—Gerald Tuttle of Portland spent Thanksgiving with Corvallis friends.

—Miss Bertha Tongue of Hillsboro, has been the guest of Miss Mabel Withycombe since Wednesday.

—Raleigh McLagan of Tangent, was in town on a business trip Wednesday.

—Walter Kaupisch arrived from Halsey, Thursday, to spend Thanksgiving with relatives.

—The First Spiritual Union of Corvallis, will hold services at Barrett Lyceum Sunday at 8 o'clock. All friends invited.

—E J Garrow, and son Wilbur, arrived Wednesday from McCloud, to spend Thanksgiving with relatives.

—Mr and Mrs I M Glenn are spending Thanksgiving at the home of Mr and Mrs E R Bryson.

—Miles Young has sold out at Tacoma, and is daily expected in Corvallis. He is enroute with his family to Los Angeles, California.

—Miss Maud Buxton, one of last year's freshmen at OAC, but not in college this year, arrived Wednesday, and is the guest of Miss Eunice Garfield at Alpha Hall.

—The 20th anniversary of the wedding of Mr and Mrs Charles Kohn was quietly observed at the Jacob home Sunday. A number of the party returned to Portland by a special train the same evening.

—Among the excursionists from Albany, who attended the dance at the Armory Wednesday evening were, Misses Francis French, and Gertie O'Brien, John French, Sam Dolan, Ed Barrett, Ed Westbrook, Fred Edwards and Mr Eberhardt.

—The late term of the circuit court adjourned before eleven o'clock Tuesday, and Judge Hamilton left the same day for Roseburg. Although there were 36 cases on the docket, the term was a record breaker for brevity, as all of Judge Hamilton's have been.

—Olwell Brothers, proprietors of the big apple orchard at Central Point, have already shipped fifty carloads of apples this season. They will ship a few more carloads in the near future, and then wait until after the holidays to ship their Ben Davis apples.

—Tuesday evening when Rev Noble and family were about to sit down to supper, a loud rap came on the door, and on opening a large number of Sunday school scholars and Juniors marched in. The oldest boy of the classes presented Rev Noble with a large turkey, while everyone was laden with good things. After a season of amusement they left, wishing their pastor many happy returns of the day.

—Homer Davenport, the famous cartoonist, in writing to relatives announces that inasmuch as he had received a handsome offer from a famous lecturer manager, to make a 25-course lecture tour, he had decided to accept, abandon his pencil for the winter and take to the footlights. He announces that his salary for that period will be $1000 per week, while the position he holds on the New York Journal as cartoonist brings him $1200 per month.

—Mack Porter has sold a nine months old Polled Angus calf that is to go to the Sandwich Islands. The buyer is O T McLellan of Martinez, California. The purchase price has been paid, but nobody outside of those who are parties to the transaction knows what it is. It is probable that the calf will be shipped by express to Martinez within a few days. His weight is about 700 pounds, and his sire is Howard Darby. Less than a year ago, Mr Porter sold a similar calf to the same buyer.

—The first team of players for the girls basket ball team at the college has been selected. The players and their positions are, captain and guard Una Stewart; Myra Yaeger, guard; Ethel Linville, forward; Ray Smith, back; and Edna Smith, center. The team is matched for a game early next month with the McMinnville team. The game is to be played in Corvallis.

—The open season for China pheasants ends tomorrow. It begins so late that nearly all hunters find fault with the present law. With coveys of birds, almost grown, everywhere in sight in field and meadow, long before the season opens, the temptation to hunters to violate the law is irresistible, and the general clamor among sportsmen is for an open season that opens before most of the birds are slaughtered.

—Henry Ambler, the irrepressible Philomath real estate agent, whom damp weather cannot prevent from doing business, has made two more real estate sales. The farm of Wilson Scott, located six miles southwest of Philomath, has been sold by Mr Ambler to J O Pritchett of North Yamhill. The farm contains 320 acres, and the price paid is $3,500, the buyer to take possession next autumn. Mr Ambler has also sold to Thos Chandler, once of Aleso, but late of Albany, the dwelling property of C A Gregory in Philomath. The price in the latter transaction is $800, and the buyer is to have immediate possession.

—William McCullom, a former OAC student, arrived Thursday from Athena, for a visit.

—W L Patterson of Baker City, arrived Thursday to spend Thanksgiving with old college friends.

—Misses Leah and Gertrude Barclay left yesterday for a six weeks' visit with relatives at Everett, Washington.

—On account of ill health, Rufus Cate of the sophomore class of OAC, has been compelled to return to his home in Portland. He left Wednesday.

—Taylor Porter, John Beach and Harry Wicks arrived Sunday from an extended visit in the East. The former spent most of his time in Ohio, Mr Beach, in Illinois, and Mr Wicks visited in Pennsylvania.

—G S O Humbert will begin a series of sermons tomorrow morning at the Christian church on the subject of, "The Moral and Spiritual Aspects of Baptism."

—Louis Solover is up from Redding on a visit to friends in this county. During the summer he has been employed in the Zels Brothers ice factory and bottling works, and he will shortly return to resume work.

—Dusty and Philomath young men locked horns at football, Thanksgiving day. The game was played at Philomath. Fred Walters, one of the old champion eleven was a leading spirit in the Dusty team. The latter won in a score of five to naught.

—The Knights of Pythias are to have a housewarming in their hall Monday night. Members of the order all over town are looking forward to the event with pleasurable anticipation, for the Knights entertainments are always synonymous of hospitality and good cheer.

