

IN OREGON.

ALL PROPERTY OWNERS MUST PAY TAXES TWICE N 1933 YEAR.

Board of Health Appointed by Governor—Big Fire in Portland—The Swift Packing House—Other News.

Salem, Or., March 10.—Taxpayers in Oregon will pay taxes twice in 1934. They will pay the taxes levied upon the tax roll of 1933 and also the taxes levied upon the roll of 1934. This is due to a change in the law by which taxes are to be paid in the fall of the same year the assessment is made.

Under the new law the county courts must make the annual tax law in September following the assessment. In order that the county courts may have information as to the amount required, it is provided that the state board of apportionment shall make its estimate of state expenses in July, instead of in January, as at present. Cities and school districts must notify the county clerks of their annual tax levies by the first day of September, instead of by the first day of February, as under the old law. This gives the county court full information of the levying of taxes at the September term of court.

All taxes are payable by the 31st day of December of the same year, section 3106 of the code having been amended so as to make that provision. All taxes not paid by the 31st day of December become delinquent on that day; provided, however, that if one-half of the taxes due on any parcel of land are paid by the 31st of December, the property owner may have until the following first Monday in April, and if the remainder be not then paid, it becomes delinquent, and, besides the penalty, interest at the rate of 12 per cent will be charged on such remainder from the 31st day of December. On all delinquent taxes interest is to be charged at the rate of 12 per cent per annum from the date of the delinquency, and if the taxes remain delinquent 30 days, a penalty of five per cent will be added. On all taxes paid on or before the 31st day of December, a rebate of 2 per cent will be allowed. Under the present law the rebate is 3 per cent.

Salem, March 10.—Governor Chamberlain has appointed the following as a state board of health, under the new law passed by the legislature:

Dr. W. A. Cusick, of Salem.
Dr. A. C. Smith, of Portland.
Dr. C. T. Smith, of Pendleton.
Dr. L. G. Kinney, of Astoria.
Dr. E. B. Pickel, of Medford.
Dr. Harry Lane, of Portland.

Eugene, Or., March 10.—There is a rush on at the sheriff's office like that at the doors of a shaky banking institution, only the rush is to pay not to withdraw money. Under the law a rebate of 3 per cent is allowed for payment of taxes before next Saturday night, and most of the taxpayers of this county are sufficiently awake to secure the benefits of the rebate. There are five employes in the office to wait upon the callers, and all are kept busy. If the rate keeps up through the week there will be few left against whom the county will have claim for taxes due.

Portland, March 10.—The Victoria dock, valued, with its contents, at $600,000, was burned this morning. The residence of John L. Nelson, costing $5,000, was burned, with its contents. The Victoria dock was fully insured, the policies being in the firm of Huett & Co. The Nelson residence was insured at half its value.

This disastrous conflagration followed immediately after the firemen had successfully battled with a fire some blocks distant, in which property to the value of $60,000 was destroyed.

Earlier in the morning the residence of William Faber, at the corner of Eleventh and Market streets, was destroyed. The loss was $10,000.

The Victoria dock is known to have been fired by an incendiary.

He was seen to run from the premises shortly after the fire was discovered. The other East Side fire may also have been incendiary.

Portland, June 10.—The worst southwest Portland has felt for many years struck the city early yesterday morning. By eleven o'clock Monday night a strong gale was blowing and this increased until at 3 o'clock gusts of nearly 60 miles an hour roared through the streets and whipped the water of the Willamette into foam.

From all parts of the city come reports of damage done by the hurricane. Electric wires quickly suffered from the force of the gale and during the early morning hours linemen were called into action as messages of broken lights and tangled telephone wires came in from both sides of the river. When daylight arrived the full extent of the damage was better ascertained. Telegraph poles are down, trees and branches lumber yards and sidewalks, while a number of large panes of glass, on exposed portions of buildings, were blown in. Several houses in the outskirts, under course of construction, suffered considerably by the gale, scaffolding being twisted round and the buildings completely shaken up.

A skylight, 8x12 feet in a galvanized iron frame on the roof of the Newcombe building at Third and Harrison streets was torn from its fittings and blown 20 feet away.

The skylight at the top of the light shaft in the Goodenough building went down with a crash about 2 o'clock.

