

Corvallis Times.

BY B. F. IRVINE.

Official Paper of Benton County,

CORVALLIS, OREGON, DEC. 10, 1902.

VIEWERS KILLED IT
Proposed Cutoff Road for Shortening Distance Between Philomath and Corvallis.

The proposed road for shortening the distance between Corvallis and Philomath, by a cutoff from the east boundary of Philomath through to Thomas Cooper's place, is not to be opened, it was disclosed in the head by the report of viewers appointed to examine and report to the court upon the feasibility of the plan.

The law on the subject is such that the court, in case of an adverse report by viewers, cannot even if so desired proceed to open the road.

A petition for opening the road was presented at the November term of the commissioners' court, and was liberally signed. At the time, John Rickard, J. H. Edwards and S. L. Shedd were appointed viewers. They went over the line of the proposed cutoff, and at last week's term of the court submitted a report, in which they unanimously recommended that the road be not opened. In their report the viewers say—

"The proposed road, if established, would not justify the expense of opening and maintaining said road, as a part of the route is over bad ground, and would be expensive to make and keep in good condition." The viewers also reported as a further reason for not opening it that there are already two roads in the vicinity that the new road would parallel, that they were already established and maintained, and that the addition of a new road for the same traffic would be unjustifiable.

The court accepted the report, and the petition was dismissed. The expense of the viewers, $28, was assessed to Albert Shifer and his surety, J. A. Park.

RUN FOR FIREMEN

Sunday Evening Blaze Called Them Out—A Fire and Its Soot.

The fire department had a call Sunday night. The occasion was soot burning in a flue in the dwelling house of Ben Woldt. The flue is located in the center of the house where four walls joined, and was so completely enclosed that it was difficult to reach. Inside of it was a pile of soot that was very deep. It burned readily and sent out flame, sparks and smoke as fiercely as a small sized volcano.

The department with all appliances was quickly on the ground, but was unable to do anything with water. Hose were laid and kept in readiness in case the flames communicated to the woodwork. After some time, two shots of Babcock chemicals were applied with more or less success.

The excitement all took place while the owner was in Portland. The chief damage was to a nicely polished shoe and sundry clothes worn by the firemen. The alarm was turned in about six o'clock.

TO SELL IT THURSDAY

Property for Delinquent Taxes Sale Occurs at the Court House.

The sale of property for delinquent taxes on last year's roll occurs at the court house at ten o'clock Thursday morning. The list of properties to be sold is to be found in another column of this issue.

In all, there are only 32 pieces.

The Clare Mathes Stock Company, although playing at popular prices, would be a good company.

And accordingly the sale will be conducted to please merit the

an unimportant character, in comparison with some other sales that

have taken place in Benton county,

at which on one or two occasions,

more than one day was consumed

in the work.

As recently stated in the Times,

the sale under the new law differs

somewhat from the old arrangement.

In no event can more than the amount of the taxes be bid for the property. Furthermore, the bidders who offers the lowest rate

of interest is the successful one.

For instance, if A agrees to take

the property at the amount of taxes

and on an interest rate of six per cent, while B bids 10 per cent

interest rate, the property is knocked down to A.

The rest of the arrangement is the same as under the old law.

Dated Dec. 3, 1902.

E. HOLGATE.

Petitioner in Bankruptcy.

Administrator's Sale of Real Property.

In the matter of the estate of T. P. Waggoner deceased.

Notice is hereby given that under and pursuant to an order of sale made by the County Court of the State of Oregon for Benton County on the 6th day of December, 1902 in the above entitled matter, the said estate, as aforesaid, will be sold on the 1st day of January, 1903, proceeds to sell at private sale to the highest bidder for taxes, interest, all the following described real property:

The donation land claim of Jesse Hawley situated in Sections 19 and 20 in Township 14, south Range 5 W, being claim No. 51, notification No. 2401, containing 32.70 acres in Benton County, State of Oregon.

Sale is to be made for the purpose of paying claims against said estate and charges and expenses of administration.

Dated this December 6, 1902.

M. M. WAHL.

Administrator of the estate of T. P. Waggoner deceased.

AGAIN AT LARGE

Bars and Bolts Won't Hold Chenoweth—His Record in Benton.

ACTIVITY THERE

Big Preparations for Piling Operations Building a Siding at Blodgett.

There is much newspaper talk again about Elwood E. Chenoweth. He is the man who performed in Benton county, the unusual stunt of walking into the sheriff's office and turning himself over to the custody of Deputy Sheriff Henderson. That happened in the last days of November last year. A few weeks before, Chenoweth had escaped from the sheriff of Union county, near Echo, Umatilla county, by leaping from a train while it was running 15 or 20 miles an hour. Subsequently he had been rounded up by various officers, but he always managed to elude them, and finally made his way via Portland, Oregon City, Salem, Independence and other points to King's Valley and thence to Corvallis, where he voluntarily surrendered himself to the astonished sheriff, and asked to be locked up.

