NEWSPAPER ADVANCEMENT.

The steady growth of the subscription list of the Clackamas County Record indicates to its proprietors that they were not mistaken in going into the field with a semi-weekly newspaper. For years this county has been struggling along with weekly newspapers, and while some of them have been very good in their way, the time came when the people and the county's fast increasing growth demanded something better. We have often said that news a week old is no news at all. It is merely a record of happenings that are past and gone and have lost their interest. The Record comes to its readers twice a week, fresh from the press, with all the news while it still is news. That is the kind of newspaper the people want and time will demonstrate it.

In the cities and large towns the evening newspaper is forging ahead and in any cases is beating its morning rival. The morning paper may be the old established journal that people have for years been accustomed to read at the breakfast table. But it contains a record of the news of the day before. The evening paper advertises today's news today and the newspaper that gives the news first is the newspaper that the people are bound to have.

What is true in the city is true in the country, where the weekly newspaper is giving way to the twice a week paper. It costs but a trifle more. For instance The Record is published Mondays and Thursdays. Its readers see in Monday's paper the same articles that will appear FOUR DAYS LATER in the weeklies. While some people will retain the weekly a large percent of them will subscribe for the newspaper that keeps up in the march of progress.

PASSING OF THE PIONEER.

Announcement of the death of Hugh Curria calls to mind one of the earliest pioneer families of this county. Mr. Curria was a native son. His parents located at the place now known as Carrinsville, when the Indian trail was the only highway, when wild beasts and treacherous savages were the household terror. The coming generation will but seldom be afforded the opportunity to hear from pioneer lips the story of the early settlement of Oregon. The tale, distorted by historical inaccuracies, will be continued to be told through the coming years, but the coloring of romance that it will wear will make it a Summer day-dream—the chapter of sad partings, of suffering and hardships will soon be forgotten.

Inheriting the wandering spirit of their pioneer fathers, the children of these early settlers have many of them strayed far from the old homestead. Now and then one of the wandering sons on whom fortune has smiled, returns rich in the world's goods, to look again on the crumbling ruins of his early home.

If he finds a familiar face, the answers to his query is always the same. Where is Sammy Brown? Dead. Where is Uncle Henry? Gone too. The neighbor that lived here, the neighbor that lived there—familiarly he recalls their names. They are all gone.

We will cherish and revere the names of these brave men and women who found a wilderness and who left us broad fields and beautiful cities.

Of the members of the United States senate, one out of every six is a millionaire. A man 45 years of age can remember when there were only three millionaires in the United States: Astor, Stuart and Gould. We all believe that when senators are elected by a direct vote of the people there will be about fifteen less millionaires in the senate. The Socialists generally believe that when their theories are universally accepted by the people there will be a small number of millionaires in the whole country. This is probably correct, as here in Clackamas County, where we have a good many Socialists, we are little troubled with millionaires.

A common sight nowadays is half a hundred little Japs working on the railroad. These are no more desirable citizens than the Chinese. Last Saturday two carloads of Italians passed through Oregon City. They are the lowest class of citizens of that country. There are foreign immigrants that do not degrade our citizenship. Many of our representative citizens are Germans and Scandinavians. But there is room for the extension of our exclusion laws when large employers of labor take to importing Japanese and the lower classes of Italians and kindred objectionable trash.

The Lenten season closes April 12. We have not been able to see just what difference Lent has made to the pleasure loving public. Here in Oregon City there has been the same continual round of dances, parties and what not. Self denial is something that is not practiced very faithfully among Americans.

PERSONAL MENTION.

J. Wallace Cole left Saturday night for a business trip to San Francisco.

Howard and Jack Latourette are home from Eugene for the Easter holidays.

Mrs. C. J. Buchanan, who has been very ill, is convalescing in a Portland hospital.

H. A. Thiessen, of Milwaukie, and Miss Mildred Gover have been granted a license to wed.

O. W. Eastham returned Saturday evening from Roseburg, where he went to prove up on his timber claim.

J. W. Noble, who was injured in a sawmill at Seaside last week, has returned here for medical treatment.

Rea Norris came home from Eugene yesterday and will return Wednesday, after a few days' visit with his parents.

Judge Livy Stipp returned Friday from Eagle Creek, where he went to attend the funeral of the late Hugh Curria.

Rev. Frank H. Mixsell, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, returned Saturday afternoon from a flying visit to Boise, Idaho.

Judge T. A. McBride held a one day's term of the Circuit Court Saturday but nothing of an important nature was transacted.

Judge William Galloway returned yesterday from McMinnville, where he attended court last week. He drove over from Yamhill County.

Attorney C. Schuebel leaves tomorrow for Buckner Creek on a five days' fishing trip in company with his brother, Gus Schuebel. He will return Saturday.

Millard F. Hardesty, an Astoria electrician, passed through the city today en route to Mulino, where his uncle, U. G. Hardesty, has purchased a flouring mill.

Miss Mary Case left this morning on the Union Pacific for New York to pursue the study of music. Miss Case goes to keep an appointment with H. Clay Barnabee, of the Bostonian opera company.

F. L. Storrs, a carpenter employed on the Methodist Church construction, fell from a scaffolding Saturday and sustained injuries to his shoulder-blade that will keep him from working for several weeks.

