

WOMAN IS HELD UP

ROBBED BY TWO MASKED MEN THIS MORNING AT GLADSTONE.

Two masked men held up a woman this morning at the end of lane where the road forks north of the Chautauqua grounds at Gladstone Park. The woman had 20 cents tied in her handkerchief and the highwaymen tore the handkerchief to pieces and took the money. One of the men stopped a wood hauler a few minutes before the holdup and asked the way to the car line. He told the wood hauler they were from Oregon City. His partner was several hundred feet away and the wood hauler was unable to obtain a good view of him. The man who stopped him was without a coat, was smooth shaven and was about 35 years of age. The woman was too badly frightened to give a description or clue. Sheriff Shaver was notified and went to the scene at once but the meagre description of the men prevents pursuit. He found that the tracks of the men went toward the electric railway track.

MOEHNKE'S MISFORTUNE.

Man Who Was Burned Out Last Fall Loses His Mill By Fire.

William Moehnke's saw mill, near Schubel, was entirely destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. He was burning saw dust near the mill and the wind blew the flames to the mill and the result was the total destruction of the property and his loss will be in the neighborhood of $2500.

Last Fall he lost his house and barn in the great forest fires, and was cutting out lumber to rebuild. He had just about completed the work of cutting out lumber for his barn and was about to begin on his house.

Costly errors on the part of the home team lost yesterday's game to the Vancouver Marrons by a score of 6 to 4. Lettow pitched a star game for the local team but received poor support. W. of W. Decoration Day.

Willamette Falls Camp, Woodmen of the World, held its annual Decoration Day services yesterday afternoon. Owing to the intense heat, the members of the camp did not turn out in force, but about 30 Woodmen met at the hall and marched to Mountain View cemetery and decorated the graves of the members of the camp who lie buried there. Ten Woodmen from the local camp and one from Salem, Eugene Shepherd, lie in the cemetery. Many beautiful flowers were placed on the graves. There have been no deaths in Willamette Falls Camp in the past year and there were no monuments unveiled.

A SAILOR'S MASCOTS.

Miscellaneous Collection That He Takes From the Shore.

Jack Tar is notoriously imprudent, and most of our naval seamen when they get ashore spend their money, be it more or less, with a lavish hand. Shore leave is limited to twenty-four hours, but in that brief time the untrained sailor manages to run through about all the cash he carries with him. He plunges into a whirl of dissipation and is oftentimes cheated or robbed of a good share of his ready assets, but a percentage of the latter is also apt to go for anything that happens to strike his almost childish fancy. Mascots are the seafarer's delight, and whatever he may come across which seems to him to have a talismanic property he is bound to buy it if he can; hence when the "pier jumpers," as those on shore leave are technically called, return in well filled barges to the ship and under direction of the master at arms climb up to the deck they are likely to bring with them a miscellaneous collection of goats, dogs, parrots, monkeys, roosters, etc. One sailor on the Kearsarge, either in or out of his senses at the time, went so far as to purchase as a mascot a colored baby from its mother for the sum of 40 cents and came aboard with it in his arms. He was not allowed to retain it, however, and the child was eventually restored to its repentant and hysterical parent.

How many of the mascots may be kept on board lies within the discretion of the captain. A liberal policy is pursued in this matter. But manifestly there is a limit to the number of those that can be accommodated. The surplus is sent ashore without delay. When the returned "pier jumpers" are lined up while the ship's writer calls the roll to discover the laggards, it is one of the most perplexing duties of the officer of the deck to decide what dumb creatures may or may not be added to the vessel's menagerie. If the vessel is on her way homeward from the tropics, she usually carries a large variety of living presents for the home friends of the sailors. But these are only temporary tenants of the hold and would not be permitted to remain on board long.—Leslie's Weekly.

FACTS ABOUT FOLKS.

In estimation of measurement men are more accurate than women.

Moral action in child life is more a matter of imitation than intellect.

Dull children are the most unruly, and unruly children are the dullest.

Sweet is tasted best on the tip of the tongue, sour on the edge and bitter at the base.

Mental images themselves constitute the motive, the springs of action for all we do.

Girls show less interest in material things than boys and admire the aesthetic more.

Those who have endured the most hardship in life are usually the least sensitive to pain.

Blushing comes from shyness and fear, is unnatural and morbid and is greater in women than in men.

Rapid readers do their work better, as well as in less time, and retain more of the substance of what is read than slow readers.

COLOR IGNORANCE.