The new occasion for Chenoweth's publicity is that he is again at large, though wanted by the authorities at the Insane Asylum. Where he is, nobody knows. It has been his wont, generally, to escape officers and prison bars, whenever he so desired. It is his boast that, "You may take me, you may put me behind bolts and bars, but whenever I want freedom, I will get it. God will help me do it." On many occasions he has made his word good, but in general his claim of divine assistance is not credited.

From Corvallis Chenoweth was taken by Sheriff Burnett and the Union county sheriff to the asylum. That happened December 3rd, last year. After staying there a few weeks word came that he was again at large having made his escape. After that, he was re-taken and again committed to the asylum, but on the 7th of last August, he again fled away, and no trace of him can be obtained.

Chenoweth's mania is religion. He claims to be a sort of vicegerent of the Almighty, commissioned to preach and do divine healing. Whenever he talks on his hobby, his eyes shine with brilliant light, his tongue begins to work as if on ball bearings, and his whole appearance seems to indicate him to be as crazy as a bed bug. He has a magnificent physique, and when he breaks loose in his fanaticism, he becomes more or less imposing. On other occasions he is polite enough and sane enough to make an offender almost apologize for detaining him.

The authorities at Salem say he is an incurable, and that the asylum is the proper place for him, because it is far safer for him, and for the rest of the world that he be under detention.

The late break in the ferry cable, however, is the main cause of the boat's state of inexcusable desuetude. A strand of the cable parted last week, while the boat was making trip, and both the ferrymen and the county court deem it inadvisable, if not unsafe to use the old cable longer. Accordingly, a new cable has been ordered from San Francisco, and some time will be required for it to reach Corvallis, and be put in position for use. It was ordered by telegraph Monday, but is to come by freight, which will require several days.

The new cable is to be 750 feet long, and its cost is 25 cents per foot, delivered in Corvallis.

ALL NEXT WEEK

Clara Mathes Company to be at the Corvallis Opera House.

The Clara Mathes Stock Company, although playing at popular prices, would be a good company.

And accordingly the sale will be conducted to please merit the

an unimportant character, in comparison with some other sales that

have taken place in Benton county,

at which on one or two occasions,

more than one day was consumed

in the work.

As recently stated in the Times,

the sale under the new law differs

somewhat from the old arrangement.

In no event can more than the

amount of the taxes be bid for

the property. Furthermore, the

bidders who offers the lowest rate

of interest is the successful one.

For instance, if A agrees to take

the property at the amount of taxes

and on an interest rate of six per cent, while B bids 10 per cent

interest rate, the property is knocked down to A.

The rest of the arrangement is the same as under the old law.

Dated Dec. 3, 1902.

E. HOLGATE.

Petitioner in Bankruptcy.

Administrator's Sale of Real Property.

In the matter of the estate of T. P. Waggoner deceased.

Notice is hereby given that under and pursuant to an order of sale made by the County Court of the State of Oregon for Benton County on the 6th day of December, 1902 in the above entitled matter, the said estate, as aforesaid, will be sold on the 1st day of January, 1903, proceeds to sell at private sale to the highest bidder for taxes, interest, all the following described real property:

The donation land claim of Jesse Hawley situated in Sections 19 and 20 in Township 14, south Range 5 W, being claim No. 51, notification No. 2401, containing 32.70 acres in Benton County, State of Oregon.

Sale is to be made for the purpose of paying claims against said estate and charges and expenses of administration.

Dated this December 6, 1902.

M. M. WAHL.

Administrator of the estate of T. P. Waggoner deceased.

The Irish Pawnbrokers

A farce comedy to be presented

at the Opera House, tomorrow

Thursday night, is described as a

play designed to promote sidesplitting

laughter and a contagion of fun.

The new and catching title is an indication of its original and

humorously infectious composition.

It deals with a new subject in a unique way and appeals forcibly

to that large and intelligent class of

theatre goers who prefer to shed

tears of laughter over comical actions, sayings, and songs rather

than weep over sombre and path-

etic melodramatic representations

of misfortunes in real life. This farce is a bracer—a genuine com-

ical elixir.

The Irish Pawnbrokers

A farce comedy to be presented

at the Opera House, tomorrow

Thursday night, is described as a

play designed to promote sidesplitting

laughter and a contagion of fun.

The new and catching title is

an indication of its original and

humorously infectious composition.

It deals with a new subject in a

unique way and appeals forcibly

to that large and intelligent class of

theatre goers who prefer to shed

tears of laughter over comical actions, sayings, and songs rather

than weep over sombre and path-

etic melodramatic representations

of misfortunes in real life. This

farce is a bracer—a genuine com-

ical elixir.

The Irish Pawnbrokers

A farce comedy to be presented

at the Opera House, tomorrow

Thursday night, is described as a

play designed to promote sidesplitting

laughter and a contagion of fun.

The new and catching title is

an indication of its original and

humorously infectious composition.

It deals with a new subject in a

unique way and appeals forcibly

to that large and intelligent class of

theatre goers who prefer to shed

tears of laughter over comical actions, sayings, and songs rather