Ambrose C. Bailey died at Los Angeles, Cal., last Friday. He leaves one sister, Mrs. J. W. Norris, of this city. Mr. Bailey was formerly a hotel proprietor here and was well known by many of the old residents.

Mrs. H. C. Stevens left last night for San Francisco for the bedside of her son, Harley Stevens, who has been stricken with paralysis. The stroke followed a severe attack of diphtheria. Mr. Stevens has been ill for several weeks.

Royal B. Holcomb has filed a suit for divorce against Grace M. Holcomb. He alleges cruel and inhuman treatment, and says that one Thomas Roots has found a place in her affections. They were married in 1895 and have one son.

Willard Morse, who for several years was a clerk in Harding's drug store and for the past six months has been a student at the University of Oregon medical college in Portland, was in the city Friday and left Saturday morning for The Dalles, where he has taken a position in a drug store and where he will remain until the opening of the medical college next October.

LAND OFFICE IS HIS

PRESIDENT WILL APPOINT A. S. DRESSER REGISTER.

Protest of Portland Were Not Well Founded and Were Unavailing—Simon Was Turned Down Hard.

A. S. Dresser will be Register of the Oregon City land office. This was announced in a dispatch from Washington yesterday. Mr. Dresser was recommended by the entire Oregon delegation early in March. Immediately afterwards Senator Simon sprung a sensation in the form of an alleged promise made to him by the president that he would be permitted to name Register Moore's successor and Mr. Simon wanted George A. Steel. Roosevelt did not deny that the promise had been made. After consideration the President has decided that the promise is no longer binding, as Simon, during the last year of his term, made no effort to have the appointment made. Simon has retired and his influence in Washington is gone.

Absurd charges were made against Mr. Dresser's character. A number of the leading people of the city, including the clergy, wired denials of these charges to Washington. The appointment will be made probably this week.

The remains of Henry White, a colored man, who was accidentally killed near Sellwood Thursday, were interred in the city cemetery by Coroner Holman, who held an inquest on the body. The man was employed in a construction gang.

POINTED QUESTIONS.

Put Yourself in the Other One's Place and Answer.

The great task of sound ethics is to stimulate the social imagination. We must be continually prodding our sense of social consequence to keep it wide awake. We must be asking ourselves at each point of contact with the lives of others such pointed questions as these:

How would you like to be the tailor or washerwoman whose bill you have neglected to pay?

How would you like to be the customer to whom you are selling these adulterated or inferior goods?

How would you like to be the investor in this stock company which you are promoting with water?

How would you like to be the employer whose time and tools and material you are wasting at every chance you get to loaf and shirk and neglect the duties you are paid to perform?

How would you like to be the clerk or saleswoman in the store where you are reaping extra dividends by imposing harder conditions than the state of trade and the market compel you to adopt?

How would you like to be the stoker or weaver or mechanic on the wages you pay and the conditions of labor you impose?

How would you like to be the business rival whom you deprive of his little all by using your greater wealth in temporary cutthroat competition?—William De Witt Hyde in Atlantic. His Mistake.

The puzzled piebald who is attempting his first meal on a railway dining car is obviously perplexed with the names of the different dishes. After some study of the menu he says to the waiter:

"Bring me a plate of this alfalfa-dalfa."

"Beg pardon, sah," whispers the waiter, "but dat is de name er de cah, sah?"—Chicago Tribune.

A Dubious Compliment.

"They have named a brand of cigars for Barker."

"I should consider that quite an honor."

"You wouldn't if you knew the cigars."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Appropriate.

"He calls the baby Coffee."

"What a name! What does he call it that for?"

"Because it keeps him awake nights."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

THE APOSTLES.

Emblems Bestowed Upon Them by the Medieval Artists.

The medieval artists, having no idea of the personal appearance of the Saviour's followers, adopted a set of signs, or emblems, for each, which soon became familiar to all. The emblem of Peter was either a large key or two keys crossed, which is readily explained by referring to the words of Christ (Matthew xvi, 19), "And I will give unto thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven." The emblem of Paul was a sword and a book—the latter to remind the beholder that he was a teacher of men, the former to indicate that he was beheaded with a sword. St. Andrew was usually figured standing by a cross shaped like a letter X, that being the form of the cross upon which legend says he was crucified. The emblem of St. James the Great was either a sword, referring to the fact that he was also beheaded, or a pilgrim's staff, he being a great traveler.

St. John's emblem was a caldron, referring to his experience in the boiling oil. St. Phillip's emblem is an enigma. It was a spear and a cross, yet it is known that he was hanged. St. Bartholomew, who was "flayed alive," is represented with a knife and his skin hanging over his arm. Matthew's emblem is a square, supposed to have some reference to Christ's calling. St. Thomas, having been "pierced with a dart," is pictured carrying a spear. The emblem of James the Less was a club, he having been "beaten to death with a faggot." St. Matthias an ax, he having been beheaded. Simon's emblem was a saw. The legend says "he was sawn asunder."

Grand Ball at Beaver Creek next Tuesday night, March 31. Given by Turney's orchestra. Closing of the dancing school. Everybody invited. Gents 50 cents.

The Mothers' Club will meet at the home of Mrs. Geo. C. Brownell next Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The subject of the afternoon will be William Dean Howells.