Portland, March 12.—The Swift Packing Company is looking for a packing house site on the Pacific Coast, and Portland is the first city to be visited and appears to stand the best chance of securing the coveted prize. Lewis F. Swift, member of the great packing company, is in Portland today and practically admitted to a reporter for The Journal that it was up to Portland to make the best showing possible, as he would carefully inspect the entire situation in every section of the Northwest. It was definitely understood that no particular city would be favored. It is purely a business proposition with the Swift company, and they will locate their plant where the best inducements are offered.

Seattle, March 10.—The grand jury today voted to indict Mayor Thomas J. Humes, Chief of Police John Sullivan and Walter S. Fulton, late prosecuting attorney of King county. The charge is malfeasance in office, based primarily on the opinion of the jury that each neglected to enforce the city and state laws against gambling. The vote was taken by the jury at 4 o'clock this afternoon and efforts made to suppress the news pending the preparation of the true bills and the arrest of the accused. Prosecuting Attorney Scott is instructed to prepare the indictments, which he will probably do tomorrow.

Tacoma, Wash., March 11.—A Dawson dispatch received here says there is wild excitement in the Upper Yukon country over a new gold strike, which promises to throw the far-famed Klondike in the shade. The story is that on Duncan Creek, a tributary of Clear Creek, in the Stewart river district, a pay streak seven miles long has been found, which pays $100 per day to the man. Bedrock is said to range from 25 to 100 feet deep, and the whole range of the deposit has been found by actual work to be very rich.

When the news first percolated to the small settlements on the Upper Yukon the whole population stampeded en masse to the scene of the strike, and as nothing has since been heard from them it has been impossible to get further details.

The general impression in Dawson is that the claims of the stampedeers are well founded, and that the new Eldorado which has been sought so long and so earnestly has been found at last.

In corroboration of this view it is now recalled that at intervals during the past year or two a small party of Swedes have been working quietly in that part of the country, whence comes the news of the new find, and that they have at times appeared in Dawson with well filled "pokes." Their reticence at different times aroused comment, but all efforts to induce them to reveal their place of operation failed, and it is now thought that the secret has at last leaked out, and that the diggings where they secured the dust is the Mecca of the last batch of stampedeers.

At King's Valley.

Mr. Lewis, of Airline, bought beef cattle of Frantz Brothers last week. They were for the Independence market.

Joseph Creighton of Peedee, was buried at the King's Valley cemetery last Thursday.

A. C. Miller is also intending to begin logging on the Price place this month.

William Smith has moved up the Luckiamute to work in Miller's camp.

Fy Simpson is making preparations to begin logging in a few days.

WILY WOMAN.

SWEARSSHE LIVES ELSEWHERE AND ESCAPES BIG TAXES.

But Her Real Home is in New York City—Women Start a Newspaper—Employees are Fair Sex Except Pressman.

New York, March 10.—Upon the plea that her residence is in San Francisco Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs was relieved yesterday by the tax commissioners of a personal assessment of $1,000,000.

Mrs. Oelrichs is a sister of Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, jr. Her sister, Mrs. Vanderbilt, and Alice G. Vanderbilt were the only other women in the millionaire class on the tax books.

Although the Fair millions are now in litigation, it was supposed that Mrs. Oelrichs would consent to the assessment. She is supposed to be worth several millions independent of whatever may come her way after the courts decide how the fortune of the brother is to be distributed.

When a carriage drove up to the tax office yesterday there was the usual flurry to preserve the secrecy which has attended the department. Mrs. Oelrichs was met by several attendants and ushered into the office of the commissioners.

Her residence was supposed to be at Fifth avenue and Fifty-seventh street, but Mrs. Oelrichs insisted that this was only her temporary abode. She asserted that her legal residence was in California and on that account asked to be relieved of making any payment to the city.

The tax commissioners asked if she would consent to pay anything. Mrs. Oelrichs declined to pay anything, declaring that her residence was not in this city and that the commissioners had no right to assess her. Upon this statement she was excused and was allowed to take her usual form of oath cancelling personal assessments.