—Al Halberman, who was for a considerable time employed as a cutter in George Smith's butcher shop in Corvallis, was here the first of the week on a visit. Since leaving Corvallis he has been associated with John Castle in the butchering business at Dallas, until a few days ago, when the partnership was dissolved.

—What have the newspaper men in football towns been doing these past weeks? Each has stood on top of his earthworks, and with blood in his eye, the traditional chip upon his shoulder scanning the field to see if any other fellow was saying anything of his team. In his one hand he has held the lighted match, ready to touch off his bowtizer, and with the other he has held aloft the signal lantern that told the world of the prowess of his particular aggregation.

—E W Strong of the Corvallis saw mill has had various troubles with logs of late. During the high water of several days ago, a raft of 50 McKenzie logs got away from its moorings along the bank, and escaped down the river. They were finally overhauled, and at last accounts were tied up to the bank of the Willamette below Albany. Tuesday night last, another raft of 25 got away, but they were stopped a short distance below the mill.

—Ed Clark for the past five and a half years a salesman at Huston & Bogue's hardware establishment, has accepted a desirable position with the Vale Commercial Company of Vale, Malheur county, Oregon, and he left Thursday to enter upon his duties. Mr Clark is a fine young man, and has a talent for his work, and there is no doubt that he will succeed in his new field. In the same town, Elmer Clark, a brother, formerly of Corvallis, is cashier of a bank. Mr Clark, with Frank Lilly, who goes to LaGrande, to accept a position, left Corvallis together.

—Chicken thieves have been operating in town of late. They entered the poultry house of J B Irvine near the Southern Pacific station Tuesday night, and carried off about a dozen of fancy Plymouth Rocks. Among the fowls was a hen for which the owner refused three dollars, and several roosters valued from $1 to $1.50 each. The next night, the chicken hunters tore off the door of Bryant Young's poultry house and carried off a number of fowls. Mr Irvine offers a reward of $10 for information that will lead to the arrest and conviction of the parties who stole his chickens.

—The accidental discharge of a shot gun made Al Kemp, the engineer see things for awhile Tuesday. He and his son were duck hunting in a row boat on the Willamette. The son fired at a band of ducks, and while he was in the act of reloading it, the weapon was accidentally discharged. The charge of heavy duck shot passed directly over the father's head, and almost close enough to touch hair. A further calamity was that the rebound of the gun as it went off, jerked it from the lad's hands and it fell into deep water in the river. At last accounts it had not been recovered.

—Coach Herbold, who holds a desirable position in a big assaying establishment at Butte, Montana, has received a letter from his employers notifying him that he is expected to report for duty December 10th. Mr Herbold expects to leave Corvallis the day of the Albany-OAC game, and after a visit with his mother at Eugene, to proceed thence direct to Butte. His success in developing the Idaho University team, and his even greater work in bringing the OAC team into the front rank of college teams in the northwest in a single season, leaves no doubt that he has no superiors as a scientific football trainer in the country.

IT HAD JAUNDICE

The Farmers Hog Did, and the Flesh From it Had to be Thrown Away.

A queer case of hog disease came to light the other day. A Benton county farmer killed a porker, and when the carcass was opened, all the fat and the portions of flesh that ought to be white were found to be very yellow. The unusual color caused the farmer to debate in his mind as to whether or not the pork would make right good eating. After some deliberation, he finally bundled up the liver, heart, lungs and other vital organs of his hog, together with portions of the flesh and fat, and brought it to the Agricultural College for examination. There, the specimens were turned over to Prof Pernot of the bacteriological department, who soon found in the liver, evidence, that the hog when killed, was suffering from an attack of jaundice. The farmer asked if the meat of a hog in that fix would be good to eat, and when told that it would not make first class diet, he concluded to throw his pork away, which he went home and did.

Pathological specimens from horses, of which nine died in an Eastern Oregon stable within a short time were examined in the bacteriological laboratories recently. The ailment was found to be a kidney disorder, and prevented these organs from performing their usual function. As a symptom of the disease in cases where one kidney was badly affected, the body of the ailing animal on that side was constantly wet with perspiration.

Recently a sample of milk that a Portland baby was taking from its mother's breast was sent to the college for investigation. Along with the milk came a letter from the father saying that the infant was very ill in spite of the effort of three prominent physicians to effect a cure. The milk was referred to the bacteriological department, and in it Professor Pernot found germs of erysipelas and also pus in considerable quantities. A dispatch telling of the discovery was sent the father by Prof Kniseley together with instructions to cease the use of the milk. An article in Thursday's Portland Telegram relates that the infant has been given cow's milk, and that under the change of diet it's condition is rapidly improving.

HER ILLNESS

Surgical Operation was Expected—Mrs Henry Allen III in Washington.

Mr and Mrs Allen of this city are in receipt of unfavorable news from the home of their son in Washington, D C. Under date of November 22nd, Henry Allen writes that his wife is seriously ill and that appendicitis is feared. Mrs Allen left Corvallis for Washington September 14th, after spending several months in this city. Her trip to Oregon was largely to escape the hot summer at Washington, the climate of which has hitherto impaired her health.

In his letter, Mr Allen says she has been ailing since her return to Washington, having contracted a severe cold en route there. A telegram from him received at the Allen home Wednesday and dated the same day related that on the following day, Thanksgiving, an operation was to be performed whence it is inferred here that the trouble is appendicitis.

Mrs Allen's friends and relatives in this city are very anxious for further news.

A telegram received just as the Times goes to press, states that Mrs Allen stood the operation very well Thursday afternoon, and that the case is not as bad as was feared.
