Mrs. Nicholson, a neighbor, had in the meantime gone to the house to offer what assistance she could. She took with her a bull dog. On her return from the place the dog barked at a clump of bushes. She began to investigate and saw a man that answered to the description. She immediately called Mr. Thomas, a farmer who lived nearby, and he held the man until the sheriff and his force arrived to make the arrest.

Mrs. Gellensky says that the man said as he grabbed her, "Gimme da kees," and he told the sheriff that as his excuse for entering the house, it is

RAIN HINDERS ALL HALLOWEEN SPORT

Rain put a quietus on most of the Halloween festivities Friday night and few of the boglins and witches had the temerity to venture out into the storm that struck the city in time to prevent most of the fun that had been

In spite of the rain, however, some of the sprites were at work and the frolic was just as lively as though the elements had put over their grouch and had assisted to make the night an interesting one.

Last year, about nine boys were ar rested for running a wagon into the river during their sports on Hallo-ween night. This year the girls took a chance at it and the boys stood back and cheered them on and watched the fun. All of the goblins were feminine in Gladstone and the boys took but little part in the fun except to watch the schemes that the girls worked out and carried through.