Boston, Mass., March 11.—The first newspaper to be run entirely by women in the United States, and the only one in the world outside of Paris, made its appearance in Cambridge today. It is a weekly sheet and is called the Cambridge Press. The publisher and managing editor, Miss Alice Spencer Geddes, is a prominent young woman of Cambridge, and for the last five years she has edited the women's department of the Chronicle. Miss Brainard is associate editor, and Mrs. Estelle J. Norton the assistant managing editor. Every one on the staff from the chief to the office girl is of the gentler sex, and in the mechanical department all are women with the single exception of the pressman. The paper starts with a large subscription list, and the promoters consider the outlook exceedingly bright.

Chicago, March 11.—The Jackson day banquet at the Auditorium, to be given by the Iroquois Club on March 16, promises to be a notable one. The speakers who have consented to make addresses include: Edward M. Shepard, of New York; Senator Bailey of Texas; Congressman De Armond, of Missouri; Joseph Harmon, of Cincinnati; Judge M. Dickinson, representing Tennessee, the native state of Andrew Jackson; Mayor Harrison of Chicago; President Ingalls, of the Big Four Railroad, and candidate for mayor of Cincinnati, and Samuel Alschuler, the democratic nominee for governor of Illinois at the last election.

Letters regretting their inability to be present have been received from Richard Olney, David B. Hill and Henry Watterson. Letters also have been sent by ex-President Cleveland, General Nelson A. Miles and Judge Lambert Tree, which will be read at the dinner.

Cambridge, Mass., March 10.—George O. L. Perry, the negro lad who was indicted for the murders of Miss Agnes McPhee, of Somerville, and Miss Clara Morton, of Waverly, made a confession when he realized that he could not live, and now that he is dead Sheriff Fairbairn has made public what he said. On February 26 the sheriff said to the prisoner:

"Did you hit these girls, Miss McPhee and Miss Morton?"

"Yes, sir, I did," was the reply. "Did Mason have anything to do with it?"

A negative shake of the head was the answer.

At this time Perry had just passed through a stage of typhoid fever and was very weak. Mason, who is referred to, is the Boston man who was once arrested on suspicion of being "Jack the slugging," but who afterward was discharged in court.

JOBSON AS A DOCTOR.

"Do you know what I am going to fetch home on my way from the office this evening?" inquired Mr. Jobson of Mrs. Jobson at the breakfast table one morning about ten days ago.

Mrs. Jobson had no idea, of course, and said so.

"I'm going to fetch home," said Mr. Jobson, oracularly, "about two pounds of powdered sulphur and a jug of blackstrap molasses of the old-fashioned kind."

"What for?" inquired Mrs. Jobson, with a surprised expression. "Now, what do you suppose powdered sulphur and molasses are generally used for—catnip tea?" Mrs. Jobson might inquire whether you ever had a home as a young girl—a real, sure-enough home, presided over by a mother who knew enough to repair to shelter when the rain began? Is it possible that you never heard of the combination of sulphur and molasses for use as a blood-purifying spring medicine?"

"Oh, yes, Mrs. Jobson had heard of that. 'You have, eh?' said Mr. Jobson. 'Well, what do you think of it as a spring medicine?'"

Mrs. Jobson reluctantly replied that she thought it all right in some aspects, but "There are no 'buts' about it," said Mr. Jobson, in his most impressive judicial tone. "Sulphur and molasses make the greatest spring medicine that ever came over the hills. And that's the stuff that we're going to take every morning before breakfast for a month or so. Just like everybody else, we've been sitting around all winter like hothouse plants, eating too much, and not taking anything like enough exercise. The result is that our blood's all thickened and clogged up, and if we don't take something to clarify our systems we're liable to attacks of illness for the rest of the year. Sulphur and molasses is the thing, and when we take it right along for about a month we'll feel like colts just turned loose in a field of dandelions."

Mr. Jobson, having assumed his I-have-spoke manner, Mrs. Jobson didn't make any reply for the sake of peace, but it was obvious that she wasn't looking forward to the sulphur and molasses scheme with any great degree of equanimity.

Mr. Jobson was as good as his word, and home he brought that evening the package of powdered sulphur and a huge jug of blackstrap molasses, for which he had to search the town. After dinner he mixed the great spring medicine in a large crock, all the time conversing volubly on the wonders wrought by the stuff on the human frame if consistently adhered to.