It is a Matter Wholly Apart From Color Blindness.

Color blindness was the topic under discussion. "They tell me I'm color blind," said the lawyer, "but I don't believe it. Often, I admit, I make mistakes in colors. I say that pink is red. I say that green is blue. But it is only the names of the colors I am off in. I am not, I insist, color blind." The oculist who was in the party nodded approval.

"Exactly," he said. "These diagnosticians of yours mistake your case. They take color ignorance for color blindness. Here they are as wrong as though they should say music ignorance was music blindness—as though, I mean, because you could not tell that a certain struck note was 'E flat,' you were dead to all musical gradations. Some years ago, when the examination in colors of railroad men was inaugurated, a howl went up over the amazing amount of color blindness in America, and many a good man lost his job unjustly. These men had been off in the names of colors, not in the colors themselves. They could in a day or two have been taught what they lacked. Many of them, it is likely, were not color blind. I say this because recently I heard of an examination of 800 railroad men that was conducted in the proper way on an English line. About seventy of these men were a little off regarding color nomenclature, but not a single one of them was color blind."—Philadelphia Record.

Oriental Squatters.

Most artists depicting the east show men sitting crosslegged, tailor fashion. Easterners don't sit like that. Usually they stick their calves beneath them, sit on their heels and with the soles of the feet pointed upward, a painful posture for an occidental. The Hindoo usually rests on his haunches, with his knees pyramid style and his chin on their level. Try that attitude ten minutes and see how you like it.

Traveling eastward, as soon as you touch Turkey you reach a district where sitting on the floor is the custom. You may then journey on for thousands of miles, also north and south, and the millious in that region are all floor squatters. When you arrive in China, however, then you are among other millions who sit on chairs. Go over to Japan, and then you get among squatters again. The question is, Why should the Chinese, among all the nations of the east, use chairs?

How Romans Took Their Food.

The Romans reclined at their banquets on couches, all supporting themselves on one elbow and eating with their fingers from dishes placed in the center of the table. Each was supplied with a napkin, and knives were used, though it does not appear that every one was supplied with one. Nothing, it would seem, could be more fatiguing than to partake of a repast in such an awkward posture or less conducive to neatness, it being almost impossible to keep the hands clean even with water supplied by the slaves or to prevent the food and wine from falling on the clothing and the draperies of the couch. This manner of eating disappeared during the dark ages so far as the couch was concerned, but the peculiarity of taking the food with fingers from a common dish continued afterward for more than 1,000 years.

The Mind During Sleep.

"During sleep," says an authority on mental subjects, "the workings of the mind are under no control, and yet it seems to have a wonderful faculty of building up and arranging scenes and incidents. I remember once having a vivid dream of going into a house the furniture and inmates of which belonged to the middle ages. So clear was the dream that I had no difficulty in recalling it, and then as I went over each detail of dress, armor, jewelry, ornaments and other objects seen in my vision I realized that everything I had beheld was historically accurate—that is to say, that probably in a fraction of a second my mind had conjured up a scene to construct which, with the same faithfulness to detail, while awake would have taken me several hours."

A Training Table.

"Friend of mine today," said Mr. Kildor, "was talking of coming here to board."

"I hope," remarked Mrs. Starvem, "you were pleased to recommend our table and—"

"Sure! Told him it was just the thing for him. He's a pugilist and wants to increase his reach."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Some Sound Arguments.

It is a fine art to produce a piano that possesses all the desirable qualities and none of the poor ones. It involves the assembling of the right woods, metals, felts and leathers, and the proper seasoning, shaping and proper proportioning of them the exact regulation of the thickness of the sounding board to give it the proper resonance, the right tempering and winding of the steel strings to give them the finest tone, the nicest adjustment of the action, and we might truthfully say, millions of other matters of minute detail.

Now, if the sound of a piano possesses all the desirable qualities, it follows of course that it has been properly constructed. Such a piano is a gem. It will be as much satisfaction 20 years hence as it is now.

Come in and let us explain to you the construction of our instruments and their sound qualities. Ours are the very finest made, and include such perfectly constructed pianos as the Weber of New York, the Chickering of Boston and the Kimball of Chicago. Pianos whose sound qualities are not equaled the world over and many other sterling makes not so high priced.

Our business footing, too, is on a sound basis. We sell at small margin of profit and on the lowest payments and easiest terms of any piano store on the Coast.

You will find it greatly to your advantage to make your piano purchase here. Eilers Piano House.
