

OREGON CITY, Ore., Oct. 18.—(Editor of The Enterprise)—The new school paper, "The Guardian," in its article under the heading "Ten Thousand Dollars Means Much to Public," says: "Oregon City, after a period of dormancy, seems now to be on the verge of an era of new growth and development." This is true. Three fine new business blocks are projected, and one, the Busch building, has recently been completed. But notice this—this "era of new growth" follows upon the heels of the going out of five saloons, half the number the "drys" are trying to wipe out at present. The loss of revenue from these five saloons has not raised the tax rate, nor has it hindered the improvement of streets. The town has waggled on as though those five saloons never had existed. Experience is better than unsupported surmise. If the loss of five saloons has not affected prosperity what right have we to suppose that the loss of another five would alter conditions materially? or even of another five beyond that? MRS. LUELLA W. ANDREWS.

Why There Are Bachelors.

It has been computed that our planet is peopled by about 1,700,000,000 living members of the human species and that this very respectable total includes some 5,500,000 more men than women. Supposing all women to be married or assured of marrying, this disproportion signifies 5,500,000 men who are bachelors willy nilly without considering the few who may have had bachelorhood thrust upon them by the unresponsive ladies of their choice. —New York Times.

grounds. Mrs. Norris, to whom so much credit is due for the beauty of the park, plans a heroic statue of Dr. McLoughlin overlooking the city which he guided in the stormy days of its history. The general public throughout the country is interested in Oregon, and in this connection it is pleasing to know that Eva Emery Dye has recently been notified by her publishers that her popular book, "McLoughlin and Old Oregon" has gone into its eighth edition. "The Conquest" is in its sixth edition and "McDonald of Oregon" is in its second, making altogether sixteen editions of these interesting books since their first appearance in June, 1900.

The Oregon City high school alumni association will give its annual reception for the teachers of the high school next Saturday evening, October 25th. The committee in charge, Mrs. E. P. Carter, Miss Myrtle Buchanan, Miss Edith Aldredge and Edward Busch, have many interesting plans which indicate that these receptions are becoming more enjoyable each year. One of the pleasant features will be the reunion of the members of the older classes, of whom a large number are expected to be present.

A programme will be given, the high school orchestra are practicing special music for the occasion, and there will be a spelling match under the leadership of Professor Freel and Professor Bolland. To relieve the minds of many of the alumni, it is distinctly understood that the spelling is elective. The reception will be held in the high school building.

somewhat in doubt as to what a "standard play" is although an effort will be made to secure one. Superintendent Frederick J. Tooze has secured a play that he considers the ideal for the occasion. This play is "Silas Marner," the dramatic version of one of the greatest character novels in the English language. This play, however, is not approved by the students who claim that such a play is beyond their power. They state that there is not a local actor who could take the parts in this famous play and that the special scenery and costumes would make it impossible to produce it with any degree of success.

Expensive Times.

"The farmers are jubilant over dollar wheat." And the consumers are apprehensive about dollar beefsteak.—Washington Herald. Potatoes are getting so aristocratic that it may not be long until each comes wrapped in tissue paper like an orange.—Chicago News. The estate of the late Anthony N. Brady in England will pay death duties to the amount of $1,050,000 to the British exchequer. It is becoming a more expensive thing for a rich man to die either at home or abroad.—New York World.

Wouldn't it be far better for the United States if the Monroe doctrine had been modified so that Mexico could have been colonized by Europeans and a stable responsible government been substituted for anarchy and barbarism?

WASHINGTON DRUBS LOCAL GLADIATORS

To the tune of 13 to six, the Oregon City high school football team went down to defeat before the skilled onslaughts of the second team of the Washington high eleven on Canemah field Saturday. At no point during the game was there much doubt as to the final outcome. The better organized team of the Portland school, except in the first half, always showing its superiority over the local team. However, the game was hard fought from start to finish and the local men deserve much credit for the way they played. The football game between these two schools is growing to be somewhat of an annual occasion. Last year the Oregon City boys defeated the Portland eleven.

PROGRESSIVES WANT SULZER IN CONGRESS

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 18.—Ex-Governor Sulzer had not definitely decided today whether to seek vindication at the polls this fall. He said he was considering two offices—one of the progressive nomination to congress; the other, the same party's nomination to the assembly. Sulzer will leave the executive mansion tomorrow, escorted to the railroad by a brass band. He said he might change his mind, however, about going to the Adirondacks. He will attend a banquet in his honor or tonight, a which he will receive a loving cup inscribed: "To William Sulzer, victim of corrupt bossism," and make his first speech since his removal from the governorship. The ex-governor had aged ten years over night but was still defiant.
