THE KEYES DELIVERED

Agricultural Hall Completed and Accepted—Its Cost and Its Construction.

Agricultural Hall is completed. Contractor Snook cleared away his debris, discharged his last man, and shipped his tools to Salem Tuesday. The building committee of the board of regents, looked the structure over Thursday afternoon, and the same evening accepted it and made settlement with Contractor Snook. Every part was found by them to be in perfect harmony with the plans and specifications, and the building as a whole, faithfully and fully finished according to contract. As it now stands, the building is the largest and best appointed as well as the most costly college structure in the state. Its entire cost including heating plant is about $45,000. In the advance in cost of materials and labor since it was contracted, it is doubtful if the building could now be constructed for $50,000 or more. A fact of interest is, that the final details of the building were so well figured out before the contract was let that the entire cost of extras was only $100, and of this $40 was included in the breaking of stone lintels, an accident that could not be foreseen. The construction work by the contractor was so satisfactory that, though the building was a few days behind time in completion, no demurrage was exacted by the committee.

Dr Withycombe is so far the only occupant of the building. Prof Kent is busy with a force of men moving the dairy into the basement and within a short time will have his department established there. A small portion of the belongings of Prof Lake's department have been transferred to the new structure, but the removal will not be completed at the present. The other new departments that the building will ultimately house, are bacteriological, chemical and entomological sections. It is probable that, on account of a lack of facilities and means, all the departments will not be installed in the new Hall before the Christmas holidays.

Agricultural Hall had its inception two or three years ago in a report made by the president of the board of regents, urging the need of such a building and recommending its construction. When the last legislature provided a $20,000 special appropriation for improvements at the college and levied a permanent appropriation of $25,000 per year, beginning first of last January, the board at once planned the building and ordered its construction. A building committee was appointed, consisting of J K Weatherford, Captain Apperson and J D Daly. They invited plans of a number of architects, and finally accepted those submitted by C A Burgraff of Albany. They advertised for bids, and the contract was let to H Snook of Salem. The contract was signed by all parties on the 11th of January. On the 16th, ground was broken, and the construction work began. It has been prosecuted diligently ever since sometimes with a force of 35 to 38 men.

The building is 125 feet long and 85 feet wide. Its extreme height is 59 1/2 feet. It has four stories the first of Cascade granite, and the rest of Pioneersandstone. The building is to be dedicated with appropriate ceremonies on Wednesday of next week.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

SOLD MANY RIGS

And Many Instruments During the Year—The Carriage Factory.

Though not generally known, it is a fact that there has been a great demand recently for vehicles manufactured at the local carriage factory. One order for a carload for Eastern Oregon, and another for Southern Oregon had to be refused by the factory people because they had not sufficient facilities at hand to build the rigs. If the factory had been able to put 500 rigs on the market, there is no doubt, Manager Cramer, says, that they could all have been profitably sold.

As it is, of eighty buggies manufactured during the season, but two are left on hand. An order received by mail a day or two ago, had to be turned down for lack of stock. Of hacks something near 50 has already been marketed, and of 25 that will be turned out of the works in a week or two, nearly all are contracted for. In addition, a number of heavy wagons have been disposed of, besides special rigs made to order, all of which has raised the total number of vehicles turned out at the establishment during the year to about 130. Thus, in spite of the unpretentious way in which the enterprise has been moving along, the year's output of vehicles has almost reached $15,000 worth.

In the organ department there has been similar activity. The sales for the season have comprised about 100 instruments, aggregating about $8,000. Orders for organs are now being received at factory in unexpected numbers, and frequently from distant parts, showing that the product of the factory is gaining a reputation that sells the goods without interposition of canvassers.

About a dozen men are employed at the factory now. The management has on hand lumber for next year's work, and is now gathering in logs for manufacture of lumber for use later on.

TO EXHUME REMAINS

And Bury in Benton—Death in Montana of W. W. Vanderpool.

William W Vanderpool, one of the sons of Mr and Mrs Cam Vanderpool, is dead. He passed away of appendicitis at Bozeman, Montana, September 21st. The news of the death was not received by the family in Benton until after burial, the interment having been made by friends of the deceased. The father has written instructions to exhume the remains, and the body is expected to arrive in Benton about the middle of next week. The interment will be at the Wells cemetery, known as the Gingles graveyard.

The deceased was born in Benton county on Christmas day, 1871. He grew to manhood at the old Vanderpool home. Five years ago he went to Idaho, and from there drifted into Montana, where he was employed in the lumbering business. His illness was of brief duration, death occurring, in spite of the fact the deceased was a very strong man, within two or three days.

Coming to Corvallis Opera House October 14, 15 and 16th, Miss Georgia Harper and her excellent company, presenting Tuesday night, "The Lyric Queen," for the first time at the popular prices. Reserved seats on sale Monday at 10:00 a m. Prices 25, 35 and 50 cents.

MANY COMING

Preparations for Them—A Banquet—Speeches and Special Trains.

All over town preparations are on for the dedication of Agricultural Hall at the college next Wednesday. In various homes, housewives are engaged in preparation of the banquet that will be served. At the college, the various buildings that will be used for entertainment of guests are being set in order. Of visitors, about 500 are expected. Among some of those expected are Governor Geer, Governor-Elect Chamberlain, Congressman Tongue, Congressman-Elect Williamson and others.

The visitors will arrive on the regular westside train at noon, and on a special over the Corvallis & Eastern from Albany at about 12:30. They will be taken immediately to Agricultural Hall for the banquet, which will be served in the south room in the basement. After lunch, the dedicatory exercises will take place immediately in front of Agricultural Hall, if the weather is favorable. The ceremony will be brief and in the main will consist of a dedicatory speech by some well known man. If the weather be unfavorable, the dedicatory ceremonies will take place in the Armory, where other speeches also are to be made.

After the exercises in the armory the guests will be shown over the college grounds and farm, through the buildings, and at five o'clock will take special trains over the westside and Corvallis & Eastern for their homes.

The day, as planned, should be a great one for the college. The visitors will all be representative men from all parts of the state, and upon the impressions they receive will depend much of weal or woe for OAC, for Corvallis and Benton. The management of the affair, requests the TIMES to extend an urgent invitation to all people of Corvallis and Benton County to gather on the college grounds and make the afternoon one of general rejoicing.

To Homeseekers.
