President Gilchrist of Marion County and Father of Oregon City's Mayor.

CRITICIZES

Not only was the booklet distributed but a large number of the citizens were passed by the cabin with its gable and long line of windows. A large crowd gathered in front of the building and listened to the words of Interim Mayor John Duflin, who also spoke at the event.

He was preceded by a procession of citizens who had gathered to show their support for the project. The procession included the mayor, city officials, and community members, all dressed in the traditional attire of the time.

The ceremony marked a significant milestone for the city of Oregon City and its citizens. With the completion of the project, the city took a major step towards modernizing its infrastructure and improving the quality of life for its residents.

The ceremony was also a reminder of the importance of community involvement in the development of public spaces and the need for continued collaboration between the city and its citizens in the future.
