Fake Lottery Is Pulled Off At Local Theater

Patrons of the Bell Theater Saturday night were treated to all the thrills of a baby lottery, in which a real live human girl baby, 11 months old, was awarded to a woman in the audience who was declared the holder of the lucky number.

The drawing and the publicity preceding it aroused great interest in the city and rivalry for the youngster was keen. Sunday, however, Manager Fields, of the theater, admitted that the drawing was faked and that the baby had been returned to its own mother.

Just before the lottery was held it was announced that the baby was the child of a woman residing in Portland whose husband had deserted her and left her destitute with three small children. It was said that the mother also was willing to give her other children away.

The "winner" of the baby at the drawing was announced as Mrs. Louis Weizer, 409 Hoyt street, Portland.

Many persons who were anxious to obtain the baby, bought tickets to the theater, giving them to their friends with the understanding that the baby should be turned over to the buyer of the ticket calling for the baby. One man in the audience held 11 tickets which he had purchased in hope of winning the baby. The theater could not hold all the persons who attempted to enter.

Cut the Cost of Living!
A plate of hot biscuits or muffins, a fresh, home-baked cake, a loaf of brown or nut-bread, rescues any meal from the commonplace, and more expensive things are never missed.
With K C, the double acting baking powder, good results are doubly certain. There's economy too, in the cost of K C.

A QUAIN APRON EFFECT BROUGHT OUT IN A YOKE

Attention to the small things makes dress interesting this season. The cut of a tuck or a fold, slight things in themselves, but important to the general effect.

An oddly shaped yoke serving to hold the drapery in place distinguishes 7766. Several imported gowns this season showing this apron effect were highly attractive. In this design it may be used or not as suits the individual.

Black velveteen with touches of brightness in the wide silk girdele is the material used. The frock closes in the back, has a drop-shoulder and a two-piece draped skirt.

To make this model in size 36 it requires 4 3/4 yards of 42 inch velveteen and three-eighths of a yard of colored silk.

Figured charmeuse is effectively used with 7652, which is a smart one-piece dress in peasant design, closing on the side front. The skirt shows just a suggestion of drapery on the sides, held in place by smart little tabs. An inset vest of net instead of the material would add to the dressiness of the model.

An afternoon dress after this design in size 36 requires 5 1/2 yards of 36 inch material.
No. 7766—sizes 34 to 42.