"It won't do you any good if you only take it once in awhile," he explained. "You've got to stay right with it every day for a month or so to get any good out of it. It may not taste like pate de foie gras, but that's only a detail. It's reaching, so to speak, and that's the main thing."

When Mr. Jobson made his appearance for breakfast the next morning Mrs. Jobson was already presiding over the crock of sulphur and molasses.

"Have you taken yours yet?" inquired Mr. Jobson.

"No," she answered. "I was waiting for you to come down, so that we could take it at the same time. Ugh! It looks so nasty!"

"Don't try to be quite so girly-girly, Mrs. Jobson," said Mr. Jobson, sarcastically. "Aira like that aren't exactly becoming in a person of your years."

Mrs. Jobson produced a couple of tablespoons and handed one of them to Mr. Jobson. But if she expected that he was going to be the first to go against the spring medicine she was mistaken. He stood by in an attitude of expectancy, and there was nothing for her to do but to dip into the crock, delve up a spoonful of the gritty mixture and swallow it. She made an extremely wry face over it, but said nothing.

Mr. Jobson then dipped into the mess, bringing up a considerably smaller spoonful than Mrs. Jobson had taken, and downed it. His countenance looked mightily distorted by the time he had swallowed the stuff, and he spluttered and coughed a lot over it for some time.

"Do you like it as well as you did when you were a young one?" inquired Mrs. Jobson.

"It's great!" spluttered Mr. Jobson, but he didn't say it in a convincing way. He didn't have his usual appetite for breakfast, and he looked thoughtful throughout the meal.

He wasn't feeling well, he said, when he returned home that evening, and he went to bed early. When he made his appearance in the dining-room for breakfast Mrs. Jobson was again hovering over the sulphur and molasses crock. Mr. Jobson didn't go anywhere near it.

"The spring medicine is stirred up and waiting," said Mrs. Jobson. Mr. Jobson pretended to be so interested in the headlines of the morning paper that he didn't hear her.

"Are you ready for the blood purifier?" inquired Mrs. Jobson again, and again Mr. Jobson pretended that he hadn't heard. Then Mrs. Jobson walked right over to where he had plumped himself in a chair and said:

"My dear, shall we take our sulphur and molasses now?"

"Huh?" said Mr. Jobson, making believe that he had just emerged from his trance.

"Our spring medicine, you know," said Mrs. Jobson.

"Oh," said Mr. Jobson, sternly, "you mean that beastly decoction that you forced upon me yesterday morning, do you? No, Mrs. Jobson, I, for one, am not—not, not—going to take it this morning or any other morning. You can take all you want of it—gallons and hogheads of it, if you choose—but if you think for an infinitesimal fraction of time that you're going to bullyrag and bulldoze and hector me into sozzling my system with a poisonous mess that makes me feel as if I'd been living on poisoned snails for a month, that causes me to wake up in the morning with a taste in my mouth like a motorman's glove, that puts every tooth in my head on edge and that's liable to make me break out in boils and carbuncles until I'd look like a twentieth century Job—then you're dreaming, Mrs. Jobson, and it's pretty near time for you to wake up."

The crock of sulphur and molasses went into the garbage can by the time the slop gentlemen got around that morning, and Mrs. Jobson never deposited anything in that receptacle that did her so much good—Washington Star.

Slim Chance for McCarthy.

"I understand the doctor has just been to see your husband, Mrs. McCarthy," said Mr. McCarthy's employer. "Has he made a diagnosis?"

"For a moment Mrs. McCarthy was submerged in a sea of doubt, but she rose triumphant.

"No, sorr," she said, confidently, "he left it to me, him saying I was well able to do it, sorr. It's to be made wid lined on a 'bout maulin, sorr."—Youth's Companion.

Reduction in Water Rates.

We are proposing to reduce the rates on water, and to arrange with all consumers so that all may be treated the same. To do this we must insist on all bills being paid in advance or by the 10 of the month as our rules and regulations call for, and as all other cities require. We have no desire to have any trouble with any consumer, but to treat all alike. Our rules must be enforced. If anything should happen that the water is not used after being paid for, the money will be refunded.
