

THAT HALF A MILLION.

It has been figured out that, should the Oregon legislature appropriate $500,000 to the 1905 fair, the farmers of Oregon would pay $142,000, or only about 28 per cent of the sum.

Of the $500,000, Multnomah county would have to pay in taxes $156,150, or considerably more than would the farmers of the state.

With reference to the appropriation, whatever it is to be, it may be said that Portland, though a heavy tax payer, is rarely the beneficiary of appropriations at the hands of the legislature.

An Indian sheriff has been deposed from office by the governor because a negro, in his custody, was lynched by a mob. The law however, that gave the governor the right to do so, also gives the sheriff the right to show that he was powerless to prevent the lynching.

An Illinois man is sought by the constabulary, says the Eugene Guard, because he has four wives. If he were in Utah, he would have a chance to go to the United States senate.

BOUGHT FINE SHEEP

Seven head of fine Ewes Purchased by Corvallis Man.

Johnson Porter has laid the foundation for maintaining a choice herd of fancy sheep on his farm north of Corvallis. He already has a fine band of Cotswolds, at the head of which is a buck selected for Mr Porter by Dr Withycombe out of the Stump herd in Polk County.

To this band, Mr Porter has just added seven fancy ewes, secured after a visit to the principal dealers in the valley, from which he returned Wednesday. At the Scott farm in Clackamas county, Mr Porter purchased two yearling ewes both of which took prizes in the yearling class at the late State Fair.

At the Brunk farm in Polk county five other fancy ewes were purchased, three of them yearlings. Two others are older, and both took prizes at the State fair in former years.

HER MARRIAGE

Miss Clara Duncan, Former Corvallis Teacher Weds in the East.

The Phoenix, published at Muskogee, Indian Territory, under date of November 19th, prints the following notice of the marriage of Miss Clara Duncan, formerly a popular teacher in the Corvallis public schools, and a Benton county girl.

Mr F E Baker and Miss Clara Duncan were married at the home of Mr and Mrs Frank Hubbard, this city, last night at 7 o'clock. Rev J K Thompson of the Presbyterian church, officiating.

The affair, although quiet, was none the less pleasant and impressive. The room was beautifully decorated with white chrysanthemums and evergreens, the bride carrying white carnations.

After the ceremony delicious refreshments were served by Mrs Hubbard.

The bride and groom were the guests of Mr and Mrs W S Irwin, who are making their home at the Hubbard residence, Mr Irwin being the revenue collector for the Indian Territory.

The groom, Mr F E Baker, is a young man well known in Muskogee and universally respected. He is an engineer in the employ of the Katy railroad company, and a more popular young man never ran an engine out of Parsons.

The bride, Miss Clara Duncan, is comparatively a stranger in this city, but during her brief sojourn here has already made a large number of friends. She is a talented member of the noble army of teachers and has just resigned a position in the Parsons public school where she was highly esteemed both for her professional qualifications and as a member of society.

Mr and Mrs Baker will be at home to friends at Parsons, Kansas, after December 1.

The Times joins many other Corvallis friends of Miss Duncan in extending good wishes.

Sam King has constructed something like a half a block of sidewalk along the front of his property just north of the saw mill, down to the high water mark or a little further. Beyond the north end of Mr King's walk, people are not disposed to make such improvements from the fact that the river over flows that locality for a considerable distance, and a board walk is liable to be carried away or badly damaged every winter.

Wyatt Mulvaney who has resided on the Burnett place near town for the past year, will reside on his Big Elk ranch in the near future. With his wife and daughter, and a considerable amount of household effects, he began his journey homeward yesterday morning. The downpour of rain rendered it an insupportable time to start into the mountains with team and wagon, but the Oregonian knows better than to wait for clear weather at this time of the season.

WATCHING THE PRICES

Sugar has Advanced and May go Higher—Salt Trust at Work.

Local merchants are watching the fluctuation of sugar and salt in the price scale. Sugar, which has been for some time at $4.50 recently advanced to $5 per sack. The tenor of the dispatches seem to indicate further advances. A late one says that a big wholesale firm in the East bought an immense stock of sugar during the late advance, and that in expectation of another of the kind expects to make a pile of money. It also says that sugar on the New York market, in spite of the recent advance is very firm, and that it is expected to go higher, considering the statistics of stocks on hand. Last year, the price stood steadily for sometime at $6.75 per sack in the local market, and both dealers and consumers are hoping that the experience is not to be repeated.

Salt is also a staple whose price is considered a trifle uncertain. The price of stock salt, not long ago was $1.25 per sack. Before the Salt trust was formed it was as low as 45 cents per sack. Recently the price, on account of opposition from local firms in salt works in California declined to $1.10, at which figure it now stands. A dispatch yesterday, however, relates that the Federal Salt trust is negotiating a deal by which the independent California works are to be absorbed by the Trust, and that the Pacific Coast market will thereafter be controlled by the combination. It also adds that a jump in the price will probably result if the deal materializes. With table salt at $1.50 and stock salt at $1.10 per sack already, both dealers and consumers hope that any coming change in figure may be for a lower instead of a higher price.

EXCURSION WILL RUN

A Five Coach Special to Take Corvallisites and Students to Albany Game.

The biggest crowd that ever went out of Corvallis to another town to see a football game will go to Albany next Saturday to see the contest between the OAC and the Albany college eleven. A special train of five coaches is to carry the people over and bring them back again. It is to leave the Corvallis & Eastern station at 1:30 p m sharp, and is to return immediately after the game. Three hundred tickets are to be issued, as sixty is the number allotted to each coach, and these will be placed on sale perhaps today; if not today, then early in the coming week. The train has been chartered by supporters of the team, and the balance if any, is to be devoted to payment of the teams expenses in preparing for the game, which aggregate about $100. The fare for the roundtrip is one dollar.

The game ought to be a very fine one. The two elevens are supposed to be very evenly matched. The Albany eleven has played two and OAC one naught to naught game with the University of Oregon this season. The Albany team has an advantage in that it has been two years under the same trainer, while many of the OAC players are working under a coach this season for the first time in their lives. The latter have however some very fine points, and their friends are confident that the farmer lads will acquit themselves creditably.

This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the nearest town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies. All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past 12 months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record." For sale by Graham & Wells.
