CTTY OFFICIAL NEWSPAPER

RIGHT OF Today is a big day in the history of this state. At the polls SUFFRAGE in every city and county, the people will vote on many measures that are to come before them at the special election. They will have the chance to express their opinion on measures that have been submitted by the last legislature and that have been brought up by local issus in the various sections of the state.

It is the duty of every voter of the county to march to the polls and vote on the measures that have been brought to his attention during the weeks of campaign. The measures are of interest to the state and an expression of opinion should be registered by every legal voter in this county.

For many years, questions have come before the people that have brought about but a small vote. The total registered serength of the counties has not been shown on election day. The people, in general, have not taken the interest in matters that effect the welfare of the state as they should, and have shown a tendency to let others express the opinion of the people at the polls. In this way, the minority has had the strongest influence on the result of matters that have come before the voters for determination. They have been given, through the neglect of others, more than their just amount of strengtl on the final issues that have been presented in past elections.

The women of this county will, possibly, have a potent influence in the determination of many matters that are to come up at the election today. They have fought for years for this right of franchise that has now been given to them. They have all along argued that the vote was necessary to improve the civic life of the communities and to better the politics of the state.

Now is the time for them to prove that claim. Now is the chance for them to march en masse to the polls and express that judgment on the measures and matters that have been submitted through the action of th estate legislature and the local issues that are involved.

This is the first general election in which the women have had the opportunity to express their judgment on matters political and effecting the state's welfare. They have conducted campaigns through the state for a number of years for this chance. They have fought hard battles and have often been defeated before they finally convinced the men of the state that they are as much entitled to the ballot as any other resident is.

Today is a big day to them. It is the chance for them to show their interest in the matters of state importance. It is the opportunity for them to come to the front and register the opinion that they have formed now that they have studied every issue from every angle and have seen and heard the various arguments that have been offered,

It is, naturally, to be expected that the women will poll a heavy vote at the election in all of the precincts of the county and all of the counties of the state. As their first opportunity to influence the determination of state issues, it is quite natural that most of the women should take advantage of it.

The men, too, should get out to vote today unless they are willing to let a minority have the determining voice in matters that effect the general welfare of the state. A light vote in the county precincts means that those who do vote will have the greatest voice in determining the success or failure of the issues that are to be presented. Such a result is deplarable but it is always the fault of the voters themselves. A heavy vote gets the true expression of the wishes of the people upon the questions that interest them. It shows the state and county authorities just what their true desires are in matters that et- By COSMO HAMILTON, English COMPLISHMENTS, BUT NOT SO

For that reason, every voter in the county should go to the polls today and cast his vote on the measures printed on the ballot, even though it may take some nerve to face a rain or chilling wind to do it.

DRY FARMING The International Dry Farming congress and Inter-CONGRESS national Soil Products Exposition, now in session at Tulsa Ok., has brought thousands of visitors to that thriving city. The visitors attention is divided between the congress and the city, which is a marvel to all coming from the older states. The development of the rich oil fields around it has the same effect that the rich strikes of ore in Colorado had on Denver. Within a few years skyscrapers went up everywhere, the place taking on a metropolitan appearance for which cities in older sections waited a century. Tulsa has more than its share of "boomers." Seven years ago it sent a special train across the continent advertising its opportunities. In order to accommodate the present congress it became necessary to build a convention hall at city expense. But there was no hesitation on the part of the people, to whom the question was submitted by referendum. A similar spirit SHE STANDS OUT AGAINST A fashion to have a SERIOUS INof enterprise was shown in providing quarters for the expected host of dele- CLEAR ATMOSPHERE, STRAIGHT

While Kansas and Oklahoma have been sensitive about being included in the "semiarid area" and this sensitiveness prevented enthusiasm over dry farming when it was first agitated, a better understanding of the purposes of the movement has enlisted the hearty sympathy of the people. Dry farming advocates do not deal simply with droughts. They seek to apply the principles of scientific agriculture to any soil and climate. Selection of seed, preparation of the soil, cultivation of crops, fertilization, conservaton and ber 21, given under the auspices of marketing are some of the subjects receiving expert attention. the schoolhouses for social centers, improvement of country roads, consolidaon of rural schools and other ways of making country life more attractive also come in for discussion on the program.

It is a salutary sign that people of all callings are taking an active and practical interest in the improvement of agriculture. America has been so spacious that intensive agriculture has geen grossly neglected. The land of some countries in Europe, tilled for many centuries, produces in many instances three times as much to the acre as virgin soil in America. Aside from pride, the vital interests of American producers and consumers require that scientific agriculture be promoted. It is the only way our growing population may comfortably live. The making of country life both profitable and pleasant will relieve the urban congestion so long deplored. Or, at least, it can not be relieved without the changes in rural conditions which the dry farming congress at Tulsa and similar organizations are urging with so much earnestness and logic.
